STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The present Bill proposes to repeal and re-enact, with some modifications, the License Act and the amending Act XXIX of 1867 under the title of a Bill for taxing professions, occupations, and trades.

The principal changes which the Bill will introduce are these:—

The License Act taxes traders whose profits are Rupees 200. The Bill only applies to cases where the profits equal or exceed Rupees 500.

The Act comprises within one class all profits amounting to Rupees 25,000 and upwards. The Bill here makes three classes, the highest class commencing at Rupees 1,00,000, the second, at Rupees 50,000. The Act comprises in its class IV, profits from Rupees 1,000 to Rupees 5,000. The Bill here has two classes, the higher class commencing at Rupees 2,500.

The rate of the tax imposed under the Act was two per cent. on the lowest income in each of the six classes. The Bill lowers this rate to 1·6 per cent., except in the case of official incomes, where it adopts an uniform rate of one per cent.

Under the Act, all payments of whatever amount were made on a single day. Under the Bill, amounts equalling or exceeding Rupees 40 will, as a rule, be payable in two half-yearly instalments. In the case of official incomes, the percentage will be deducted from the monthly payments.

Under the Act a Company paid for its license a sum depending on the amount of its paid-up capital. Under the Bill it will pay one per cent. on the dividend which it has declared during the previous year. If no such dividend has been declared, the Company will pay the nominal tax of Rupees 10. Companies whose principal place of business is out of India will pay a tax of Rupees 500.

These changes rendering the tax not only lower in its amount but narrower in its incidence, it is thought expedient to withdraw from the Supreme Government the power to authorize deductions of monies paid under municipal or local laws.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 20th March 1868, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week:—

No. 10 OF 1868.

A Bill to amend the Consolidated Customs' Act.

Preamble.

WHEREAS section 132 of the Consolidated Customs' Act (No. VI of 1863) provides that no refund of duty levied upon goods not shipped, or upon goods shipped and afterwards re-landed, shall be allowed, unless application to re-land shall have been made, or notice of non-shipment shall have been given, before the vessel on which such goods were intended to be shipped or from which they were re-landed shall have left the port: And whereas it is expedient to extend the time within which such application or notice may be made or given; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Amendment of Act No. VI of 1863, section 132.

1. For the proviso contained in the said section, the following shall be substituted:—

Provided that no such refund shall be allowed unless application to re-land shall have been made, or notice of non-shipment shall have been given, within three clear working days after the vessel on which such goods were intended to be shipped or from which they were re-landed shall have left the port.

Short title.

2. This Act may be called the "Consolidated Customs' Act Amendment Act."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 132 of of the Consolidated Customs' Act (No. VI of 1863) authorizes the refund of export duty levied upon goods not shipped or on goods shipped and afterwards re-landed. The privilege, however, is accompanied by a proviso that the application to re-land be made, or the notice of non-shipment be given, before the vessel leaves port. The Bengal Chamber of Commerce has represented that the section is practically a dead-letter owing to the impossibility, under the present system of business, of conforming to the proviso.

"As a rule," the Chamber observes—

"Ships are now despatched with as little delay as possible after clearance at the Custom House. Having secured a pilot and engaged a steamer to tow her to sea, a vessel starts at a very early hour the day after she clears (generally late in the afternoon), and is half-way down the river before a shipper can be aware that a portion of his goods has been shut out.

"A Master of a vessel may engage to take on board more than he finds at the last moment the ship can carry, and is unable to receive a portion of the cargo with which he clears out, but his ship cannot be detained, and the vessel leaves the port before application for re-land of short-shipment can be made within the period limited by the Act."

The present Bill accordingly proposes to extend the time within which the application or notice may be made or given to three clear working days after the vessel has left port.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 20th March 1868, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week :—

No. 11 OF 1868.

A Bill to exempt Timber and Woods from Import Duty.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to exempt timber and woods imported by sea into British India from the duties of customs chargeable thereon ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Timber and woods to be free of import duty.

I. Notwithstanding anything contained in "the Indian Customs' Duties' Act 1867" no duties of customs shall be chargeable on timber and woods imported by sea into British India.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Indian Customs' Duties' Act (No. XVII of 1867) imposes duties of 7½ per cent. on all timber imported into British India. These duties are so high that they have effectually checked an importation which, in the present state of demand and supply, it is desirable to encourage. The present Bill, therefore, abolishes the duties in question so far as regards timber imported by sea.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

A large class of Towns exists in which Act XX of 1856, or the corresponding Regulations which preceded it, have been in force for many years and which have, under those laws, supported a special Police out of the proceeds of local taxation, devoting any small surplus of the tax to local improvements. But many of these Towns are now sufficiently advanced for the introduction of the District Municipal Improvement Act (III of 186[illegible] B. C.)

The necessity of adopting more effectual measures for the local improvement and sanitation of such Towns is generally recognized; but the effect of an Act lately passed has been to withdraw all power of raising funds in such Town for any purposes other than the support of the Police.

In the present Bill provision is made for raising such amount for purposes of conservancy and local improvement, in addition to the cost of the Police, as shall seem proper with reference to the circumstances of each Town, and its requirements.

The mode of taxation prescribed, except for Cantonments, is that which has been generally in force under Act XX of 1856, and to which the people are accustomed,—an assessment according to the known circumstances and property to be protected of the tax-payer.

The maximum which any Town can be called on to pay for Police has been retained at an average of two annas per mensem on each house as fixed by Act XX of 1856, and originally in 1813; but it is provided that the total amount of assessment for all purposes of the Act may reach a maximum averaging three annas on each house, the difference between the cost of Police and the total amount raised being devoted to conservancy and local improvements.

The circumstances of Cantonments are generally such as would justify the introduction of the District Municipal Improvement Act, but this cannot be extended to them; whereas the Cantonment Act XXII of 1864 recognizes the operation of Act XX of 1856, of which the present law will take the place. For these reasons the mode of taxation which was adopted in Municipalities under the District Municipal Improvement Act, by a rate on the value of property, has been made applicable to Cantonments by this Bill. This is no innovation, as the adoption of this mode of taxation, whenever it might seem proper, was within the discretion of the Executive Government under Act XX of 1856.

Material changes have been introduced as to the duties of the Punchayet, with the object of raising their status, and holding out more inducement to respectable persons to take an interest and a part in their Municipal affairs; a provision has been inserted reserving to the Government the power of making rules for the selection of members of the Punchayet by election, whenever the circumstances of any Town may render such a course expedient.

A new power is also given to the Government to extend to Towns any of the Conservancy Clauses of the District Municipal Improvement Act. Minor changes have been introduced as to the preparation of Budget Estimates, &c.

Section XXIII, Clauses 2 and 8; and so much of Clause 5 as directs the mode of recovering any deficiency; and Section XXV.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE proposed Bill is in substitution for the one introduced by Mr. Schalch, and which, on the report of the Select Committee, to whom it was referred, has been withdrawn. The alterations in, and additions to, that Bill, which were proposed in Committee, were so numerous and extensive that it was thought better to bring forward an entirely new measure.

It will be in the recollection of the Council that Mr. Schalch's Bill was limited to a definition of the term "tenure," and to providing a procedure for the sale of tenures for recovery of demands recoverable as arrears of revenue. But on consideration of Act XI of 1859, it appeared that that Act stood in need of amendment. It is only by inference, arising on the construction of the 5th and 53rd Sections of that Act, that its provisions apply to the recovery of demands other than revenue in the ordinary sense, or to the sale of estates for arrears other than those accruing upon itself.

Moreover, owing to the absence of definations, doubts have arisen as to the legality of sales, under the Act, of shares of estates and of Lakhiraj tenures.

In the present Bill it is proposed to define for the purposes as well of Act XI of 1859, as of the present measure, the terms 'proprietor,' 'revenue' 'estate,' 'tenure,' and 'demand.' The Bill repeals the 53rd Section of Act XI of 1859, and makes substantive provision for the sale of estates and tenures for arrears of revenue, and other demands other than those accruing in respect thereof.

It is also proposed to place arrears of rent due to Government on the same footing as arrears of revenue in the sense in which that term is ordinarily used. The distinction between what the Government receives from the zemindar, and what it receives as zemindar, does not appear to rest on any sound principle: both alike form part of the public revenue of the estate.

The Bill also makes further provision for the service of notice of sale on the proprietor who has made default, and empowers the Collector, subject to an appeal to the Commissioner, to adjudicate on claims to any lands which it is proposed to sell.

The procedure proposed is that of Act VIII of 1859 for the execution of decrees, substituting for the decree a certificate by the Collector (the form being modified according to the nature of the case), and vesting in the Collector the powers with regard to execution, which under the Civil Procedure Code may be exercised by the Courts.

The Bill also gives a specific enumeration and description of demands arrears of which are now by law recoverable as arrears of revenue, in addition of those specified in Section V of Act XI of 1859.

The following Order issued by the Government of the India, in the Marine Department, is re-published for general information :—

No. 3.—Notification.—The 26th March 1868.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to publish for general information the following letter from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, No. 5, dated 31st January 1868, and the documents therein referred to :—

SEPARATE REVENUE. INDIA OFFICE :

No. 5. London, 31st January 1868.

To His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

SIR,—I transmit to your Excellency in Council a copy of a letter which has been addressed to this Department, by direction of the Lords Commissioners of Trade, enclosing a copy of a Despatch from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Washington, which forwarded a Circular put forth by the Government of the United States of America in which vessels bound for that country are warned that they must be furnished with full manifests of cargo.

I have, &c.,
(Sd.) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

From THOMAS GRAY, ESQ., to the Under-Secretary of State for India,—(dated Whitehall, Board of Trade, the 25th January 1868.)

SIR,—I am directed by the Board of Trade to transmit to you, to be laid before Secretary Sir Stafford H. Northcote, a copy of a Despatch received from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Washington, enclosing a copy of a Circular issued by the United States Government respecting the necessity of vessels bound for the United States being provided with full manifests of cargo.

The Board of Trade have reprinted the Circular, a copy of which is annexed, and caused it to be distributed at the Ports in the United Kingdom, and I am to suggest, for the considerations of Sir Stafford H. Northcote, whether it may not be desirable for steps to be taken to bring it to the notice of persons interested in shipping at Ports in Her Majesty's possessions in India.

From FRANCIS CLARKE FORD, ESQ., to LORD STANLEY, M. P., &c., &c., &c.,—(No. 36, dated Washington, the 12th November 1867.)

MY LORD,—I have the honor to inform your Lordship that two cases have been brought to my notice by Her Majesty's Consul at Baltimore in which the Masters of British Vessels, the Jenny Lind and the Magic, having recently arrived at that Port, the former from Puerto Rico, and the latter from Greenock, were fined the sum of $ 500 each in consequence of their being unprovided with manifests of their ships' cargo.

On application from the consignees of the respective vessels the entire fine was remitted in the case of the Jenny Lind, but a portion only in that of the Magic.

I have ascertained, however, from the Department of State, that should the consignee of the Magic apply for my official intervention in the matter, it will meet with the favorable consideration of the Government of the United States.

I beg to enclose herewith to your Lordship a copy of the Circular that was issued by the Department of State to the Consular Officers of the United States calling their attention to the 25th Section of an Act approved on the 18th of July 1866, and which was to come into force on the 1st of March of the present year, by which an Act passed on the 2nd March 1799 relating to the manifests was made applicable to vessels owned in whole or in part by Foreigners, as well as to vessels of the United States. The 26th Section of that Act fixes a penalty of a sum not exceeding $ 500 for a violation of it. Owing, however, to this provision of law not having passed at the recommendation of the Department of State for the United States, some delay inadvertently occurred in issuing the Circular to their Consuls, and for that reason I anticipate no difficulty in obtaining a remission of such penalties as may hereafter be inflicted on Masters or Consignees of British Vessels, provided always that it can be established by them that no notice was given to them of the new Act by the Consular Officers of the United States at the Ports from which their vessels may have sailed.

CIRCULAR No. 65.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON D. C.,

August 13, 1867.

To the CONSULAR OFFICERS of the UNITED STATES.

Your attention is called to the 25th Section of the Act entitled "An Act further to prevent Smuggling, and for other purposes," approved July 18th, 1866, which is as follows:—

"Section 25. And be it further enacted, that, on and after the first day of July next, the several provisions of the Act entitled 'An Act to regulate the collection of duties on imports and tonnage,' approved March 2, 1799, relating to manifests, shall apply as well to vessels owned in whole or in part by foreigners as to vessels of the United States; and that the Secretary of State send copies of this section to all Consular Officers of the United States in foreign countries."

Your attention is also called to the fact that, by Section 3 of Chapter 42 of the laws of the second session of the 39th Congress the section above quoted was amended by inserting the word "March" in place of the word "July" therein.

It will be seen that the law has already gone into effect which places vessels owned in whole or in part by foreigners upon the same footing as vessels owned by citizens of the United States, so far as the production of manifests is concerned.

You are therefore instructed to inform the Masters of all vessels leaving your port for the United States that they are required to produce manifests in accordance with the provisions of Section 23 of the Act to regulate the collection of duties on imports and tonnage, approved March 2, 1799, a copy of which is hereto annexed. Circular issued by the Inspector-General of Jails, on the subject of arresting the spread of Cholera.

From F. J. MOUAT, ESQ., M. D., Inspector-General of Jails, Lower Provinces, to all Officers Civil and Medical, connected with the Jails of the Lower Provinces,—(No. 1180, dated Alipore, the 4th March 1868.)

THE Cholera season being again at hand, I beg to solicit your earnest and careful attention to the Circular Orders enumerated in the margin, all of which are contained in Appendix XVIII, pp. ccx—ccxxxv. of my last Annual Report, and in the Bengal Jail Manual, Appendix I, pp. 19—25.

No. 30, dated 26th December 1855.
" 51, " 20th September 1856.
" 77, " 12th April 1858.
" 141, " 7th March 1863.

It is satisfactory to me to find after the lapse of so many years, during which public and professional attention has been frequently and forcibly directed to the subject of cholera, that the general directions which I issued in 1855 still contain nearly all the precautionary measures considered necessary or advisable to adopt against the invasion, or for the arrest of cholera.

The only important addition, which the sanitary adviser of the Crown in England lays stress upon, is the use of disinfectants.

Upon this subject I reprint and circulate for your information and guidance the subjoined Memorandum on Disinfection, promulgated by the Medical Officer of Her Majesty's Privy Council in 1866, and contained in his report on Public Health published in 1867.

MEMORANDUM ON DISINFECTION.

It is to cleanliness, ventilation, and drainage, and the use of perfectly pure drinking water, that populations ought mainly to look for safety against nuisance and infection. Artificial disinfectants cannot properly supply the place of those essentials, for, except in a small and peculiar class of cases, they are of temporary or imperfect usefulness. That no house-refuse, not only no excremental matter but also no other kind of dirt or refuse, should remain on or about inhabited premises, is a first rule against infection. That the air within the house should never in any part of the house be stagnant, but should always be in course of renewal from without by uninterrupted and abundant supplies of fresh air, is a condition of equal importance. And that all water meant to be used for drinking or cooking should be drawn from sources which cannot have been polluted by any kind of refuse-matter, is a third most important rule for the avoidance of infection.

If dwelling-places have within them any odour of drainage, particular examination should be made (1) whether the filth within house-drains are meant to carry away is retained in or near the premises in ill-made drains, or sewers, or cesspools, or perhaps is leaking from house-drains within the house; and (2) whether inside the house the inlets of drains and sinks are properly trapped; and (3) whether the drains and sewers are sufficiently ventilated outside the house. All water-closets within houses should have free opening for ventilation from and into the outer air. Of a cesspool, the only true disinfection is to abolish it. In country places, where proper drainage is not provided, the nuisance of open privies may be best avoided by the use of the so-called earth-closet.

If a sewer is much complained of as stinking into the public way, generally the presumption is, that, from original ill-construction or some other cause, it does not properly fulfil its object, but has filth accumulated and stagnant in it; and such a sewer, besides occasioning nuisance in the public way may be the source of serious danger to the inhabitants of houses which drain into it. It is most important that all sewers should be well ventilated at points where their effluvia will be least injurious; and ordinary drain-pipes may be used to conduct the effluvia to a distance.

For artificial disinfection on a large scale, the agents which most commonly prove useful are—quicklime, chloride of lime, carbolic acid, sulphate of iron, perchloride of iron, and chloride of manganese. The following are also efficient disinfectants, but, as being dearer, are less suited for large operations: sulphate of zinc, chloride of zinc, chloride of soda, and permanganate of potash. In certain cases cholorine gas, or nitrous acid gas, or sulphurous acid gas, may advantageously be used; and, in certain other cases, powdered charcoal or fresh dry-earth.

Quick-lime ought to have been recently burnt, and may be used either in the form of dry powder, or stirred up with about ten times its bulk of water as milk of lime. Chloride of lime is best used with water, and thoroughly mixed with it, in the proportion of a pound to the gallon; or, of the solution, as commonly sold, about two pints may be mixed with a gallon of water. Carbolic acid (in the fluid form in which it is commonly sold) should be dissolved in about eighty times its volume of water, with which it must be mixed by strong shaking in a closed vessel. Sulphate of iron should be dissolved in ten times its weight of water; a solution which is best effected by employing hot water and stirring. Of perchloride of iron and chloride of manganese, the common concentrated solutions may be used, diluted with ten or twelve times their bulk of water. Sulphate of zinc should be dissolved in about ten times its weight of warm water. Of chloride of zinc, the common concentrated solution may be diluted with eight or ten times its bulk of water.* Of chloride of soda, the common solution may be used like that of chloride of lime. Of permanganate of potash, an ounce may be dissolved in a gallon of water.†

All disinfectants must be used in quantities proportionate to the amount of matter or surface to be disinfected. When the matters requiring to be disinfected have an offensive smell, the disinfectant should be used till this smell has entirely ceased, and as often as the smell recurs, the disinfectant must again be used.

1. During the emptying of privies and cesspools, and whenever else temporary disinfection is required for them, carbolic acid, or sulphate of iron or perchloride of iron, or chloride of manganese, or chloride of zinc, will be found available. A dilute solution (as above) of one of those agents should be poured into the privy or cesspool, from a quart to a pailful at a time, till the desired effect is obtained. Especially where cholera or typhoid fever is present, privies and cesspools ought to be very frequently flooded in this manner. The best test of their being adequately disinfected is the entire absence of fæcal or ammoniacal odour.

2. Heaps of manure or other filth, if it be for the time impracticable or inexpedient to remove them, should be covered, to the depth of two or three inches, with a layer of freshly burnt vegetable charcoal in powder. Freshly burnt lime may be used in the same way, but is less effective than charcoal. If neither charcoal nor lime be at hand, the filth should be covered with a layer, some inches thick, of clean dry earth. For a privy which has only solid contents, the same sort of treatment is applicable. Earth near dwellings, if it has become offensive or foul by the soakage of decaying animal or vegetable matter, should be be treated on the same plan.

3. If running sewage, about to be used in agriculture, require to be disinfected, the chloride of manganese or perchloride of iron may be best used;* but if the sewage is to pass into a river, or into any pond or canal, where it might again become offensive, chloride of lime is to be preferred, and in this case a pound of good chloride of lime will generally suffice to disinfect 1,000 gallons of the sewage. For foul ditches and other stagnant drainage chloride of lime is also the proper disinfectant.

4. Where it is desirable to disinfect, before throwing away, the evacuations from the bowels of persons suffering from cholera or typhoid fever, some of the disinfectant (which here may best be chloride of lime) should be put into the bed-pan or other vessel before it is used by the patient, and some more should be added immediately after. Its thorough mixture with the evacuation should be ensured. Care should also be taken that portions of the discharges do not remain about the patient's body or in his dress.

5. Linen or Washing apparel requiring to be disinfected may be set to soak in water containing per gallon about an ounce either of the common clear solution of chloride of lime or of that of chloride of soda. Or the articles in question may be plunged into boiling water, and afterwards, when at wash, be actually boiled in the washing water.

6. Woollen, Bedding, or Clothing, which cannot be washed, may be disinfected by exposure for two or more hours, in chambers constructed for the purpose, to a temperature of F. 210°-250°. When this cannot be done, the natural disinfecting process of prolonged exposure to air, sun, and rain ought to be had recourse to.

7. For the disinfection of the interior of houses the ceilings and walls should be washed with warm quick-lime water. The woodwork should be cleansed with soap and water, and subsequently washed with water containing in each gallon about two ounces of the clear solution of either chloride of lime or chloride of soda.

8. A room no longer occupied may be disinfected by chlorine gas, or nitrous acid gas, or sulphurous acid gas. And for this purpose the gases may be produced in the room as follows:—chlorine gas, by pouring over a quarter of a pound of finely powdered black oxide of manganese, contained in a jar, half a pint of muriatic acid previously mixed with a quarter of a pint of water; or by pouring over a quarter of a pound of chloride of lime, contained in a jar, a quarter of a pint of muriatic or dilute sulphuric acid;—nitrous acid gas by pouring over an ounce of copper shavings or turnings, contained in a deep jar, three ounces of concentrated nitric acid;—sulphurous acid gas, by burning an ounce or two of flowers of sulphur in a pipkin. The process of disinfecting a room by any of these gases requires several hours; and while it is going on, all doors, chimneys, and windows of the room must be kept carefully closed. Precautions to this effect should have been taken before the chemicals are mixed, as the persons who starts the process (having to avoid the gases) must not afterwards loiter in the room. When the process is at an end, doors and windows should be fully opened.

JOHN SIMON.

For convenience in this memorandum, the word "disinfectants" is used to cover, not only those true disinfectants which permanently destroy infective matter, but also those agents which merely arrest the process, or absorb the offensive products of organic decomposition.

* Or the preparations respectively known as Burnett's and Crew's disinfectant solutions may be employed.

† Or Condy's disinfectant fluids, which contain manganic and permangaric salts, may be used.

* In some such cases McDougall's process, as practised by him at Carlisle, may be applicable, and his powder may also be applicable to cases mentioned in § I.

Several of Mr. Simon's suggestions are not applicable to Indian jails, but they are all valuable, hence I have not omitted any of them.

I am of opinion that fresh, dry, finely pounded garden mould, or earth containing organic matter, is not only the best and most efficient of disinfectants but it is the most permanent in its effects, is universally procurable, costs nothing, and needs only to be applied with care and attention to be thoroughly efficacious. To be of any real use it should be applied at once in sufficient quantity, thoroughly mixed, and the deodorized and disinfected dejecta be buried in trenches at a sufficient distance from the jail or encampment, before putrefactive fermentation has begun.

I do not myself attach so much importance to mere disinfection as some others do and have done; and Mr Simon has shown that the conclusions of Dr. Budd of Bristol have not been verified by other observers.

Nevertheless, it is advisable that all excrementitious matters, whether choleraic or not, should be deodorized, removed, and buried as quickly as possible—and these measures are more imperative during the cholera season than at any other time.

The following additional remarks of Mr. Simon are also deserving of your most careful attention, and as his reports are not generally accessible in India, I reproduce them in extenso.

Nuisances especially relative to cholera.

In relation to Asiatic cholera, as now threatening us, there are two principal dangers against which extreme and exceptional vigilance ought to be used,—First, there is the danger of drinking WATER which is in any (even the slightest) degree tainted by house-refuse or other like kinds of filth: as where there is outflow, leakage or filtration, from sewers, house-drains, privies, cesspools, foul ditches, or the like into streams, springs or wells from which the supply of water is drawn or into the subsoil in which the wells are situated: a danger which may exist on a small scale, as at the pump or dip-well of a private house, or on a large scale, as in the sources of supply of public water-works: And secondly, there is the danger of breathing AIR which is made foul with effluvia from the same sorts of impurity. Information as to the high degree in which those two dangers affect the public health in ordinary times, and as to the extreme degree of importance which attaches to them at times when any diarrhœal disease is epidemic, has now for so many years been set before the public, by this Department and otherwise, that the larger works of drainage and water-supply by which the dangers are permanently obviated for large populations, and also the minor structural improvements by which separate households are secured against the dangers, ought long ago to have come into universal use. It is to be feared that on a very large scale this wiser course has not been adopted, and that even yet, in very many instances, temporary security has to be found in measures of a palliative kind. So far as such is the case, attention is most earnestly called to those parts of the General Memorandum which relate to the matters in hand. All chief sources of the one danger may be held in check as follows:—by immediate thorough removal of every sort of house-refuse and other filth which is now accumulated; by preventing future accumulations of the same sort; by attention to all defects of house-drains and sinks through which offensive smells are let into houses; by thorough washing and lime-whiting of uncleanly premises, especially of such as are densely occupied; and by disinfection, very freely and very frequently employed, in and round about houses, wherever there are receptacles or conduits of filth, wherever there is filth-sodden porous earth, wherever anything else, in, or under, or about the house tends to make the atmosphere foul. As provisions against the other danger, it is essential that immediate and searching examination of sources of water-supply should be made in all cases where the source is in any degree open to the suspicion of impurity: examination both of private and of public supplies: and that where pollution is discovered, everything practicable should be done to prevent the pollution from continuing, or, if this object cannot be attained, to prevent the water from being drunk. The examination of sources of water-supply should of course extend to all receptacles of water storage, such as the tanks and reservoirs of public supply, and the butts and cisterns of private houses.*

Mode of propagation of cholera.

That such precautions as the above (never unimportant where human health is to be preserved) are supremely important when spread of cholera is to be prevented, is a truth which will best be understood when the manner in which cholera spreads is considered. Happily for mankind, cholera is so little contagious, in the sense in which small-pox and typhus are commonly called contagious, that, if proper precautions are taken where it is present, there is scarcely any risk that the disease will spread to persons who nurse and otherwise closely attend upon the sick. But cholera has a certain peculiar contagiousness of its own, now to be explained; which, where sanitary circumstances are bad, can operate with terrible force, and at considerable distances from the sick. It appears to be characteristic of cholera—not only of the disease in its developed and alarming form, but equally of the slightest diarrhœa which the epidemic influence can produce, that all matters which the patient discharges from his stomach and bowels are infective; that the patient's power of infecting other persons is represented almost or quite exclusively by those discharges; that they, however, are comparatively non-infective at the moment when they are discharged, but afterwards while undergoing decomposition, acquire their maximum of infective power; that if they be cast away without previous disinfection, they impart their own infective quality to the excremental matters with which they mingle, in filth-sodden earth or in depositories and conduits of filth, and to the effluvia which those excremental matters evolve; that, if the infective material, by leakage or soakage from drains or cesspools, or otherwise gets access, even in smallest quantity, directly or through porous soil, to wells or other sources of drinking-water, it can infect, in the most dangerous manner, very large volumes of the water; that the infective influence of choleraic discharges attaches to whatever bedding, clothing, towels, and like things, have been imbued with them, and renders these things, if not disinfected, capable (as the cholera-patient himself would be capable, under the same conditions) of spreading the disease in places whither they are sent for washing or other purposes; that, in the above described ways, even a single case of disease, perhaps of the slightest degree, and perhaps quite unsuspected in its neighbourhood, may, if local circumstances co-operate, exert a terribly infective power on considerable masses of population. "If local circumstances co-operate, however, is the stated condition for that possibility; and it will be observed that the essence of the sanitary precautions, which have been recommended to Nuisance Authorities and others, is to annihilate those 'local circumstances.' The choleraic infection does not seem able largely to injure population unless a filthy state of things be presupposed. It is pre-supposed that the atmosphere or the drinking-water of the population is impure with the most loathsome of impurities,—that the infective material has had opportunities of action which decent cleanliness would not have afforded it—that, in inefficient drains or cesspools other like depositories, it has had time to develop its own infective power, and to render other stagnating filth equally infective with itself,—and that, from such foci of infection, the disgusting leaven of the disease has spread, in air and water, to be breathed or swallowed by the population. In this view of the case, it will be understood that works of sewerage, house-drainage, and water-supply, properly executed and properly used, give to town populations an almost absolute security that cholera, if introduced among them, can have no means of spreading its infection. And equally it will be understood that, in the absence of those permanent safeguards, no approach to such security can be got without incessant cleansings and disinfections, or without extreme vigilance against every possible contamination of drinking-water."

* If unfortunately the only water which for a time can be got should be open to suspicion of dangerous organic impurity, it ought at least to be boiled before it is used for drinking, but then not to be drunk later than twenty-four hours after it has been boiled. Or, under medical or other skilled direction, water, in quantities sufficient for one day's drinking in the house, may be disinfected by a very careful use of Condy's red disinfectant fluid. This should be added to the water (with stirring or shaking) such number of drops that the water an hour afterwards, shall have the faintest pink colour which the eye can distinctly perceive. Filtering of the ordinary kind cannot by itself be trusted to purify water, but is a good addition to either of the above processes. It cannot be too distinctly understood, that dangerous qualities of water are not obviated by the addition of wine or spirits.

I am satisfied that the influence of water in the propagation of cholera has been considerably over-rated, and that we have still much to learn on the subject. For example, I ascertained recently at Pooree that, although the water-supply of that town is polluted to the last degree by choleraic matters—whether vomitted or otherwise evacuated—it is used for all domestic purposes, without boiling, filtration, or any process of depuration, and very rarely causes attacks of cholera to the towns-people. Again, while the water in the tanks and wells of Pooree is loaded with choleraic matters in the greatest degree, and consumed by the fixed population of the place, cholera disappears, taking flight with the departure of the pilgrims—and the tainted water ceases to exert any further injurious influence. I hold it nevertheless to be difficult to exaggergate the importance of careful attention to the above injunctions, and it is in the power of all Officers in charge of Indian jails to enforce the most constant and unvarying obedience to them. Should any such Officer fail in this duty, he will incur a very serious personal responsibility, but I have no reason to suppose that it will not receive immediate and earnest attention, and I am satisfied that where the jail is not in the administrative charge of a Medical Officer, the Civil Surgeon will cordially assist in the great prophylactic measures enjoined.

Upon the urgent necessity of a most careful scientific study of cholera on the part of the Civil Surgeons of Bengal I do not touch, because the purely professional concerns of the jails are not under my control. They will doubtless receive special instructions on the subject from the proper authorities.

"It is now well known" says Mr. Simon in his last report "that cholera and typhoid fever, and other endemic bowel affections, stand in intimate etiological relation to the pollution of air and soil and water with decaying excremental matters." The prevention of such pollution is the best general means of protection that can be attempted. It is to secure this important end that I issue the present Circular.

In recording the incidents and results of the out-breaks of cholera that may occur in the jails under my charge during the present year, the attention of the Medical Officers of Lower Bengal is particularly requested to the following branches of enquiry: "(1) a careful record of the different modes of treatment of cholera practised; (2) study of the chemical changes undergone by the body in cholera, and of the relations subsisting between these changes and the symptoms which the patients present during life; (3) similar study, chiefly microscopical of the successive anatomical changes of the affected body; (4) verification of alleged proofs of the communicability of cholera; (5) collection of facts, in the line of study opened by Professor V. Pettenkofer of Munich, as to the non-coincidence of local epidemics of cholera with such conditions of the local ground-water as are indicated by a full state of surface wells."*

On the Prevalence of Epidemic Fevers in the Districts adjoining Calcutta.

From E. C. Bayley, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to H. L. Dampier, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 2822, dated Simla, the 27th July 1867.)

An attentive perusal of the history, as given in the Administration Reports of the Government of Bengal, of the epidemic fever which has since 1861 annually prevailed in the districts surrounding Calcutta, has convinced the Governor General in Council that the terrible suffering and mortality caused by it will in all probability recur sooner or later (if, indeed, it has now ceased), and again and again with increased virulence, unless efficient preventive measures are promptly carried out. I am therefore directed to invite serious and immediate attention of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor to the following remarks:

2. The report of the Commission appointed in January 1864 by the late Lieutenant-Governor, to enquire into the causes of the fever, describes the state of the villages to be such as justifies the wonder expressed that the people had not suffered even more extensively, but does not, I am to observe, satisfactorily account for the fact that all the causes of disease mentioned by the Commission have been for years at work in many places, which until lately have never suffered and are still in operation in many places yet free from sickness. The only new cause suggested by the native member of the Commission, Baboo Digumber Mitter, as probably increasing the dampness which the Commission considered to be the main source of disease, was the obstruction to drainage by railways and roads, and the shutting up of outlets into rivers. Lieutenant Hills of the Public Works Department was accordingly deputed to report fully on the drainage of the country, and to propose a general scheme for its improvement with special reference to Baboo Digumber Mitter's suggestion. In his final report, submitted in December 1864, Lieutenant Hills distinctly asserted that the Eastern Bengal Railway had not affected the drainage, and he specially mentioned some points of importance on which more or less action was taken. The report, however, contained no such comprehensive scheme as had been expected, nor is it known what was done in execution of the orders passed upon it, nor whether on the removal of Lieutenant Hills, after the submission of his report, a successor was appointed. On all these points His Excellency in Council considers that full and early information should be procured, and I am directed to request that if, in His Honor's opinion, the District Engineer has not sufficient leisure to complete the task which was left unfinished by Lieutenant Hills, an Officer may be carefully selected for the purpose. The Governor General in Council would wish to see any information that is now available or that may be collected hereafter.

3. But I am to observe, whatever may have been the primary cause of the epidemic in 1861, there can be no doubt that the miasma generated by damp, decaying vegetation, imperfect ventilation, and polluted drinking water had a powerful effect in preparing for its outbreak and increasing its violence, or that so long as villages remain in the condition described by the Commission, their liability to the ravages of a most fatal epidemic must continue. It is therefore of urgent importance that whatever ulterior measures may be taken for the general improvement of the country, the simple sanitary measures recommended by the Commission should be carried out in every village. It is undoubtedly the duty of the landowners and villagers to give effect to these local measures, but there is little hope that they will do so, unless stimulated by an interest in their welfare shown by the Government and its Officers, and taught to work methodically.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor can best decide in what manner the interest felt by the Government can be most beneficially evinced, and of what nature its guidance should be. I am to suggest however, for His Honor's consideration, that the Commissioners and District Officers might be requested to urge upon zemindars and villagers, in public meeting and private visits, the necessity for exertion, to point out to them that the fever will almost certainly return, and the ease with which a village might be cleared, before its inhabitants are swept off or prostrated, and to explain to them the efficacy of the measures urged upon them towards removing the dampness which Bengalees well know to be a cause of fever. Should His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor concur in the views now expressed, the suggestions of the Commission might be epitomized and translated into Bengalee for village circulation, and in order to methodize operations and continue the stimulus until the completion of the work, the villages effected and those in their neighbourhood might be divided into circles of convenient size, each to be placed in charge of a Deputy or Assistant Magistrate or Collector. This Officer might be required to encamp in his circle during the cold weather, and visit it frequently at other seasons till nothing remained to be done, when a fresh circle might be made over to him. The Magistrate and Collector should, as a matter of course, visit the circles as frequently as possible to encourage and advise with the people, and see that the Officer in charge obtained and directed their hearty co-operation. After the completion of the work in the circles first formed, others outside them might be successively told off, and a district thus gradually cleared. To prevent relapse the circle system could be kept up, each being periodically inspected by some Officer, and gradually one or two villagers might in each perhaps be induced to share in the inspection and regulation of its sanitary affairs.

5. The Governor General in Council desires me to suggest, for the consideration of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor, whether the British Indian Association might not with advantage be again invited to co-operate, as he trusts that the unfavorable opinion of sanitary measures, which it recorded previously to the receipt of the report of the Fever Commission, may have been modified.

6. His Excellency in Council trusts that the system now suggested or something similar will be heartily and perseveringly carried out, and that progress will not be retarded by frequent changes of the Officers who may be selected in each district as best fitted for the purpose. Success, however slow at first, must, it is believed, eventually attend this and every scheme which intimately connects the Officers of Government with the welfare of the people, and evinces a deeper interest in their private life than can be shown in courts and treasuries.

7. I am to observe, however, that action should not be confined to these merely village measures. The Officer who may be selected, under the instructions conveyed in paragraph 2 of this letter, should carefully compare the present with the previous condition of the country, so as to ascertain whether it has undergone any such change as will account for the outbreak of the epidemic at the particular period of its occurrence, by the aggravation of the various and long existing evils of the villages into sudden and violent action.

8. I am directed to suggest three points, to which the investigation might be specially directed—

I.—Whether there is any considerable obstruction to general and not merely village drainage.

II.—Whether the growth of jungle or of high and closely cultivated vegetation has largely increased in or near the villages.

III.—Whether any change in the circumstances of the people has deprived them of the same quantity and quality of food and clothing as they formerly enjoyed.

From A. P. Howell, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 1616, dated Fort William, the 21st December 1867.)

Forwarded to the Government of Bengal in continuation of this Office letter No. 2822, dated the 27th July 1867, and attention requested to paragraph 3.

From the Right Hon'ble Sir Stafford H. Northcote, Bart., M. P., Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council,—(No. 148, dated India Office, London, the 8th November 1867.)

Para. 1.—The Despatch of your Government, No. 144 of the 10th August last, on the subject of the epidemic fever which has, since 1861, annually prevailed in the districts surrounding Calcutta, has been considered by me in Council.

2. The prevalence of a very fatal epidemic in certain districts of the Nuddea and Burdwan Divisions, reported in the letter from your Government of the 22nd April 1863, No. 25, formed the subject of Sir C. Wood's Despatch of the 9th July 1863, No. 48, in which grants from the local funds were sanctioned in order to stimulate and encourage the people themselves not to neglect sanitary measures, and the provision of proper medical advice and medicines within the reach of the villages where the epidemic prevails was suggested.

3. I shall await with interest the further proceedings of your Government consequent on the communication which you have caused to be made to the Bengal Government, (No. 2822, dated 27th July 1867), the several suggestions contained in which seem to me to be well calculated to prevent a recurrence of the fever.

From H. L. Dampier, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 286, dated Fort William, the 16th January 1868.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2822, dated the 27th July, in which the attention of the Lieutenant-Governor is invited to the necessity of adopting measures for the purpose of preventing the continuance or recurrence of the epidemic fever which has prevailed at intervals since 1861 in the districts adjoining Calcutta.

2. This fever, as the Governor General in Council is aware, engaged the anxious attention of the Local Government in 1863 and 1864. It would seem that, after the cyclone of October in 1864, the malady almost entirely disappeared, and that during 1865 there was no return of it, or at least none such as to atract attention. During 1866 and 1867, however, the fever has again attacked portions of the same districts, though not, it is believed, with the extreme violence that it did in 1862 and 1863. On receipt of your letter a further enquiry has been made from the Commissioners of Burdwan and Nuddea and from the Public Works Department in order to obtain the latest information procurable in answer to the enquiries made in your 2nd paragraph.

3. Lieutenant Hills submitted his final report in December 1864. A copy of the letter of the Commissioner of Nuddea, No. 49Ct., dated 18th March 1865, forwarding that report for the information of Government, as well as a copy of the instructions given by the Commissioner to Lieutenant Hills on the 1st September 1864, (No. 127,) is forwarded herewith, although the papers have evidently been seen by the Governor General in Council. From these papers the action taken by the Commissioner on receipt of Lieutenant Hills' report will be seen. The orders passed by the Commissioner were approved by the Lieutenant-Governor on the 3rd July 1865,* and on the 23rd of October the Officiating Commissioner, Mr. Shore, requested sanction to certain expenditure connected with the preventive operations in the 24-Pergunnahs, promising† a further application of a similar kind for the district of Nuddea. The sum applied for (Rupees 4,688-6) was sanctioned on the condition that half the cost of all works undertaken should be defrayed from local subscriptions,‡ and on the 14th April 1866 the Commissioner submitted a report of the sanitary operations which had been carried out in the 24-Pergunnahs up to the 31st October 1865. From this report,§ copy of which is annexed, it will be seen that certain minor conservancy operations were undertaken in the Sub-Divisions of Barrackpore, Dum-Dum, and Baraset, at a total cost to Government of Rupees 1,009-14-6, but that the drainage of the bheel near Halee-shuhur, for which Rupees 800 had been sanctioned, fell through owing to the difficulty of obtaining the services of a competent Engineer.

4. No report had been received from the Commissioner of Nuddea subsequent to that of the 14th April 1866 until the receipt of your letter under acknowledgment, on which further information has been called for in the letters‖ of this Office marginally noted. The reply¶ of the Commissioner to the first of these has been received and is forwarded; it will be seen that in some villages the recommendations of Lieutenant Hills were apparently carried out, while in others they were found impracticable or fell through owing to Lieutenant Hills' transfer, but on the whole the Lieutenant-Governor fears that little or no substantial improvements were effected. I am directed to invite attention to the remarks of the Magistrate of Nuddea in the enclosure to this letter regarding the village of Kanchraparah, in which the Officiating Commissioner concurs. The Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that the apparent necessity for doing something in the face of a visitation, such as the epidemic, has led to the hasty execution of many operations which have been too partial and not directed with sufficient system to effect any permanent benefit, but which have nevertheless involved much harassment of the inhabitants and no considerable expenditure of public and private money.

5. The suggestion made by the Commissioner of Nuddea in the 7th paragraph of his letter of the 18th March 1865, that the excavations at the sides of roads should be so cut out as to be available as drains for the country generally did not meet the approval of the Officers of the Public Works Department. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets that it should have been pronounced impracticable, as the adoption of it would, in a great measure, have met the objection which has been raised* to the obstruction to local drainage caused by roads and railroads. It is said that even where sufficient water-way is left by the construction of numerous culverts for the larger drains and water-courses, still the embankments of these roads necessarily interfere with the natural flow of the drainage in its earlier stages from field to field, before it reaches the larger drains and khals; and that experience has shewn that such obstructions in the earlier stages are even more injurious to health than those in the later stages. It is evident that if the excavations at the sides of the roads could be constructed so as to act as water courses, that the above objections would be entirely met, and the drainage facilitated rather than obstructed. As the difficulties raised by the Superintending Engineer do not appear to be insuperable, His Honor proposes to re-open the question and enquire into its practicability.

* See paragraph 21 of Appendix II. to the Report of the Commissioners in March 1864, being part of a memorandum by Baboo Dignmbur Mitter.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor considers that it is to be regretted that Lieutenant Hills did not carry out more completely the most important of the instructions given to him by the Commissioner—that for which the services of a Professional Officer were more immediately requisite, viz., the preparation of a comprehensive scheme of drainage for the districts attacked by the epidemic. Perhaps his sudden transfer to Assam made this impossible, but it must be admitted that the results of his labors, as they stand, are altogether disproportionate to the benefit which might have been expected from the special appointment of an Engineer Officer; in fact, most of the petty local improvements which were recommended by him, and carried out by the Civil Officers were such as might have been suggested by any person who went round the villages. On Lieutenant Hills' transfer after the submission of his report no successor was appointed. In reply to your enquiry, I am directed to say that the Lieutenant-Governor is decidedly of opinion that the District Engineer† could not possibly prepare such a scheme as is required while carrying on his ordinary duties. His Honor would be glad to appoint an Officer for this purpose, which he regards as of the highest importance, but he is quite unable to do so from the staff now at his disposal, that being already insufficient for the work devolving on it, which has been much increased by the special operations connected with irrigation and embankments in Cuttack and elsewhere. I am therefore directed to request that a special appointment for the purpose may be sanctioned, and an additional Officer of Engineers be placed at the disposal of the Lieutenant-Governor.

† The Lieutenant-Governor presumes that by this is meant the Divisional Executive Engineer. There is certainly no Officer attached locally to each district whose qualifications as an Engineer would make it prudent to trust to him for a report on which it should be intended to base a general scheme of drainage, or to pronounce a definite conclusion as to the effect produced on the drainage of the district by Railway and Road embankments.

7. Simultaneously with the appointment of Lieutenant Hills to report on the drainage, &c., on the east bank of the Hooghly, Mr. Ducas, C. E., was appointed to prosecute similiar enquiries in the Burdwan Division of the western bank of that river. The accompanying report* from the Commissioner of Burdwan will shew that the result of his mission was even more unsatisfactory than that of Lieutenant Hills. What Mr. Ducas, in the 12th paragraph of his report, terms the levelling operations, which he states his inability to carry out, formed perhaps the only part of the work entrusted to him to which any great importance was attached by Government or for which the services of a Professional Engineer were requisite. It will be observed, however, that in this Division particularly, as well as in the country generally, the attention of the authorities was diverted from the epidemic by the cyclone of 1864, which occurred only a few weeks after Mr. Ducas had been appointed. One of the most marked effects of the storm was the almost complete removal of the epidemic fever from all the villages in Hooghly and Burdwan which had previously been suffering from it. Mr. Ducas on the occurrence of the cyclone was at once deputed to Tumlook, and had no further opportunity of making observations. His report, which is of little value, will be found as an enclosure to the Commissioner's letter of the 25th October, while a copy of his journal during his visit will be found attached to the docket of the Public Works Branch of this Office, No. 253C., dated 25th October last. After his departure no successor was appointed. If any Officer be now appointed, as recommended above in the 6th paragraph of this letter, the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that the western as well as the eastern bank of the Hooghly should be included in the field of his enquiries.

* No. 155, dated 25th October.

8. The report of the Commissioner of Burdwan further shews that some clearing operations were also undertaken in that Division, and that in the Commissioner's opinion they were in some instances, especially in the neighbourhood of the town of Hooghly, where they were carried out with great energy and persistence by the Officiating Magistrate, Mr. R. V. Cockerell, productive of good results. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, would observe that on this point a diversity of opinion prevails, and that the epidemic appears to have left simultaneously places where clearing operations had not been carried out and those where they had been; and that it had previously been as impartial in its attacks on towns and villages in which the sanitary conditions had been comparatively good, as on those where they had been the worst.

9. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that the Governor General in Council attaches great importance to the inauguration of a general system of sanitation throughout the affected districts; and it is directed, in the third and subsequent paragraphs of your letter under reply, that steps should be taken on the part of the Local Government to exercise a more thorough supervision over the towns and villages in the interior, dividing them into Circles, and placing each Circle under the charge and inspection of a subordinate Magistrate, who should encamp in his Circle during the cold weather, and visit it frequently at other seasons, till no sanitary improvements remained undone, after which a fresh Circle should be made over to him.

10. In replying to these paragraphs the Lieutenant-Governor directs me in the first place to point out that many of the suggestions contained in them have been already carried out. The recommendations of the Commissioner were translated into Bengalee by the British Indian Association and circulated extensively among the inhabitants of the affected districts. The correspondence marginally noted shews the action of the Government in this respect, and the reply of the Association dated the 30th August last, giving their present views, is deserving of attention. Similarly, I am to observe, that the suggestion that Commissioners and District Officers should hold private and public meetings and personally impress upon the zemindars and villagers the importance of sanitary measures has already been fully acted upon, and that several meetings of this description have been held in the principal places of the affected districts and subscriptions raised for the performance of clearing operations.

Reply thereto, dated 30th August.

11. The remaining suggestion, that of assigning Circles to subordinate Magistrates, and of adopting systematic sanitary measures under their superintendence, was also carried out for some time in 1863-64, especially in the Nuddea Division in which those portions of the 24-Pergunnahs and Nuddea affected by the epidemic were for some time parcelled out into small Circles and worked exactly in the manner suggested.

12. In discussing the desirability of resuming sanitary operations on a larger scale, the Lieutenant-Governor desires to draw a distinction between drainage and other sanitary measures in the interior. Whether well founded or not, the belief is universal among the inhabitants of the localities which have been visited by the epidemic that it has been partially or entirely due to defective drainage caused by a change in the drainage conditions of the country arising from the construction of roads and railroads. Hardly a week passes without some comment to this effect in the native papers, and His Honor is confident that in carrying out any operations for the purpose of ascertaining whether the drainage of the country is or is not at present seriously defective, the Officers of Government will receive the co-operation of the zemindars and other inhabitants. It is on this account the more to be regretted that this important question was so insufficiently attended to by both Engineer Officers who were appointed in 1864. On the other hand, though the Lieutenant-Governor fully admits the very unsatisfactory sanitary condition of Bengalee villages as well in other districts of the Lower Provinces as in those which have been visited by the epidemic, he must remark that hitherto no valid grounds have been shewn for concluding with any confidence either that the affected villages are more overgrown with jungle and rank vegetation than was formerly the case, or that the out-breaks of the epidemic were in any way connected with this cause. He is confident that this is the opinion of the natives themselves in general, and the annoyance, vexation, and expense to which clearing operations, which have to be constantly repeated, expose them, are so great that His Honor is bound to express his conviction that any hasty or indiscriminate efforts on the part of Government Officers to enforce such measures will bring them into total conflict with the feelings and wishes of the population, and will lead to a passive opposition on their part to all sanitary improvements.

13. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that a system, such as that proposed in your letter, of dividing the country into Circles and placing each Circle under a separate Officer, might be easily set on foot by the Local Government, and a certain amount of energy on the part of Local Officers called into play. The more sanguine of these Officers would furnish highly encouraging progress reports, and for a time the most satisfactory results would be confidently anticipated, but His Honor is fully persuaded that while such operations would certainly entailed great expense on the inhabitants and on Government, and would cause very great discontent generally, they would be attended, on any scale on which they can practically be carried out, with hardly any appreciable benefit. This, as far as can be ascertained, is not only the opinion of the late Magistrate of Nuddea, Mr. Grey, and of the Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, as shewn in the enclosures to this letter, but also of the great majority of Local Officers who have had any experience of sanitary measures in the epidemic districts. It must especially be borne in mind that under the conditions of Lower Bengal any clearance of spontaneous vegetation, however thorough, is of the most transient effect only: To cut down the jungle and underwood is worse than useless; to root it up is extremely laborious and costly; and even when uprooted it is replaced by a no less luxuriant growth in the course of one or two rainy seasons. So that the question is not one of thoroughly clearing the villages once for all. To be effectual, active and organized measures must be continuous.

14. To keep up such operations with any appreciable efficiency and in the teeth of the people throughout the length and breadth of the districts which have been affected by the epidemic is, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, impracticable. If they are to be undertaken, His Honor would much prefer to introduce them vigorously and carry them out thoroughly and continuously in a few selected centres of population as an experiment. Even for this purpose the Government must be prepared to incur a heavy expense; it is useless to deny that subcriptions which the people are called upon to raise for this purpose are unwillingly and grudgingly given, and that the effective superintendence of such operations is entirely beyond the powers of the present staff of Officers in the Mofussil whose time is more than fully occupied already by the multifarious duties which are imposed upon them, and which have been so materially augmented of late years. Should His Excellency the Governor General in Council still be of opinion that the work should be undertaken, the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that he may be authorized to entertain a staff of special Officers for the purpose, or for performing the duties of the existing staff who will be drawn away from their ordinary duties.

15. But, for the reasons above indicated, the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that beyond such temporary measures as are called for by local circumstances, no action may be taken on a more extended scale until the general report on the drainage of the country shall have been received from the Officer who may be appointed in accordance with paragraph 2 of your letter under reply. On the appointment of such an Officer, His Honor will carefully prepare instructions for his guidance, which, if desired, may be submitted for the approval of His Excellency in Council, and which drawn up will leave no excuse to the Officer who may be appointed, to neglect that portion of his work—an enquiry into the conditions of the general drainage of the country—which is, in His Honor's opinion, of by far the greatest importance.

16. The further report of the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, in reply to the letter of this Office, dated 17th September, and any further reports of interest on the subject, together with any action taken thereon by the Lieutenant-Governor, will be forwarded for the information of the Government of India hereafter.

From E. C. Bayley, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 867, dated Fort William, the 21st February 1868.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 286, dated the 16th ultimo, with its enclosures, and in reply to communicate the following observations.

2. The papers submitted do not throw any satisfactory light on the causes of the fatal epidemic which ravaged the districts about Calcutta prior to the cyclone of 1864. The cyclone, from the effects of which, in strewing the country with decayed vegetation, an aggravation of the epidemic was apparently apprehended, had the directly contrary effect. The history of the epidemic itself is equally strange. It is shown to have been unaccountably capricious and fitful in its incidence, seizing indiscriminately on towns whose sanitary arrangements were the best, and others where sanitation was quite neglected, and entirely over-leaping tracts which there was every reason to suppose most liable to its attacks.

3. There is, His Excellency in Council thinks, much reason in what the Lieutenant-Governor urges as to the inexpediency of forcing on the people measures of clearance that are evidently inconsistent with the climatic conditions of Bengal. It is not the over-growth of vegetation, which indeed it would be beyond any human contrivance to remove, that has apparently produced the fever or nourished it; the country has always abounded in this luxuriant and rank growth and without bad effects. It is no doubt important that within, and on the borders of, populous villages and towns attention should be directed towards a certain degree of clearance, and towards the avoidance in their vicinity of heaps of decaying matter; and this it is the duty of the Magisterial Officers to urge upon the people. But as to more extensive measures, there is the danger of zealous Officers imposing an amount of vexation and expense upon the people for, possibly, no appreciable benefit whatever. A good Magistrate will seek to carry the people with him, and gradually purge and improve the thickly populated villages and towns.

4. The Governor General in Council is well content that it should be left to the Lieutenant-Governor to decide, in communication with the Sanitary Commissioner about to be appointed for the Lower Provinces, to what extent such work of clearance is expedient and can be safely insisted upon, and what steps are necessary to carry it out.

5. But there is, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, one point still requiring investigation; and that is, whether the system of Roads and Railways has really affected injuriously the drainage of the country. The opinion of Engineers is that it has not; and that, on the assumption that a sufficiency of cross-drainage has been afforded, it could not materially check the natural flow. This opinion, on the assumption noticed, seems to His Excellency in Council to be correct. But the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that there ought likewise to be longitudinal drainage by escape-cuts provided alongside the Road or Railway. It must be but rarely, the Governor General in Council apprehends, that this could be necessary, as almost all Roads and Railways are on raised embankments in Bengal, and though, therefore, depressions and tanks may be formed at the sides containing water, the retention is purely local, and no heaps or transverse embankments are thrown up to impede the longitudinal flow of the water. If, therefore, culverts and bridges are provided in sufficient number across the Road or Railway, there ought to be no impediment to the general drainage of the country. But as the point has been raised, it would be satisfactory to have the facts investigated by a competent Engineer Officer.

6. The Governor General in Council does not see that there would be any advantage in having, at the present moment, a more extended survey of the drainage conditions of Bengal. The subject is too large to be satisfactorily disposed of by the deputation of a single Officer: it is the duty of District Officers and District Engineers to keep their eye upon the general drainage of the country, and to watch where it is defective, and from time to time to suggest plans for remedying what is wrong.

7. The Public Works Department will be moved to provide a suitable Officer to examine and report on the alleged evil effect of the Roads and Railways on the drainage.

Every such certificate shall bear date from the recovery of the fine, and, save as aforesaid, the provisions of this Act relating to certificates shall apply to certificates granted under this section.

Certificate to be produced on demand.

18. Section XIV.
Regulation VII of 1799	A Regulation for enabling proprietors and farmers of land to realize their rents with greater punctuality, for providing against unnecessary delay in the payment of the Public Revenue assessed upon the lands, and for securing the ultimate recovery of arrears of revenue by a sale of the landed property from which it may be due at the close of the year.	Section XXIII, Clauses 2 and 8; and so much of Clause 5 as directs the mode of recovering any deficiency; and Section XXV.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE proposed Bill is in substitution for the one introduced by Mr. Schalch, and which, on the report of the Select Committee, to whom it was referred, has been withdrawn. The alterations in, and additions to, that Bill, which were proposed in Committee, were so numerous and extensive that it was thought better to bring forward an entirely new measure.

It will be in the recollection of the Council that Mr. Schalch's Bill was limited to a definition of the term "tenure," and to providing a procedure for the sale of tenures for recovery of demands recoverable as arrears of revenue. But on consideration of Act XI of 1859, it appeared that that Act stood in need of amendment. It is only by inference, arising on the construction of the 5th and 53rd Sections of that Act, that its provisions apply to the recovery of demands other than revenue in the ordinary sense, or to the sale of estates for arrears other than those accruing upon itself.

Moreover, owing to the absence of definations, doubts have arisen as to the legality of sales, under the Act, of shares of estates and of Lakhiraj tenures.

In the present Bill it is proposed to define, for the purposes as well of Act XI of 1859, as of the present measure, the terms 'proprietor,' 'revenue' 'estate,' 'tenure,' and 'demand.' The Bill repeals the 53rd Section of Act XI of 1859, and makes substantive provision for the sale of estates and tenures for arrears of revenue and other demands other than those accruing in respect thereof.

It is also proposed to place arrears of rent due to Government on the same footing as arrears of revenue in the sense in which that term is ordinarily used. The distinction between what the Government receives from the zemindar, and what it receives as zemindar, does not appear to rest on any sound principle: both alike form part of the public revenue of the estate.

The Bill also makes further provision for the service of notice of sale on the proprietor who has made default, and empowers the Collector, subject to an appeal to the Commissioner, to adjudicate on claims to any lands which it is proposed to sell.

The procedure proposed is that of Act VIII of 1859 for the execution of decrees, substituting for the decree a certificate by the Collector (the form being modified according to the nature of the case), and vesting in the Collector the powers with regard to execution, which under the Civil Procedure Code may be exercised by the Courts.

The Bill also gives a specific enumeration and description of demands arrears of which are now by law recoverable as arrears of revenue, in addition of those specified in Section V of Act XI of 1859.

T. H. COWIE.

The 28th March 1868.

J. PITT KENNEDY,
Asst. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal,
(Legislative Department.)

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 4th April 1868, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon after the 8th of May 1868 :—

A Bill to amend the provisions of Act IX. of 1847, (An Act regarding the assessment of lands gained from the sea or from rivers by alluvion or dereliction within the Provinces of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa.)

Preamble.

Repeal of Section.

I. Section VII of the said Act IX of 1847 is hereby repealed.

Accessions to island to be considered increment thereto.

II. It is hereby declared that when any island shall, under the provisions of Clause 3, Section IV of Regulation XI of 1825 of the Bengal Code, be at the disposal of Government, all lands gained by gradual accession to such island, whether from a recess of the river or of the sea, shall be considered an increment to such island, and shall be equally at the disposal of Government.

Newly thrown up islands to be assessed.

III. Whenever it shall appear to the local Revenue authorities that an island has been thrown up in a large and navigable river liable to be taken possession of by Government under Clause 3, Section IV of Regulation XI of 1825 of the Bengal Code, the local Revenue authorities shall take immediate possession of the same for Government, and shall assess and settle the land according to the rules in force in that behalf, reporting their proceedings forthwith for the approval of the Sudder Board of Revenue, whose order thereupon, in regard to the assessment, shall be final. Provided, however, that any party aggrieved by the act of the Revenue authorities in taking possession of any island as aforesaid, shall be at liberty to contest the same by a regular suit in the Civil Court.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

BY the enactment of Section VII of Act IX of 1847, it was laid down that the power of Government to take possession of islands and churs thrown up in a large and navigable river, liable to be taken possession of by Government under Clause 3, Section IV, Regulation XI of 1825 of the Bengal Code, and to proceed to the assessment and settlement of the same, should be regulated by the results of the inspection of a new map, to be prepared as directed under Section III of that Act.

Under this provision of the law, ten years must elapse after the Government approval of the Revenue Survey of a District, before the Government can take any action to assert its right to the possession or assessment of any island or chur as above described.

In the meantime it has been found that parties, who have no rights at all, take possession of such islands, without the power of any interference on the part of Government, and that on some occasions contentions and disputes have arisen between neighbouring landed proprietors or other parties for the possession of such islands.

To obviate these evils, and to empower Government at once, on the appearance of such an island, to take immediate possession of the same, with a view to its assessment and settlement, the accompanying Bill has been brought in.

Matabhanga ,,
Jellinghee ,,

called collectively the Nuddea Rivers, are published for information, under the provisions of Section XI. of the "Canals' Act, 1864" (No. V., B. L. C.) :—

DRAFT RULES.

I. Every vessel on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers aforesaid shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the Schedule of Rates authorized to be charged by Government, and in the case of boats or vessels which may have entered the rivers unladen or partially laden, and paid toll accordingly, and which have received on board any additional freight; or in the case of boats or vessels regarding the maundage of which any reasonable doubt shall arise; the collecting Officer at any Toll Station shall have power to make a fresh measurement and to demand payment of any additional amount of toll which may be leviable on account of the additional maundage.

II. The tonnage of every laden vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purpose of the "Canals' Act, 1864," and of these Rules, be determined by the following measurements :—

a. The product of half the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

b. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

c. In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any fraction of 100 maunds less than 25 maunds is to be omitted; exceeding 25 and not exceeding 50 maunds is to be charged as 25 maunds only; exceeding 50 and not exceeding 75 maunds is to be charged as 50 maunds only; and exceeding 75 maunds as 75 maunds only. Above one thousand maunds, no fractions of 100 maunds are to be charged.

III. The tonnage of every empty vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals' Act of 1864," and of these Rules, be determined, and tolls shall be levied thereon, under the same rules and by the same system of measurement as above laid down for laden vessels, with the following exception, viz. :—

The measurement of the depth of the vessel shall, in the case of its being unladen, be made from the gunwale to the bottom of the vessel, instead of being taken from the water line, as in the case of a laden vessel.

IV. The measurement of Steamers and Flats shall be taken to be as ascertained by the Master Attendant's Department at Calcutta for the payment by such vessels of the Port dues under the Merchant Seaman's Act, subject to the following deductions :—

a. In the case of Steamers 35 per cent. of the tonnage of the hull, excluding the cabin accommodation altogether, will be allowed as the tonnage of the engine-room, coal-bunkers, &c., and toll will be levied on the remaining 65 per cent. of the tonnage.

b. In the case of Flats 10 per cent. of the tonnage will be allowed for accommodation, &c., and tolls will be levied on the remaining 90 per cent. of tonnage.

V. Owners and Agents of Steamers who may desire to avoid the delay consequent on payment of toll on passing Toll Stations, may give notice to the Board of Revenue of their desire and willingness to pay toll in Calcutta on demand; and, on depositing such amount as the Board of Revenue may determine, they shall be furnished with a certificate which shall entitle the Steamer or Flat to pass any Toll Station without detention; the amount of toll due on account thereof being paid in Calcutta on demand, or deducted from the amount deposited with the Board of Revenue.

VI. In such cases the Commanders of the vessels will leave at the Toll Station a certificate of having passed the Station on such a date. These certificates will be attached as vouchers to the bills, which will be presented for payment to the owners or agents of the vessel by the Officer in Calcutta authorized to receive payment thereof.

VII. Every vessel, except Steamers or Flats, which may pay toll under Rule V., on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers, shall, on paying the prescribed toll, be furnished with a ticket. The ticket shall specify the Station at which it has been issued; the date the vesssel entered the river; the person in charge of the vessel; the maundage of the vessel, and the amount of toll paid.

VIII. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorized Officer of Government employed on the rivers; and they must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. The manjee or owner of every vessel on the Nuddea Rivers not having a ticket on board producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of Section X. of the Canals' Act.

IX. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the particulars can satisfactorily be established, will be granted by Officers in charge of Toll Stations on payment of a fee of one Rupee.

X. No fleet of vessels or rafts lashed together and exceeding 150 feet in length, carrying or floating timbers exceeding in all twenty in number, shall pass into, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers at one time or abreast.

XI. No single vessel or raft carrying or floating a greater number than twelve timbers shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers: provided also that no single vessel or raft carrying or floating more than six timbers shall pass into, or through, any of the aforesaid rivers between the 1st of December of any year and the 1st of July following.

XII. For every vessel or raft, or fleet of vessels or of rafts, and for every timber which shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers in violation of Rules X. and XI, the owner thereof or the person in charge shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, under Section XVIII. of the "Canals' Act, 1864," be punishable by a fine not exceeding Rupees 10 for each vessel, raft, or timber, in excess of the number authorized, besides being subjected to the payment of the prescribed toll on the same. The payment of the toll shall, if necessary, be enforced in the manner described in Section 9 of the "Canals' Act, 1864."

XIII. Refusal to pay the toll on Steamers or Flats, except on those which are furnished with a certificate under Rule V., or evasion or attempt at evasion of such payment, will be dealt with under Sections 9 and 10 of the "Canals' Act, 1864," except that, instead of the vessel being seized and detained as directed in Section IX., any separate cargo or stores, the sale proceeds of which will be sufficient to defray the amount of toll that should be paid, and which can, without inconvenience or danger to itself or to the rest of the cargo, be taken out of the vessel, shall be so taken out and detained, and subsequent proceedings shall be taken thereon as directed in Section IX.

XIV. No vessels whatever, except such as are employed solely in conveying troops on military duty, or are employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the Nuddea Rivers, shall be exempted from paying toll.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 4th April 1868, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon after the 8th of May 1868 :—

A Bill to amend the provisions of Act IX of 1847, (An Act regarding the assessment of lands gained from the sea or from rivers by alluvion or dereliction within the Provinces of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa.)

Preamble.

Repeal of Section.

I. Section VII of the said Act IX of 1847 is hereby repealed.

Accessions to island to be considered increment thereto.

II. It is hereby declared that when any island shall, under the provisions of Clause 3, Section IV of Regulation XI of 1825 of the Bengal Code, be at the disposal of Government, all lands gained by gradual accession to such island, whether from a recess of the river or of the sea, shall be considered an increment to such island, and shall be equally at the disposal of Government.

Newly thrown up islands to be assessed.

III. Whenever it shall appear to the local Revenue authorities that an island has been thrown up in a large and navigable river liable to be taken possession of by Government under Clause 3, Section IV of Regulation XI of 1825 of the Bengal Code, the local Revenue authorities shall take immediate possession of the same for Government, and shall assess and settle the land according to the rules in force in that behalf, reporting their proceedings forthwith for the approval of the Sudder Board of Revenue, whose order thereupon, in regard to the assessment, shall be final. Provided, however, that any party aggrieved by the act of the Revenue authorities in taking possession of any island as aforesaid, shall be at liberty to contest the same by a regular suit in the Civil Court.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

BY the enactment of Section VII of Act IX of 1847, it was laid down that the power of Government to take possession of islands and churs thrown up in a large and navigable river, liable to be taken possession of by Government under Clause 3, Section IV, Regulation XI of 1825 of the Bengal Code, and to proceed to the assessment and settlement of the same, should be regulated by the results of the inspection of a new map, to be prepared as directed under Section III of that Act.

Under this provision of the law, ten years must elapse after the Government approval of the Revenue Survey of a District, before the Government can take any action to assert its right to the possession or assessment of any island or chur as above described.

In the meantime it has been found that parties, who have no rights at all, take possession of such islands, without the power of any interference on the part of Government, and that on some occasions contentions and disputes have arisen between neighbouring landed proprietors or other parties for the possession of such islands.

To obviate these evils, and to empower Government at once, on the appearance of such an island, to take immediate possession of the same, with a view to its assessment and settlement, the accompanying Bill has been brought in.

a. In the case of Steamers, 35 per cent. of the tonnage of the hull, excluding the cabin accommodation altogether, will be allowed as the tonnage of the engine-room, coal-bunkers, &c., and toll will be levied on the remaining 65 per cent. of the tonnage.

b. In the case of Flats, 10 per cent. of the tonnage will be allowed for accommodation, &c., and tolls will be levied on the remaining 90 per cent. of tonnage.

V. Owners and Agents of Steamers who may desire to avoid the delay consequent on payment of toll on passing Toll Stations, may give notice to the Board of Revenue of their desire and willingness to pay toll in Calcutta on demand; and, on depositing such amount as the Board of Revenue may determine, they shall be furnished with a certificate which shall entitle the Steamer or Flat to pass any Toll Station without detention; the amount of toll due on account thereof being paid in Calcutta on demand, or deducted from the amount deposited with the Board of Revenue.

VI. In such cases the Commanders of the vessels will leave at the Toll Station a certificate of having passed the Station on such a date. These certificates will be attached as vouchers to the bills, which will be presented for payment to the owners or agents of the vessel by the Officer in Calcutta authorized to receive payment thereof.

VII. Every vessel, except Steamers or Flats, which may pay toll under Rule V., on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers, shall, on paying the prescribed toll, be furnished with a ticket. The ticket shall specify the Station at which it has been issued; the date the vessel entered the river; the person in charge of the vessel; the maundage of the vessel, and the amount of toll paid.

VIII. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorized Officer of Government employed on the rivers, and they must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. The manjee or owner of every vessel on the Nuddea Rivers not having a ticket on board producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of Section X. of the Canals' Act.

IX. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the particulars can satisfactorily be established, will be granted by Officers in charge of Toll Stations on payment of a fee of one Rupee.

X. No fleet of vessels or rafts lashed together and exceeding 150 feet in length, carrying or floating timbers exceeding in all twenty in number, shall pass into, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers at one time or abreast.

XI. No single vessel or raft carrying or floating a greater number than twelve timbers shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers: provided also that no single vessel or raft carrying or floating more than six timbers shall pass into, or through, any of the aforesaid rivers between the 1st of December of any year and the 1st of July following.

XII. For every vessel or raft, or fleet of vessels or of rafts, and for every timber which shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers in violation of Rules X. and XI., the owner thereof or the person in charge shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, under Section XVIII of the "Canals' Act, 1864," be punishable by a fine not exceeding Rupees 10 for each vessel, raft, or timber, in excess of the number authorized, besides being subjected to the payment of the prescribed toll on the same. The payment of the toll shall, if necessary, be enforced in the manner described in Section 9 of the "Canals' Act, 1864."

XIII. Refusal to pay the toll on Steamers or Flats, except on those which are furnished with a certificate under Rule V., or evasion or attempt at evasion of such payment, will be dealt with under Sections 9 and 10 of the "Canals' Act, 1864," except that, instead of the vessel being seized and detained as directed in Section IX., any separate cargo or stores, the sale proceeds of which will be sufficient to defray the amount of toll that should be paid, and which can, without inconvenience or danger to itself or to the rest of the cargo, be taken out of the vessel, shall be so taken out and detained, and subsequent proceedings shall be taken thereon as directed in Section IX.

XIV. No vessels whatever, except such as are employed solely in conveying troops on military duty, or are employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the Nuddea Rivers, shall be exempted from paying toll.

Report on the Cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling during the month of January 1868.

FROM T. ANDERSON, ESQ., M. D., Superintendent, Botanical Gardens, and in charge of Cinchona Cultivation in Bengal, to the Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 136, dated Botanical Gardens, the 30th March 1868.)

I HAVE the honor to forward the Report on the cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling during the month of January 1868.

Report on the cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling during the month of January 1868.

THE progress made during the month has consisted principally of the preparation of land for the extension of the open air plantations, the cleaning and repairing of roads and bridges, and the making of new roads and bridges to give access to the land being cleaned for the new plantations, and the formation of new nursery beds. 1,400 plants of C. Succirubra, 2,000 of C. Officinalis, and 70 plants of C. Calisaya were added to the open air plantations; 28,230 plants were placed in the open air nurseries; 24,500 cuttings were made during the month, and 1,000 seedlings of C. Officinalis were transferred to nursery beds. The total number of plants and cuttings in all stages of growth was 14,76,378 on the 1st January. 1,000 plants of C. Succirubra were sent to Chittagong.

I have made two alterations in the table of monthly growth, 1*st* by substituting a certain number of plants in the plantations on the Rishap spur for those at the third plantation on the Runghee spur, and, 2*nd*, by entirely excluding C. Pahudiana from the table substituting C. Calisaya.

The Meteorological observations have been discontinued at the third and fifth plantations, and the instruments have been transferred to the Rishap plantation. The weather during the month was characterized by no changes except towards the end of the month, when two showers of rain occurred, but the amount of rain was trifling, only 0·95 of an inch having been recorded.

The mean Temperature and the mean Wet Bulb are derived from the twenty-four hourly Observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1 foot 2 inches, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches, above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

8. In cases where the certificate is so renewed, the new certificate shall bear date from the day of the expiration of the current certificate before granted.

In all other cases the certificate shall bear date from the day of the application made therefor, although it may be delivered at any day subsequent to the application.

Certificate to persons commencing business.

9. If any person after the first day of May in this or any subsequent year commences any profession or trade for the exercise of which a certificate is hereby required, such person not having before taken out any such certificate, the Collector may grant such certificate for the remainder of the current year in which it is taken out, ending on the thirtieth day of April next following the date of the commencement of the said profession or trade, upon payment of such proportional part of the duty thereupon imposed as hereinafter mentioned (that is to say) : —

If the profession or trade be commenced at any time in the quarter expiring on the thirty-first day of July of the current year in which it is commenced the person taking out the certificate shall pay the whole duty imposed thereon.

Officer to grant certificates.

10. Every certificate under this Act shall be granted by, and the sum payable therefor shall be paid to, the Collector of land revenue for the place or district at or in which the person requiring the certificate exercises his profession or trade.

Provided that, if such person exercises his profession or trade at or in more than one place or district, the certificate shall be granted and payment made by and to the Collector for the place or district at or in which the principal place of business in British India of the person requiring the certificate is situate.

Every such certificate shall be signed by the Collector granting it, or by such other officer as he shall from time to time empower in this behalf, and such signature shall be judicially noticed.

Contents of certificate.

11. Every such certificate shall specify—

(1.) The year or portion of the year for which it is granted;

(2.) The name and profession or trade of the holder;

(3.) The sum paid for the certificate; and

(4.) The place or places, district or districts, where the holder intends to exercise his profession or trade until the thirtieth day of April next following; and shall be received in evidence as primâ facie proof of all matters contained therein.

Collector to determine certificate-holders and classes.

12. The Collector shall from time to time determine what persons are liable to take out certificates under this Act, and under which of the classes mentioned in the said schedule every person to whom a certificate may be granted under this Act shall be assessed; and also, in the case of a person commencing a profession or trade, what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of section 9, the date of such commencement.

List of certificate-holders.

13. As soon as may be after the first day of May in every year, the Collector shall prepare a list of the persons liable to take out certificates, under this Act, for the current year, and may from time to time alter and add to the said list.

Such list shall state—

(1.) The profession or trade of each person therein named;

(2.) The class under which he is assessed; and

(3.) The sum payable for his certificate.

The list shall be filed in the Collector's office, and the list or such part or parts thereof as he thinks fit shall be filed in such other places as he directs, and shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable times without the payment of any fee.

Objection to list.

14. Any person named in such list and objecting to the class under which he is assessed, or denying his liability to be assessed under this Act, if he has paid the sum in which he was assessed under this Act, or (where such sum equals or exceeds rupees forty) if he has paid one moiety thereof, may, within thirty days from such payment, apply by petition to the Collector in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class, or altogether to be removed from the list.

Petition of objector.

The petition shall bear a stamp of eight annas, and the statements therein contained shall be verified by the petitioner or some other competent person in manner required by law for the verification of plaints.

Whoever makes a statement in any such petition which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false, or does not believe to be true, shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence in a stage of a judicial proceeding.

Hearing of petition.

15. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and, on the day so fixed, shall hear such petition and pass such order thereupon as to him seems fit.

If the order be in favour of the petitioner, the Collector shall at once refund the value of the said stamp together with the excess paid by the petitioner, or (when the order is that the petitioner's name be removed from the list) the whole sum so paid by him.

Appeal from order on petition.

Any person dissatisfied with any order under this section may, within fifteen days from the date thereof, present an appeal in writing to the Commissioner of Revenue of the Division, whose decision upon such appeal shall be final.

Every appeal preferred under this section shall bear a stamp of one rupee, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the petition, and the Collector's order thereon (both of which may be on unstamped paper), and all other documents (if any) connected with the case.

When the decision on such appeal is in favour of the appellant, the value of the stamp on his appeal, together with the excess paid by him, or (when the decision is that his name be removed from the list) the whole sum so paid shall at once be refunded.

Power to summon persons to give necessary information.

16. The Collector or Commissioner and every officer or person exercising the powers of a Collector or Commissioner under this Act may summon any person whom he thinks able to give evidence for the purpose of enabling him to determine under which of the said classes the petitioner should be assessed, and may examine on oath the person so summoned and the petitioner, and may require each of them to produce any documents in his possession or power relating to the petitioner's profession or trade, or to the amount of the annual profits accruing therefrom.

III.—Penalties

Penalty for not taking out a certificate.

17. If at any time not less than fifteen days after the name of any person has been included in the list mentioned in section 13, the Collector has caused a notice to be served on such person stating the class under which he has been assessed, and requiring him within seven days from the date of the service to take out a certificate and to pay for the same the sum (mentioning it) payable therefor under the provisions of this Act; and if the person so served does not within the period specified in the said notice take out a certificate and pay for the same as required by the said notice, he shall on conviction before a Magistrate be fined twice the sum mentioned in such notice.

On the recovery of the fine from the person so convicted, the Collector shall grant him a certificate without any further payment.

Every such certificate shall bear date from the recovery of the fine, and, save as aforesaid, the provisions of this Act relating to certificates shall apply to certificates granted under this section.

The following Draft Rules, having reference to the undermentioned Navigable Channels, viz.:—

Matabhanga ,,
Jellinghee ,,

called collectively the Nuddea Rivers, are published for information, under the provisions of Section XI. of the "Canals' Act, 1864" (No. V., B. L. C.) :—

Draft Rules.

I. Every vessel on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers aforesaid shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the Schedule of Rates authorized to be charged by Government, and in the case of boats or vessels which may have entered the rivers unladen or partially laden, and paid toll accordingly, and which have received on board any additional freight; or in the case of boats or vessels regarding the maundage of which any reasonable doubt shall arise; the collecting Officer at any Toll Station shall have power to make a fresh measurement and to demand payment of any additional amount of toll which may be leviable on account of the additional maundage.

II The tonnage of every laden vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purpose of the "Canals' Act, 1864," and of these Rules, be determined by the following measurements :—

a. The product of half the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

b. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

c. In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any fraction of 100 maunds less than 25 maunds is to be omitted; exceeding 25 and not exceeding 50 maunds is to be charged as 25 maunds only; exceeding 50 and not exceeding 75 maunds is to be charged as 50 maunds only; and exceeding 75 maunds as 75 maunds only. Above one thousand maunds, no fractions of 100 maunds are to be charged.

III. The tonnage of every empty vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals' Act of 1864," and of these Rules, be determined, and tolls shall be levied thereon, under the same rules and by the same system of measurement as above laid down for laden vessels, with the following exception, viz. :—

The measurement of the depth of the vessel shall, in the case of its being unladen, be made from the gunwale to the bottom of the vessel, instead of being taken from the water line, as in the case of a laden vessel.

IV. The measurement of Steamers and Flats shall be taken to be as ascertained by the Master Attendant's Department at Calcutta for the payment by such vessels of the Port dues under the Merchant Seaman's Act, subject to the following deductions :—

a. In the case of Steamers, 35 per cent. of the tonnage of the hull, excluding the cabin accommodation altogether, will be allowed as the tonnage of the engine-room, coal-bunkers, &c., and toll will be levied on the remaining 65 per cent. of the tonnage.

b. In the case of Flats, 10 per cent. of the tonnage will be allowed for accommodation, &c., and tolls will be levied on the remaining 90 per cent. of tonnage.

V. Owners and Agents of Steamers who may desire to avoid the delay consequent on payment of toll on passing Toll Stations, may give notice to the Board of Revenue of their desire and willingness to pay toll in Calcutta on demand; and, on depositing such amount as the Board of Revenue may determine, they shall be furnished with a certificate which shall entitle the Steamer or Flat to pass any Toll Station without detention; the amount of toll due on account thereof being paid in Calcutta on demand, or deducted from the amount deposited with the Board of Revenue.

VI. In such cases the Commanders of the vessels will leave at the Toll Station a certificate of having passed the Station on such a date. These certificates will be attached as vouchers to the bills, which will be presented for payment to the owners or agents of the vessel by the Officer in Calcutta authorized to receive payment thereof.

VII. Every vessel, except Steamers or Flats, which may pay toll under Rule V., on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers, shall, on paying the prescribed toll, be furnished with a ticket. The ticket shall specify the Station at which it has been issued; the date the vesssel entered the river; the person in charge of the vessel; the maundage of the vessel, and the amount of toll paid.

VIII. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorized Officer of Government employed on the rivers and they must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. The manjee or owner of every vessel on the Nuddea Rivers not having a ticket on board producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of Section X. of the Canals' Act.

IX. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the particulars can satisfactorily be established, will be granted by Officers in charge of Toll Stations on payment of a fee of one Rupee.

X. No fleet of vessels or rafts lashed together and exceeding 150 feet in length, carrying or floating timbers exceeding in all twenty in number, shall pass into, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers at one time or abreast.

XI. No single vessel or raft carrying or floating a greater number than twelve timbers shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers: provided also that no single vessel or raft carrying or floating more than six timbers shall pass into, or through, any of the aforesaid rivers between the 1st of December of any year and the 1st of July following.

XII. For every vessel or raft, or fleet of vessels or of rafts, and for every timber which shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers in violation of Rules X. and XI., the owner thereof or the person in charge shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, under Section XVIII. of the "Canals' Act, 1864," be punishable by a fine not exceeding Rupees 10 for each vessel, raft, or timber, in excess of the number authorized, besides being subjected to the payment of the prescribed toll on the same. The payment of the toll shall, if necessary, be enforced in the manner described in Section 9 of the "Canals' Act, 1864."

XIII. Refusal to pay the toll on Steamers or Flats, except on those which are furnished with a certificate under Rule V., or evasion or attempt at evasion of such payment, will be dealt with under Sections 9 and 10 of the "Canals' Act, 1864," except that, instead of the vessel being seized and detained as directed in Section IX., any separate cargo or stores, the sale proceeds of which will be sufficient to defray the amount of toll that should be paid, and which can, without inconvenience or danger to itself or to the rest of the cargo, be taken out of the vessel, shall be so taken out and detained, and subsequent proceedings shall be taken thereon as directed in Section IX.

XIV. No vessels whatever, except such as are employed solely in conveying troops on military duty, or are employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the Nuddea Rivers, shall be exempted from paying toll.

Circular Order by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

(CIVIL SIDE.)

To all Civil and Sessions Judges and Judicial Commissioners,—(dated Calcutta, the 2nd April 1868.)

SEVERAL of the Zillah Judges appear to have entirely closed their Courts on the Criminal as well as on the Civil Side for the period of the Dusserah Vacation, and to have abstained during the whole of that period from attending to business, receiving or opening communications from the Superior Court, despatching returns which were due, or doing any act whatever of an official kind.

Such a practice is justified by nothing in the law or in the orders of this Court; it causes great inconvenience. The Zillah Judges are, therefore, reminded that, under the Circular Order (Nizamut Adawlut) No. 8, dated 23rd March 1838, issued under the orders of Government, which has never been rescinded, the Court of Session "must never be closed for the despatch of Criminal business except on those days only when a total cessation from all business is necessary and usual;" and moreover that even on the Civil Side of their Courts it does not follow that because there is no sitting of the Court, therefore every official duty is to be suspended.

SIR,

IN conformity with Section 34, Act VI. of 1863, we have the honor to report, for the information of the Chairman of the Justices of the Peace that we have completed the audit of the accounts for the year 1867, and have signed the annual statements specified in the margin.

And we have adopted the same course in respect of the Water Supply Account, and we certify that the statements, now submitted, have been correctly drawn up, in accordance with the entries in the Books.

We have also examined the statement furnished by the Bank of Bengal of the Government Promissory Notes held on the General account, as also those belonging to the Water Supply Account, and find the same correct.

Notice.

PORT CANNING LAND INVESTMENT, RECLAMATION, AND DOCK COMPANY, LIMITED.

IN compliance with a requisition made in writing and dated the 31st day of March last, signed by the required number of Shareholders holding the required number of shares as provided for by Section 46 of the Articles of Association of the Company, which has been submitted to the Directors of the Company requesting them to convene an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Shareholders to consider the Acts of the Directors relative to the late Secretaries and Mr. Schiller, and to decide as to the legality of the action at law now being proceeded with against those gentlemen, and also to consider such other matters as may be brought before them and in accordance with the opinion of the Advocate-General taken upon the question, as to the length of time that should be allowed in the notice convening the Meeting and which opinion is as follows:—

"As I read the 48th Section, the word 'convene' must be taken as equivalant to 'give notice of' and consequently a Meeting need not actually be held within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition; the time named in the notice should be reasonable, and considering that the object of fixing that time at three months would be to give every registered Shareholders an opportunity of recording his vote on a matter of vital importance, I think three months would not be an unreasonable time; it would give the opportunity of communicating with absent Shareholders and obtaining their proxies."

An Extraordinary General Meeting of the Shareholders is hereby convened to be held at the Registered Office of the Company, No. 6, Bankshall Street, Calcutta, on Friday, the 17th day of July next, for the purposes stated in the above requisition.

By Order of the Directors,

Notice.

Government Bullock Train.

It is hereby notified for general information that the Government Bullock Train in the N. W. Provinces and the Punjab will be reopened on the 16th instant (April) for the conveyance of troops, stores, and passengers, and will be available to the public at the same rates at those charged to Government Departments.

2. The subjoined list (marked A) of Bullock Train Agencies includes those already established, as well as the Agencies to be opened on the 16th. The Agencies are all under the charge of the Post-Masters or Deputy Post-Masters of the places named.

3. Packages can be forwarded either prepaid or bearing between any of the Offices mentioned in the list.

4. The rates of charge can be ascertained by reference to any of the Agencies. The rates for some of the principal lines will be found in the subjoined Statement (marked B.)

5. Packages may be forwarded prepaid by rail to any Government Bullock Train Office on the line of Railway for onward transmission. Thus a person sending a package from any station on the E. I. Railway line to (say) Simla may send it himself prepaid by rail to Delhi, addressing it to the care of the Government Bullock Train Agent at Delhi, and forwarding to him by letter (which should be registered) the Railway receipt together with instructions to forward the package bearing to its destination. If the package above referred to, be sent from a Railway Station where the Government maintains a Bullock Train Agency (vide list of Agencies marked A) the sender may of course book it (prepaid or bearing) for the whole distance, inclusive of the Railway transit; but it is always in his option to book it himself by rail to the Government Agency from which it has to be forwarded by road: and this course will be less expensive to the senders of those classes of goods which are conveyed by Railway at privileged rates on declaration of contents.

6. Similarly, a person wishing to send a package from (say) Indore to Patna, or any other Railway Station at which the Government does not maintain a Bullock Train Agency, can book it prepaid by Bullock Train to Agra, sending instructions to the Government Bullock Train Agent there to forward it bearing to Patna by rail. The Railway receipt will be sent by Post "bearing."

7. Passengers proceeding by Bullock Train will be booked only for road transit, and will be charged at the rate payable for 3 maunds of goods. No charge will be made for children in arms under 2 years of age when travelling with their parents or guardians. Children from 2 to 12 years of age will be charged half the fare of an adult. Passengers by Bullock Train will be allowed 20 seers of baggage free of charge; no baggage allowance is made for children under 2 years of age who travel free: for children from 2 to 12 years of age paying half rates the baggage allowance will be half, i. e., 10 seers.

8. Extra baggage can be sent as goods at the ordinary rates.

9. The fares of passengers as well as the charge for extra baggage must be paid in advance.

10. The following conditions will be observed in calculating charges, viz.:

(1). No package, however small, will be charged at a less rate than half a maund, but a despatch consisting of more than one package, made by the same party and bearing the same address, will be charged according to aggregate weight, with a booking fee of 2 annas on each package in addition.

(2). Fractional parts of a maund below half a maund will be charged as half a maund, and above half a maund as a maund.

(3]. Light packages, may at the discretion of the Government Agent, be charged by measurement at the rate of 3½ cubic feet per maund, and the hire for their carriage must be pre-paid.

(4). No package will be conveyed between any two stations for less than 4 annas.

11. Articles liable to injury by pressure or by the usage to which they are necessarily subjected in the process of loading, unloading, &c., should be securely packed in substantial cases, and those liable to injury by damp or wet should be placed in water-proof coverings.

12. The address of packages must be in English, and so written or painted as not to be easily rubbed off.

13. Packages which have to be conveyed over the lines marginally noted (where carts are used instead of wagons) must not exceed 5½ feet in square by 3½ feet in depth.

Colgong to Punkabaree and intermediate Stations Umballa to Kalka and Simla and other Hill Stations in that direction. Goona to Indore. Jullunder to Beeas. All lines north of Lahore.

Government wheeled vehicles, such as Artillery Ambulances, will be charged for as stores; each two-wheeled vehicle being reckoned as equivalent to 10 maunds and each four-wheeled vehicle as equivalent to 20 maunds.

14. The charges for Troops will be regulated by the number of carts (two-wheeled)* or wagons (four-wheeled) supplied on requisition: the charge for each wagon being reckoned at the rate payable for 30 maunds of goods, and the charge for each cart at the rate payble for 15 maunds. The wagons or carts so engaged may be filled with troops and baggage in such way as is convenient, subject only to the condition that the aggregate weight shall not exceed 30 maunds for a wagon and 15 maunds for a cart and to any local regulations in respect of weight on Hill roads or bridges.

* On some roads wagons are used, on others carts are used; and the supply will be furnished accordingly.

15. Whole wagons or carts may be engaged for Government passengers on the same conditions as for troops.

16. Troops sent singly or in small numbers as passengers will be charged at the same rates as passengers, and will be allowed to carry as free baggage the authorized kit.

17. Government Officers must pay for the use of the Bullock Train in the same way as private parties; but troops, passengers or goods, forwarded under a requisition signed by an authorized Officer, will be forwarded and delivered without actual payment, subject to adjustment with the Offices of Account in Calcutta.

The only Officers authorized to sign requisitions as above are—

Chief Officer at any Station of the .. { Commissariat Department. Ordnance Department. Quarter-Master General's Department.

Station Staff Officer—where there is no Officer of the Quarter-Master General's Department.

Military Store-keeper ... Calcutta.

Clothing Agent ... Calcutta.

18. Requisitions from these Officers must contain a full specification of the number of packages and the address of each, the number of passengers and their destination, and the number of carts or wagons (as the case may be) required for troops, with the station of address.

RECOVERY OF ARREARS OF REVENUE.

THE ADVOCATE GENERAL moved that the Bill "to make further provision for the recovery of arrears of land revenue and public demands recoverable as arrears of land revenue," be read in Council. He said, he proposed simply to go through the principal Sections of the Bill, explaining, as briefly as he could, the object in introducing the measure in the present form, and not repeating what he had the honor of laying before the Council when he had obtained leave to bring in the Bill. It would be remembered that he had pointed out the Act XI of 1859, the amendment and explanation of which was the principal object of this Bill, was defective in several respects, and that it did not give a definition of some terms which stood practically in need of definition. In the definitions which he had given in the Interpretation Clause of the Bill, he had endeavoured to meet two principal objects, first, by such a specification of the meaning of certain terms as should remove uncertainty as to the construction of Act XI of 1859, ; and secondly, by extending the effect of the provisions of that Act, and by doing away with the distinction, which certainly had been supposed to exist, though, according to his notions of the law, it never really could have existed, between what was ordinarily understood as revenue payable to Government, and what was understood as rent in the case of lands held directly from Government. With reference to the second object, the abolition of the distinction between revenue and rent, it was provided that the term "proprietor" should include any farmer or tenant by whom any land was held directly under Government, or by whom any demand was payable to Government. Then, the definition of the word "revenue" had reference to the peculiar form of Act XI of 1859, which, not containing any definition of terms, did in an indirect and inferential way deal with certain public demands, such as tuccavee, and money advanced for the making and repairing of embankments, reservoirs, or water courses, and gave the same absolute power of sale, and title under that sale, in respect of such demands, as in the case of estates sold for arrears of revenue proper. That was why the term "revenue" was extended to those demands, instead of including them with other demands which formed the principal subject of the later Sections. It appeared doubtful, under the present law, as to whether or not shares of estates could be sold for arrears of revenue due on them. To make it quite clear that that power was intended to be given by the Act, the term "estate" was so defined as to place persons, who desired that they should be separately assessed,

[THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL explained that the intention was distinctly laid down, that he should be considered the owner of the tenure for the purposes of the Act and dealt with as such.]

KOOMAR HARENDRA KRISHNA continued.—The next point which he wished to refer to was Section 18. According to that Section, it would be found that the Collector, after he had filed the certificate of arrear demand in his office, was to consider himself to be the plaintiff, and the defaulter the defendant. Then, concerning the claims of third parties to the estate or tenure that was to be sold, the Collector was to adjudicate those claims, and his finding was to be considered as a decretal order of a Civil Court. He did not mean to say that the Collector, in deciding his own case, would not exercise his best judgment with equity and good conscience; but what he meant was, that if the two functions were kept separate—if the Collector had had not to execute his own decree, and had no judicial powers—it would be better for the country. He thought the time had come when the functions of the executive and the judicial authorities should be separated as far as possible, and he thought he was not mistaken in his belief that the Government had already admitted that principle.

He did not wish it to be understood that he was opposed to the Bill. As regards the realization of revenue by the sale of defaulting estates for revenue proper, he thought the present Bill was an improvement on Act XI of 1859; but as regards the realization of rent, and the enforcement of the other demands set forth in the interpretation of the word "demand," he thought the Bill was objectionable. He had already, in a previous speech, when Mr. Schalch introduced his Bill, stated that it was perhaps not founded on sound principle, that before obtaining a decree, the Government, in cases where it stood only as a zemindar, should enforce the realization of its own demands by the sale of the tenures with regard to which arrears were due.

BABOO PEARY CHAND MITTRA said, the frank and candid spirit in which the hon'ble and learned Advocate General concluded his remarks must be a source of satisfaction to the Council. We all participated in the desire that the Gouernment should not be put to any great inconvenience or trouble in recovering its just demands; but it was also necessary for us to see that the mode by which that recovery was effected was just to itself and to the community. In the Bill different kinds of demands were classed with demands for arrears of land revenue, and definitions to that effect had been introduced. Some of those demands, as observed by the learned Advocate-General, were thus classed in the existing law; but it was a matter for consideration whether the sanction of existing law could justify what might not be strictly right. The great principle of jurisprudence was that there should be a wide distinction between the prosecutor and the Judge, and that the two offices should not be united in one. In the Bill before us, in Section 18, the Collector was justly described as plaintiff or agent on behalf of Government. He instituted the suit, and his certificate was held to be equivalent to a decree in favor of Government. Then appeals lay to the Collector or the Commissioner; but both were agents of the Government. It was immaterial whether the Government was to be considered in the same light as a private zemindar, or as Government; but it was material that t should not ignore judicial enquiry. The Bi intents and purposes did ignore judicial e when the mere certificate of the Collect sufficient to establish his claim, though th ficate, which was generally prepared by the tor's establishment, might, in nine cases ten, not be right. The Section conferred Collector most arbitrary power, and was li lead to much evil. He (Baboo Peary Mittra) doubted whether legislation of character was to be found in the English tinental Codes, and he thought it was a retrograde move. It appeared to be spec exceptional on behalf of the Government country, and it interfered with the liberty people, inasmuch as it ignored judicial inv tion. Any parallel to this legislation was s to be found. This part of the Bill was th deserving of serious consideration, and he h the least doubt that the hon'ble and learned of the Bill would see it corrected.

MR. ALCOCK said, he wished to ask the Advocate General a question with reference exceptions to Section 12. As he understo Section, ryots paying other than fixed rents be able to set the proprietors of estates at d He considered that the purchaser of an es a revenue sale should possess summary powe should be able to eject ryots holding at oth fixed rents.

BABOO RAMANATH TAGORE said, he had th objection to the Bill that he had to the one this Bill had succeeded. As far as the real of revenue was concerned, he had said befo again said, that Government should ex summary power. But as to other demand ticularly those mentioned in the 6th, 7th, 8t Clauses of Section 1, he would place the G ment on the same footing as a private indi It would indeed be very hard if the proper persons who became surety for others was to be sold without a regular investigation Court of Justice. It was true that the Colle was to be empowered to investigate such c but that Officer being an interested party, it scarcely to be expected that his decision wou satisfactory. Besides, there was another diffi in the way of sureties. Suppose, for instan tehsildar, or treasurer, or mohurrier embez large sum of money, and absconded wi making good the defalcation, the surety wou placed in a very disadvantageous position, much as he would have no information for ing to a satisfactory settlement with the Colle Either the surety must pay down what the lector might demand, or allow his property sold summarily to the highest bidder, and suffer imprisonment in case of deficiency.

The learned Advocate General, in orde justify the Bill, had stated at the last me that the power which the Bill conferred on Government was not a new power, and that vernment had exercised such power since 1799. (Baboo Ramanath Tagore) did not wish to that such a power had existed, but he thought Council should take into consideration the when that power was conferred on the Gov ment. In 1799 the Government of the cou was in the hands of the East India Company, at that time the public and the press had little influence over the Government. The vernment did what they liked, and accordi made laws just to subserve their own purposes. But now the times had been very much changed. The press and public opinion was a protective power over the actions of the Government; and any law which the Legislature might enact under-went the severe criticism of the public and the press, and its merits and demerits were freely discussed; so that what was held to be justification of the law in 1799, might not be held to be a justification now, unless the law were found to be consonant to sound principles.

He would now say one or two words with regard to the details of the Bill. He fully agreed with the hon'ble member on his right (Koomar Harendra Krishna) that the definitions in the Bill were somewhat arbitrary, and required much correction; he would not therefore occupy the time of the Council in referring to them, but would leave their consideration to the Select Committee, who would no doubt do justice to them. He (Baboo Ramanath Tagore) also agreed with the hon'ble member on his left (Baboo Peary Chand Mittra) that Section 18 would give unlimited power to the Collector without any check or control. The Section provided that—

"Every certificate made in pursuance of the last preceding Section shall have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court, and the Collector, by whom such certificate shall have been filed, shall be deemed to be the plaintiff, and the person named as debtor therein shall be deemed to be the defendant."

According to that Clause, the Collector was the plaintiff; he would also be the Judge; he would, moreover, be the Executive Officer; in fact, he would be all-in-all. Now in his (Baboo Ramanath Tagore's) opinion such a coalition of power was incongruous, and would make the people form an unfavorable opinion as to the motives and intentions of the Government. He would therefore propose that a Section be introduced to the effect that if a person was dissatisfied with the decision of the Collector, he might go to the Judge, and have the matter properly sifted.

As regards the 19th Section, it gave the Collector power to seize all the property of a defaulter. This would appear to be a very hard proceeding towards those who had become debtors to Government; because, if a certificate was for Rupees 300 or Rupees 400, for such a small sum the whole of the property of the defaulter, which might extend to two or three lakhs of Rupees, might be seized, and he would thereby lose his credit, and not be able to negociate or mortgage that property. That would be a great hardship, and he (Baboo Ramanath Tagore) trusted that the learned Advocate-General would take this matter into consideration in Committee.

He would now proceed to Section 20, which gave a person the power of petitioning the Collector, if aggrieved by the issue of a certificate. Looking to the mischievous tendency of this Section, he would suggest that it should be so altered as to give the person aggrieved power to petition the Collector before the certificate was issued. Because what would be the use of giving the defaulter the power of going before the Collector, when his character and credit had already been injured by the seizure of his property. It was just as when a house was on fire, and nearly burnt to ashes, and a fire-engine was placed in the hands of the unfortunate owner, after the whole mischief had been done, for the purpose of quenching the raging element.

In conclusion, he would observe that if this Bill were passed without material alterations, the functions of the Civil Court, so far as Government demands were concerned, would entirely cease; and would that, he asked, be just to the subject?

Those were some of the objections to the Bill, and he trusted that they would be taken seriously into consideration before the Bill was passed.

Mr. Dampier said, from what had passed, he had no doubt that the Bill would be referred to a Select Committee. He therefore only proposed to make a few suggestions for the consideration of the learned Advocate General in Committee, and should leave him to deal with the objections that had been advanced. He should leave him to explain that the definition of the term "revenue" in the Bill did exactly fulfil the conditions of the construction put upon it by the learned Chief Justice in the judgment which had been referred to. He (Mr. Dampier) would, however, read another passage out of the same judgment which had just caught his eye—

"In the Regulations prior to the decennial settlement, no doubt the word 'revenue' included rent, not because the same word was intended to refer to two different things, but because at that time the rents of lands were Government revenue."

In other words, the rent paid by the tenant became revenue when it was paid directly to Government without the intervention of a zemindar; and that was precisely the construction put upon the word "revenue" in the Bill.

In the definition of the word "estate," he hoped the Committee would carefully consider the last Clause. It said that the word meant any land, or share in land, subject to the payment of an annual sum to Government, or in respect of which a separate account might, in persuance of Section 10 or Section 11 of Act XI of 1859, or of any other law or usage, have been opened. The definition, he thought, would require careful revision, for it was obvious that separate accounts of shares in estates might be opened for other purposes than those of the Collector, and by order of other authorities; as for instance, by order of the Civil Courts. But what was meant in the Bill was that shares recorded under the special provisions of Sections 10 and 11 of Act XI of 1859, and no others should be considered estates within the meaning of this Act.

Then, by the 2nd Section of the Bill, Section 53 of Act XI of 1859 was repealed. The Committee would have to consider whether Section 54 should not go with it.

It appeared to him that the 6th Section of the Bill, which provided for the personal service of notice at the place of residence of every proprietor of the estate, would really be impracticable to carry out. In a Note which had been printed as an annexure to the Bill, he had given his reasons for that opinion, which he hoped the Select Committee would consider. In many estates in Behar—often estates of small area—there were a number of proprietors, some 50 or 60, borne on the Register of the Collector. The Collector had no cognizance of any proprietors of the estate, except those whose names were borne on his Register. It would be difficult enough to serve each one of those 50 or 60 proprietors with the notice required, if they were alive and to be found; but out of that number some 25 had, perhaps, been dead for years; and others, whose names were not on the Register, had succeeded to their rights. He thought, therefere, that it would be unwise to insist on such personal service on each person. In the Note to which he had already referred, he had stated that if the notice were served at the Sub-Divisional Kutcherry, and the Kutcherry of the proprietor, which was well known throughout the estate, the notice would be sure to reach the proprietor. Whatever might be the provisions which the Select Committee might think proper to make, he would suggest that some Clause be introduced which would make it unnecessary for the Collector to stay giving the certificate of finality of sale, unless the omission proved to have taken place in the preliminary proceedings, were such as materially to injure the interests of the proprietor. If such a provision were not introduced, the legality of sales would constantly be contested on trifling and immaterial informalities; for instance, the Bill required that notices be posted in every Moonsiff's Court within the jurisdiction of which any portion of the estate was situated. One field of the estate might be situated in some Moonsiff's Court of which the Collector had no knowledge; and if the law were inflexible as to that being done, it would be a valid objection to the sale being final.

In Section 9 it was provided that it should be lawful for proprietors of tenures and of farms held for terms of years to cause the same to be registered according to the provisions of Act XI. of 1859, although the same may not be held immediately of the proprietors of estates. When the learned Advocate General had talked over the Bill with him (Mr. Dampier), that provision was not discussed, and he (Mr. Dampier) did not know on what grounds it had been introduced. If the Section stood, it would be necessary to make some further provision, because in Act XI. of 1859 the Sections concerning registration, whether common or special, recognised only the recorded proprietors of estates; that was to say, notice was to be served on them before the tenure was protected, and the recorded proprietor only was to be given an opportunity of making objections; but it was evident that if a tenure of the third degree was to have similar protection, notice must be given to the proprietors of the tenures of the second degree, as well as to those of the first degree. Detailed Procedure Clauses would be necessary.

By the 11th Section no such notice was required as was prescribed by the 6th Section. The two should be uniform.

In the 21st Section he would ask the Select Committee to lay down clearly and specifically whether the revenue authority above the Commissioner was to exercise any, and if so, what power, of interference on appeal, or by way of revision.

The 23rd Section provided that whenever a Collector should have sold any tenure or farm, he should register the same in pursuance of the provisions of Act XI. of 1859. It was, he thought, absolutely necessary to specify the Section under which the registration was to be effected, because under the Act there were two kinds of registration; and he was not quite sure that the registration here intended was a registration under Act XI. of 1859 at all. If it was, it would necessary to specify whether the Section refe to common or special registry.

With those remarks he would support the tion for the reading of the Bill.

The Advocate General said, he did not derstand that any opposition was offered to motion for the reading of the Bill, alth observations, more or less strong, had been on certain provisions of the Bill, and with re to certain principles said to be involved in measure. He was glad that those opposing had been ventilated at this early opportunity, he was glad also to think that those views w be fully represented in the Select Committee the Bill, which he should presently move to point. He would content himself now making a very few observations on the critic on the Bill which had been made by hon'ble m bers who were opposed to some of its provisi The suggestions made by the hon'ble mem opposite (Mr. Dampier) would receive attent in Committee.

Exception had been taken to the definition the terms "proprietor" and "revenue," and was said, particularly with regard to the definit of the term "revenue" that it was inconsist with the existing state of the law as laid down the decision of the learned Chief Justice of High Court. He was perfectly aware that strictness it was so, and the sole object of definition given in the present Bill was to obv the difficulty and to remedy the confusion ca by the wrong use of terms on which the C Justice had remarked in the decision, quotati from which had been made. The distinct ob of the definition was to get rid of all the diffic ties pointed out in that decision, and to establ what he (the Advocate General) conceived the uni peachable principle existing prior to the permane settlement, that there should be no distinctio between rent payable to the general public fo the occupation of land belonging to them, an any other branch of the public revenue; and t say that that was inconsistent with the use of terms in existing Acts, was merely saying that those Acts made distinctions which in prin ciple were unfounded and which ought no longe to be continued. Advantage was attempted t be taken of an expression in a Section of the Bil to the effect that the Collector was to be cons dered as plaintiff, and that the debtor in arre was to be considered as the defendant; and the we had the usual common-place that the Collec tor was deciding his own case. There could b nothing more futile than to make that objectio to the present Bill. The simple reason for th provision referred to was a mere matter of for with reference to the application of the provi sions of Act VIII. of 1859, in order that where that Act spoke of the plaintiff and defendant, i might be known who were the parties referred to. The Collector was to be judge, not in his own case —it was idle to call it his own case—but whether or not there were arrears of revenue or of other demands due; to be judge whether or not the holding of the person against whom the certificate was to have the effect of a decree of Court should be sold or not. There was no question of the separation of the executive and judicial functions. The Collector was to be judge for this reason, that he (the Advocate General) could not conceive that there should be a greater curse to the country than that, after the revenue authorities had ascertained, in the exercise, he would venture to say, of the best of their means and knowledge and judgment, that arrears did exist, there should be an appeal to the Civil Court. He was sure, from his limited experience in Moffussil courts, that the result of such a system would be, that everybody who could, would resort to litigation, not only for the purpose of avoiding the payment of just claims, but for setting up collusive hostile claims by means of the litigation which the system would open out. He was totally opposed to allowing any portion of the investigation to be made in the Civil Court, which would result in the withdrawal of the attachment and execution by sale of the revenue authorities. He was said that the principle under which the Bill proceeded was unknown in England or any country in Continental Europe. He could only say that any one conversant with the existing system of law in England, in France, and, he believed, also in Prussia, with regard to the collection of the public revenue, who would compare their stringency with the most stringent and arbitrary provisions of this Bill or of Act XI. of 1859, would see that the provisions of the law as it existed here, and in this Bill, were leniency itself as compared with the existing system in Europe. When you consider that in England a person liable to the payment of duties, could not only have his property sold, but also the property of his debtor, and the property of the debtor of that debtor, and of that debtor's debtor, and so on to the fourth degree, the provisions of the present Bill, and of the Act which it proposed to amend were, as it were, nothing compared to the stringent, not to say too stringent, law which existed for the protection of public demands in England and elsewhere. To take another branch of the revenue in this country. Was any objection ever made to the system established under the Consolidated Customs' Act of 1863? The Collector declared that such and such articles were liable to such and such duties. Was there an appeal to the Civil Court? There was an appeal to the Board of Revenue, and an ultimate appeal to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. That was provided, because it would be impossible that the business of the country could otherwise be carried on. He (the Advocate General) was positive that the business of the country could not be carried on any where if the decision of the Revenue authorities in matters relating to the collection of the public revenue, were to be referred to regular litigation in the Civil Court. It would not only be totally unnecessary for the protection of public debtors, but quite incompatible with the due protection of the public revenue.

As to what was said as to the power of attaching all the property of a defaulter in respect of what might be a small demand, and the uselessness of giving him an appeal after he had lost his credit, it appeared to him (the Advocate General) that there was very little force in that objection. He could not see how a man's credit could be affected by such a proceeding; his simple remedy was to pay the demand, and thereby obtain the release of his property. In giving the power of attaching all the property of a defaulter, it was not intended to give the power of disposing arbitrarily of the whole property for the recovery of a small demand. That must be left to the discretion of the revenue authorities, and any Collector who abused the descretion vested in him would no doubt fall under the censure of the Government.

He had made those observations on what had been said, more with the view of further discussion in Committee, than as desiring to be understood that the objections made to-day were finally disposed of. There had been great difficulty in the preparation of the Bill; and there would no doubt be still greater difficulties to overcome; and he hoped that the time which had been occupied to-day had not been lost. The difference of cost to the parties most interested, that was to say, the debtors to Government, which had resulted from the system of judicial determination and the system of decision by the executive Revenue authorites, was such as to dispose of the case. Statistics had been prepared which showed the result. Under the system which the Bill proposed to restore, namely, the determination of questions of arrears of revenue, and other demands due to Government, by the Revenue authorities, the cost in any one case did not exceed 12 annas. But, according to the system experimentally introduced, he found, from a tabular statement before him, that the charges were as much as this: the cost of stamp on the institution of the suit and the peon fees before and after decree, in small holdings up to 10 Rs. was Rs. 2-1; in holdings up to Rs. 15 the cost was Rs. 2-9; in holdings up to Rs. 20, it was Rs. 3-1; and in holdings to Rs. 50, Rs. 6-1; that was to say, the cost amounted to a tax of very nearly 10 per cent. But, in the determination of all cases by the executive authorities, the cost was no more than 12 annas. On every ground, therefore, even for the benefit of the parties whom it was sought to benefit by the substitution of the judicial for the revenue authorities, it was quite clear that it was better that the system of the Bill should be adopted.

There was only one other point to which he would advert, namely, the question put by the hon'ble member on his right (Mr. Alcock) with regard to the effect of sales as respects tenures under Clause 2 of Section 12. He should mention, generally, that the effect which that Section proposed to give to sales under the Bill of tenures, was precisely the same, neither more nor less, than the effects under Act XI of 1859 of sales of estates. What the second Clause provided was, that where a tenure had existed from the time of the permanent settlement, the sale of the estate, or of the superior tenure, out of which that tenure was created, should not have the effect of forfeiting the tenure, but should simply enable the purchaser, under the sale, to have the same right of enhancement of rent as he would have had under the existing law; that was to say, it would put the purchaser in the same position in which he had been since the permanent settlement.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. Trevor, Mr. Thompson, Baboo Ramanath Tagore, Koomar Satyanand Ghosaul, and the mover.

ASSESSMENT OF ALLUVIAL LANDS.

Mr. Thompson moved that the Bill "to amend the provisions of Act IX of 1847 (an Act regarding the assessment of lands gained from the sea or from rivers by alluvion or dereliction within the Provinces of Bengal, Behar, and Orrisa)," be read in Council. In doing so, he said the Bill was embraced under three Sections, and contained, he thought, all that was requisite in the way of legislation to meet the object in view. That was by the repeal of Section 7 of Act IX of 1847, to remove the obstacles which at present interfered with the right of Government to take possession of churs and islands in large and navigable rivers, such as those described in Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825. He had endeavoured to show the Council on the last occasion, when he had the honor of moving for leave to introduce the Bill, that the law, as it stood, operated with hardship and injustice as against the Government, by compelling it to wait for the preparation of a new map, which could not take place till ten years had elapsed from the previous survey of a District; and that in that interval parties who had no claim or right or title to such islands, were in the habit of taking possession of the same,—an act which Government were powerless to avert or to stay.

He had thought it best, with the object proposed, to repeal by the 1st Section of this Bill the whole of Section 7 of Act IX of 1847, and by the 3rd Clause to re-enact it with such modifications as would empower the Government, on the appearance of such an island, to assert its right to take possession of the same, with a view to its subsequent disposal or settlement, irrespective of the proceedings of the revenue survey. It seemed to him that the Bill might have stopped there. The provisions of Act IX of 1847, and the declaration of the rights which Regulation XI of 1825 contained, would be sufficient for the adjustment of any disputes which might arise in suits before the Civil Courts. It would be found, however, from one of the annexures to this Bill, (he alluded to the report of Mr. Grote, the senior member of the Board of Revenue, whose opinion on all revenue questions was entitled to the greatest respect) that in advocating the repeal of Section 7 of Act IX of 1847, which this Bill proposed to do, he went on to suggest that, if at any time within three years of the Government occupation of an island, its lands should stretch out and connect itself with the mainland, the whole should be surrendered to the riparian owner. His remarks were as follows:—

"It would be expedient to re-assert the right of Government at once to occupy islands of all kinds. River islands may, on coming in contact with the shore, be unobjectionably settled with the riparian proprietor whenever the contact takes place. It is the public assessment on them, and not the proprietary profits, which Government is bound to secure. Under the present ruling, islands occupied as such by Government on the results of its new map, will be assessed by the periodical Settlement Officer, but should they stretch toward, and connect themselves with the river bank, say three years after the Settlement, they become part of the estate of the riparian proprietor, whose revenue will not be subject to adjustment till the next survey."

He (Mr. Thompson) did not see the good policy of such a proceeding, nor could he discover upon what principles it was sought to be established. It was undoubtedly opposed to the provisions of Regulation XI of 1825, which regulated the determination of claims to accretions of land, on the broad general principle that lands gained by gradual accession from a recess of the river or of the sea should be considered to be an increment to the tenure of the person to whose esta were attached.

It appeared to him (Mr. Thompson) tha or island, such as that described in Regulat of 1825, when taken possession of by Gover should be in the same position as any other of Government borne on the rent-roll District; and that all accretions to it gradual retirement of the river or the sea, be equally at the disposal of Government, principles laid down in Regulation XI of 18 lands accreting to the property of a riparian holder are an increment to his tenure. He observe that this view of the law, which he embodied in the 2nd declaratory Section of Bill, had the support of more than one decisio the highest Court of Judicature in this countr

Of course cases of difficulty would arise, w might require a reference to Courts of law. he did not see that additional legislation to n any such difficulties was necessary. The case suggested itself of accretions simultaneously tending from the main land to the island, from the island towards the shore. He did see that any legislative definition or declarat would meet the case better than what the law it existed, provided, viz., that all lands gained accretion should be an increment to the land which it attaches. In the case referred to, would be a matter to be decided by evidence b far an admitted accretion belonged to one side the other. There was, in the reports of ca decided by the High Court, one which direc applied this rule in a similar difficulty, where delivering judgment, the learned Chief Just adverting to the rule that a person in possess of land was primâ facie entitled to it and to increments to it, went on to observe that—"it might be a very difficult question to determine this case, what portion of the land attached itself as increment by gradual accretion to A's property; a what portion to lands in the possession of B. But t difficulty does not supersede the necessary. The Plai tiff could only succeed on the strength of the evidenc which he could adduce on this point."

Another question had been suggested that, sup posing an island should not be taken possession by Government on its first appearance, and tha in the course of a few years, it was found in th occupation of a person who had no right beyo the right of possession, could Government recov possession then? In such a case if, at the time the Government's assertion of its title, it was island separated by water which was fordable, if it was attached in any way to the mainlan Government would have lost its right by n having taken action at once when the chu appeared. The status of the island, when Govern ment asserted its title, would be the guide decision as to its right.

It was necessary to say that the present Bi only referred to churs or islands thrown up in rivers or in the sea, and in no way affected any other parts of Act IX of 1847. Nor would it apply to cases where a river by a sudden change in its course intersected an estate, thus forming an island of any portion of its lands. The land here, on being clearly recognized, would still remain the property of its original owner, as by Clause 2, Section 4, Regulation XI of 1825.

Baboo Peary Chand Mittra said, the principle on which the claim of Government was based appeared equitable. But there was one remark which he wished to submit with reference to the ection of the Bill, which provided that any aggrieved by the act of the local revenue rities in taking possession of any island, l be at liberty to contest the same by a r suit in the Civil Court. He would ask her it would not be better that any person ieved by the act of the Collector or the Commoner should have the option of carrying his vance before the higher revenue authority, ely the Board of Revenue? Under the Section stood, it was not clear whether the aggrieved y had that option. It merely said that the l revenue authorities should report their proings for the approval of the Board, and efore, if the Section were made definite, and ferred on the aggrieved party, the right of al to the Board of Revenue, and then if not sfied with the decision of the Board to contest same by a regular suit, it would be better for individuals, whose interests might be affected e proceedings of the local revenue authorities.

R. THOMPSON said, the hon'ble member was cely consistent in the remarks he had just de, with the observations which he had dressed to the Council a short time since. He d then stated that all objections to the proceedgs of the Collectors should be made the subject a Civil suit before the award became final; and e had now told the Council that they should first interpose the decision of the Board of Revenue; and if the aggrieved party was dissatisfied with their decision, he should then be permitted to resort to the Civil Court. The words of the Bill were taken from Act IX of 1847, and he (Mr. Thompson) certainly thought that it would be unnecessary to delay the action of the Revenue Commissioner by interposing a power of appeal to the Board of Revenue as a necessary preliminary to a Civil action.

MR. KNOWLES said, it appeared to him that some provision might be made in cases where churs which were thrown up were taken possession of by Government, who thus prevented the adjacent proprietor from having the same access to the river which he previously had. He would therefore suggest the insertion of a Clause giving to the adjacent proprietor a free right of way through churs taken possession of by Government.

MR. THOMPSON remarked that the suggestion of the hon'ble member would be considered in Committee.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of Mr. Trevor, Koomar Satyanund Ghosaul, and the mover.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 18th instant.

When the Magistrate who issued the warrant cannot satisfy himself as to the Magistrate to whom the person arrested should be sent, the case shall be reported for the orders of the High Court.

Procedure where such warrant issued by Subordinate Magistrate.

78. If the arrest is made under a warrant issued under section 63 by a Magistrate subordinate to the Magistrate of the District, such Magistrate shall send the person arrested to the Magistrate of the District, unless the Magistrate in whose jurisdiction the offence is suspected to have been committed issues his warrant for the arrest of such person, in which case the person arrested shall be delivered to the Police officer or other person executing such warrant, or shall be sent to the Magistrate by whom such warrant is issued.

If the offence of which the person arrested is suspected, has been committed in the jurisdiction of another Subordinate Court of the same District, the Magistrate who issued the warrant under section 63, shall send the person arrested to the Magistrate in whose jurisdiction the offence was committed.

If the accused person does not deliver himself up, the Police officer or other person authorized to execute the warrant may notify his authority and purpose, and demand admittance.

If after such notification and demand, he cannot otherwise obtain admittance, he shall give notice to any woman as aforesaid in such apartment, not being a person against whom a warrant has been issued, that she is at liberty to withdraw, and afford her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, and may then break open the apartment, and execute the warrant.

Person charged refusing to give his name and residence.

97. Any person who is known or suspected to have committed an offence for which a Police officer is not authorized to arrest without a warrant, and who refuses on demand of a Police officer to give his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which there is reason to believe to be false, may be detained by such Police officer for the purpose of ascertaining the name or residence of such person and with a view to future proceedings.

Or the search-warrant may be directed to the Magistrate within whose jurisdiction the search is to be made, and he shall thereupon endorse his name on such warrant, and enforce its execution in the same manner as if it had been issued by himself.

Search-warrants may, in emergency, be executed without endorsement.

107. Whenever there is reason to believe that the delay occasioned by obtaining the endorsement of the Magistrate in whose district the warrant is to be executed will prevent the discovery of the thing for which search is to be made, the Police officer charged with the execution of the warrant may execute the same in any place beyond the jurisdiction of the Magistrate by whom it was issued, without the endorsement of the Magistrate in whose jurisdiction that place is situate.

Thing found to be taken to Magistrate within whose jurisdiction it is found.

If the warrant is to be executed within the local limits of the High Court, it shall be directed to the Commissioner of Police or to a Police Magistrate. In such case any property found on search made may be dealt with as provided in sections 107 and 108.

111. If the house or place to be searched is closed, it shall be the duty of any person residing in or being in charge of such house or place, on demand of the officer or other person executing the warrant, to allow such officer or other person free ingress thereto, and to afford all reasonable facilities for a search therein.

114. The search of any house or place under this chapter shall be made in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the place in which the house or place searched is situate, but they shall not be required to attend the Court of the Magistrate as witnesses unless specially summoned by him.

Occupant of place searched may attend.

The occupant of the house or place or some person in his behalf shall, in every instance, be permitted to attend during the search.

Females how searched.

115. In any case in which it shall be necessary to cause a female to be searched, the search shall be conducted with strict regard to the habits and customs of the country.

118. Any officer in charge of a Police station may, without a warrant, enter any shop or premises within the limits of such station for the purpose of inspecting or searching for any weights or measures or instruments for weighing used or kept therein, whenever he has reason to believe that there are in such shop or premises any false weights, measures, or instruments for weighing.

If he finds in such shop or premises any weights, measures, or instruments that are false, he may seize the same and shall forthwith give information of such seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction.

Where officer in charge sees no sufficient ground for enquiry.

129. If on any complaint or information being preferred to an officer in charge of a Police station, it appears to him that there is no sufficient ground for entering on an enquiry, or that the immediate apprehension of the accused is not necessary for the ends of justice, he shall not proceed in the case, but shall report the substance of the complaint or information for the orders of the Magistrate having jurisdiction.

130. It shall be the duty of every person who is aware of the commission of any offence made punishable under section 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 456, 457, 458, 459 or 460, of the Indian Penal Code, to give information of the same to the nearest Police officer, whenever the person so aware has reason to believe that, if such information be withheld, the offender may not be brought to justice, or may have his escape facilitated.

Complaint to Police to be in writing.

131. Every complaint or information preferred to an officer in charge of a Police station shall be reduced into writing, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a diary to be kept by him, in such form as shall from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government.

Search by officer in charge of Police station.

134. Whenever an officer in charge of a Police station considers that the production of anything is essential to the conduct of an enquiry into any offence which he is authorized to investigate, he may search or cause search to be made for the same, in any house or place within the limits of such station.

In such case, the officer in charge of the Police station shall, if practicable, conduct the search in person.

So much of statement made by accused as relates to fact thereby discovered, may be received.

143. If the person arrested appears from the information obtained to have committed the offence charged, and the offence is not bailable, the officer in charge of the Police station shall forward him under custody to the Magistrate having jurisdiction in respect of the offence, and shall bind over the prosecutor and witnesses to appear on a fixed day before such Magistrate.

Enquiry by the Police.

When any subordinate Police officer has made any enquiry under this chapter, he shall, if so required by the officer in charge of the Police station, submit a report of such enquiry to him; or he may do so without such requisition, and the officer in charge of the Police station shall then proceed as if he had made the enquiry himself.

144. No Police officer shall, without the special order of a Magistrate, detain an accused person in custody for a longer period than, under all the circumstances of the case, is reasonable, and such period shall in no case exceed twenty-four hours.

If the enquiry has not been completed within twenty-four hours, and if there are grounds for believing that the accusation is well founded, the officer in charge of the Police station shall forward the accused person to the Magistrate, with a short despatch stating the offence for which he has been arrested.

145. 151. A Police officer shall not subject any prosecutor or witness to restraint or unnecessary inconvenience, nor require him to give any security for his appearance other than his own recognizance.

Recusant prosecutors and witnesses may be forwarded in custody.

But if any prosecutor or witness refuses to attend or to execute the recognizance directed in section 150, the officer in charge of a Police station may forward him under custody to the Magistrate, who may detain him in custody until he executes such recognizance, or until the hearing before the Magistrate.

Police to report apprehensions.

152. Officers in charge of Police stations shall report to the Magistrate of the District, or to such Magistrate as the Magistrate of the District may direct, the cases of all persons apprehended within the limits of their respective stations, whether such persons shall have been admitted to bail or otherwise.

Discharge of person apprehended.

No person who has been apprehended shall be discharged, except on bail, or on his own recognizance, or under the special order of a Magistrate.

Police to enquire and report on unnatural and sudden deaths.

153. Unless otherwise provided by any local or special law, the officer in charge of a Police station, on receiving notice or information of the unnatural or sudden death of any person, shall immediately give intimation to the nearest Magistrate, and proceed to the place where the body of such deceased person is, and there in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood, shall make enquiry, and report the apparent cause of death, describing any mark of violence which may be found on the body, and stating in what manner or by what weapon or instrument such mark appears to have been inflicted.

The report shall be signed by such Police officer and other persons or by so many of them as concur therein, and shall be forthwith forwarded to the Magistrate.

When there may be any doubt regarding the cause of death, such Police officer shall forward the body with a view to its being examined by the Civil Surgeon, if the state of the weather and the distance admit of its being so forwarded without risk of putrefaction on the road.

Substitute for officer in charge of Police station during his absence or illness.

154. The powers to be exercised by an officer in charge of a Police station under this chapter shall be exercised, in the event of his absence or illness, by the Police officer next in rank present at the Police station, above the rank of a constable.

CHAPTER X.

Of Contempts and Disobedience of Orders.

Procedure in certain cases of contempt.

155. When any such offence as is described in section 175, 178, 179, 180 or 228 of the Indian Penal Code, is committed in the view or presence of any Court of Justice, the Court may cause the offender, whether he be a European British subject or not, to be detained in custody, and at any time before the rising of the Court on the same day may take cognizance of the offence and adjudge the offender to punishment by fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or by imprisonment in the civil jail for a period not exceeding one month, unless such fine be sooner paid.

In every such case the Court shall record the facts constituting the contempt, with any statement the offender may make, as well as the finding and sentence.

If the Court, in any case, considers that a person accused of any offence above referred to should be imprisoned, or that a fine exceeding two hundred rupees should be imposed upon him, such Court, after recording the facts constituting the contempt and the statement of the accused person as before provided, shall forward the case to a Magistrate, or, if the accused person be a European British subject, to a Justice of the Peace, and shall cause bail to be taken for the appearance of such accused person before such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, or, if sufficient bail be not tendered, shall cause the accused person to be forwarded under custody to such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace.

If the case be forwarded to a Magistrate, he shall proceed to try the accused person in the manner provided by this Act for trials before a Magistrate, and such Magistrate may adjudge the offender to punishment, as provided in the section of the Indian Penal Code under which he is charged.

If the case be forwarded to a Justice of the Peace, he shall enquire into the circumstances, and shall have the same powers of punishing the offender as are vested by the statute 53 George III, c. 155, s. 105, in a Justice of the Peace for the punishment of an assault, and may deal with the offender in the same manner as is provided in that behalf in the said statute.

If such Justice of the Peace shall consider the offence to require a punishment more severe than he is competent to award under the said statute, he may commit the offender to the High Court.

In no case tried under this section shall any Magistrate adjudge imprisonment or a fine exceeding two hundred rupees for any contempt committed in his own presence against his own Court.

Discharge of offender on submission or apology.

156. When any Court has adjudged an offender to punishment or forwarded him to a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace for trial, under section 155, for refusing or omitting to do anything which he was lawfully required to do, or for any intentional insult or interruption, the Court may discharge the offender, or remit the punishment, on his submission to the order or requisition of such Court, or on apology being made to its satisfaction.

Procedure when offender is a European British subject.

157. When any such offence as is described in chapter X of the Indian Penal Code, except sections 175, 178, 179 and 180, is committed in contempt of the lawful authority of any Court of Justice by a European British subject, such offence shall be cognizable only by a Magistrate who is a Justice of the Peace, and such Magistrate shall have the same powers of punishment for such offence as are vested by the statute 53 George III, c. 155, s. 105, in a Justice of the Peace for the punishment of an assault, and may deal with the offender on conviction in the same manner as is provided in that behalf in the said statute.

If the Magistrate considers the offence to require a punishment more severe than a Justice of the Peace is competent to award under the said statute, he may commit the offender to the High Court.

CHAPTER XI.

PROSECUTIONS IN CERTAIN CASES.

Prosecutions for offences against the State.

158. A charge of an offence punishable under chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code, except section 127, shall not be entertained by any Court, unless the prosecution be instituted by order of, or under authority from, the Governor General of India in Council, or the Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General of India in Council to order or authorize such prosecution, or unless instituted by the Advocate General.

Prosecutions of Judges and public servants.

159. A charge of an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code, of which any Judge or any public servant not removeable from his office without the sanction of the Government is accused as such Judge or public servant, shall not be entertained against him, except with the sanction or under the direction of the Local Government, or of some officer empowered by the Local Government, or of some Court or other authority to which such Judge or public servant is subordinate, and whose power so to sanction or direct such prosecution the Local Government shall not think fit to limit or reserve.

Prosecution for contempts of the lawful authority of public servants.

160. A charge of any offence described in chapter X of the Indian Penal Code, not falling within section 155, shall not be entertained in any Criminal Court, except with the sanction or on the complaint of the public servant concerned, or of his official superior.

The prohibition contained in this section does not apply to the offences described in sections 189 and 190 of the Indian Penal Code.

Prosecution for certain offences against public justice.

161. A charge of an offence against public justice, described in section 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211 or 228 of the Indian Penal Code, when such offence is committed before or against any Court of Justice, shall not be entertained except with the sanction of the Court before or against which the offence was committed, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

Such sanction may be given at any time.

Prosecution for certain offences relating to documents given in evidence.

162. A charge of an offence relating to documents described in section 463, 471, 475 or 476 of the Indian Penal Code, when the document has been given in evidence in any proceedings in any Court of Justice, shall not be entertained against a party to such proceedings, except with the sanction of the Court in which the document was given in evidence, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

Such sanction may be given at any time.

Procedure in cases mentioned in section 160, 161 or 162.

163. When any Court of Justice is of opinion that there is sufficient ground for investigating any charge mentioned in section 160, 161 or 162, the Court, after making such preliminary enquiry as may be necessary, may send the case for investigation to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused person for the offence charged.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law, and the Court may send the accused person in custody or take sufficient bail for his appearance before such Magistrate, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such investigation.

Power of Court of Session as to such offences committed before it.

164. A Court of Session may charge a person for any such offence committed before it or under its own cognizance if the offence be triable by the Court of Session exclusively, and may commit or hold to bail and try him upon its own charge.

In such case the Court of Session shall have the same power of summoning and causing the attendance at the trial of any witnesses for the prosecution or for the defence as is vested in a Magistrate by this Act.

Such Court may direct the Magistrate to cause the attendance of such witnesses on the trial.

Power of Civil Courts to complete investigation and commit to Court of Session.

165. In any case triable by the Court of Session exclusively, any Civil Court before which any such offence was committed may, instead of sending the case for investigation to a Magistrate, complete the investigation itself, and commit or hold to bail the accused person to take his trial before the Court of Session

Procedure of Civil Court in such cases.

166. When any such commitment is made by order of a Civil Court, the Court shall frame a charge in the manner hereinafter provided, and shall send the same with the order of commitment and the record of the case to the Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate; and such Magistrate or other officer shall bring the case before the Court of Session, together with the witnesses for the prosecution and defence.

Court may exercise all powers of a Magistrate as to binding over persons to give evidence.

167. Whenever any Court of Justice commits or holds to bail any person for trial under sections 164, 165 and 166, it may also bind over any person to give evidence, and for that purpose may exercise all the powers of a Magistrate.

Procedure where offence triable only by Court of Session is committed before Magistrate not empowered to commit to such Court.

168. If any such offence, triable by the Court of Session exclusively, be committed before a Magistrate not empowered to commit for trial before a Court of Session, he shall send the case to a Magistrate competent to make such commitment, who shall proceed to pass such order in the case as he may think proper.

Prosecution for adultery.

169. A charge of an offence under section 497 of the Indian Penal Code shall not be instituted except by the husband of the woman.

Prosecution for enticing away a married woman.

170. A charge of an offence under section 498 of the Indian Penal Code shall not be instituted except by the husband of the woman or by the person having care of such woman on behalf of her husband.

CHAPTER XII.

Of Preliminary Enquiry by the Magistrate in cases triable by the Court of Session.

Magistrate may issue warrant to arrest.

171. When a complaint is made before the Magistrate of the District or any other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, or before any subordinate Magistrate empowered under section 26 to commit persons for trial before the Court of Session or invested with that power by any law for the time being in force, that any person has committed, or is suspected to have committed, any offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, or which in the opinion of such Magistrate ought to be tried by the Court of Session, such Magistrate may issue his warrant to arrest such person.

Issue of summons instead of warrant.

Provided that, in any such case, the Magistrate to whom such complaint is made may, if he thinks fit, instead of issuing in the first instance his warrant to arrest the accused person, issue his summons requiring him to appear to answer to such complaint.

Postponement of issue of process.

172. If the Magistrate sees cause to distrust the truth of the complaint, he may postpone the issuing of process for causing the attendance of the accused person, and direct a previous enquiry to be made into the truth of the complaint, either by means of any officer subordinate to such Magistrate, or of a local Police officer, or in such other mode as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

If such enquiry is made by means of some person other than an officer exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate or a Police officer, such person shall exercise all the powers vested by this Act in an officer in charge of a Police station, except that he shall have no power to make an arrest.

Dismissal of complaint.

Nothing contained in this section shall prevent the Magistrate from at once dismissing the complaint, if in his judgment there be no sufficient ground for proceeding with it.

Magistrate may direct bail to be taken.

173. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate, in issuing his warrant for the arrest of any person against whom a complaint has been made, to direct by endorsement on the warrant that, if he be willing and ready to give bail in a sum to be fixed by the Magistrate, for his appearance before the Magistrate to be named in the warrant on a specified day to answer the complaint, the officer to whom the warrant is directed shall accept such bail, and shall release the accused person from custody.

Bail-bond to be forwarded.

In the event of bail being given, the officer shall forward the bail-bond to the Magistrate.

174. The Magistrate may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused person, and permit him to appear by an agent duly authorized to act in his behalf.

Magistrate may dispense with personal attendance of accused.

But it shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate, at any stage of the proceedings, to direct the personal attendance of the accused person.

175. If any person accused of an offence absconds or conceals himself, so that upon a warrant issued against him he cannot be found, the Magistrate shall, if satisfied that he absconds or conceals himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant, issue a written proclamation, requiring him to appear to answer the complaint within a fixed period not less than thirty days.

Proclamation for person absconding.

The proclamation shall be publicly read in some conspicuous place of the town or village in which the accused person usually resides, and shall be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode, or on some conspicuous place in such town or village.

A copy of the proclamation shall also be affixed on some conspicuous part of the Magistrate's Court-house.

176. The Magistrate may, at the same time, order the attachment of any moveable or immoveable property belonging to the person absconding or concealing himself.

Attachment of property of person absconding.

Such order shall not authorize the attachment of any property out of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate by whom it is made, but it shall authorize the attachment of property in the jurisdiction of any Magistrate by whom the order is endorsed.

The attachment under this section shall, if the property ordered to be attached be land paying revenue to Government, be made through the Collector of the District in which the land is situate, and in all other cases by seizure under the order of the Magistrate, or by the appointment of a manager and receiver, or by an order prohibiting the payment of rent to the absent person, as the Magistrate shall deem proper.

If the absent person does not appear within the time specified in the proclamation, the property under attachment shall be declared to be at the disposal of Government, but shall not be sold until the expiration of six months, unless it is of a perishable nature, or the Magistrate considers that the sale would be for the benefit of the owner.

177. When any person whose property has been declared to be at the disposal of Government under section 176 appears or is found within two years after the attachment of the property, and proves to the satisfaction of the Court trying him for the offence of which he was accused, or, if not tried or committed for that offence, to the satisfaction of the Magistrate of the District, that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of evading justice, such property, or, if the same has been sold, the proceeds thereof, shall be restored to him.

Restoration of forfeited property.

178. The Magistrate shall ascertain from the complainant, or otherwise, the names of any persons who may be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case, and who are likely to give evidence for the prosecution, and shall issue his summons to such persons, requiring them to appear at a time and place mentioned in the summons before such Magistrate to testify what they know concerning the complaint made against the accused person.

Summons to witness to appear and give evidence.

179. Every summons issued by a Magistrate under section 178 shall be served personally on the witness, or, if the witness be not found, may be left for him with some adult male member of his family residing with him.

Service of summons.

180. If the Magistrate see reason to believe that such witness will not attend to give evidence without being compelled to do so, he may, instead of issuing a summons, issue his warrant of arrest in the first instance.

Issue of warrant of arrest in first instance.

181. If the warrant cannot be served, and the Magistrate is satisfied that the witness absconds or conceals himself for the purpose of avoiding the service thereof, he may issue a proclamation, requiring the attendance of such witness to give evidence at a time and place to be named therein, to be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode.

Procedure where warrant cannot be served.

If the witness does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Magistrate may order the attachment of any moveable property belonging to such witness to such amount as he shall deem reasonable, not being in excess of the amount of costs of attachment and of any fine to which the witness may be liable under the provisions of the following section.

Such order shall not authorize the attachment of any property out of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate by whom it is made, but it shall authorize the attachment of property in the jurisdiction of any Magistrate by whom the order is endorsed.

182. If the witness appear and satisfy the Magistrate that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Magistrate shall direct that the property be released from attachment, and shall make such order in regard to the costs of the attachment as he thinks fit.

Release of attached property of witness appearing and satisfying Magistrate.

If such witness does not appear, or appearing, fails to satisfy the Magistrate that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant, and that he had not such notice of the proclamation as aforesaid, the Magistrate may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of any fine which he may impose upon such witness under the provisions of section 172 of the Indian Penal Code.

Sale of property of witness not appearing or satisfying Magistrate.

If the witness pays to the Magistrate the costs and fine as aforesaid, the Magistrate shall order the property to be released from attachment.

183. If any person summoned to give evidence neglects or refuses to appear at the time and place appointed by the summons, and no valid excuse is offered for such neglect or refusal, the Magistrate, upon proof of the summons having been duly served, may issue a warrant of arrest to bring such person before him to testify as aforesaid.

Arrest of person disobeying summons.

184. If any person summoned or brought before a Magistrate refuses to answer such questions as are put to him, without offering any valid excuse for such refusal, the Magistrate may, by warrant of commitment under his hand and seal, commit him to custody for any term not exceeding seven days, unless he shall, in the meantime, consent to be examined and to answer, after which, in the event of his persisting in his refusal, he may be dealt with according to the provisions of section 155.

Committal of person refusing to answer.

185. The Magistrate shall take the evidence of the complainant, and of such persons as are stated to have any knowledge of the facts which form the subject-matter of the accusation and the attendant circumstances.

Examination of complainant and witnesses for prosecution.

186. The complainant and the witnesses for the prosecution shall be examined in the presence of the accused person, or of his agent when his personal attendance is dispensed with and he appears by agent.

Examination to be in presence of accused.

The accused person or his agent shall be permitted to cross-examine the complainant and his witnesses.

Accused may cross-examine.

187. The evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, by or in the presence and hearing and under the personal direction and superintendence of the Magistrate, and shall be signed by him.

Mode and language in which evidence is to be recorded.

When the evidence of a witness is given in English, the Magistrate may take it down in that language with his own hand, and an authenticated translation of the same, in the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, shall form part of the record.

Evidence in English.

In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Magistrate, he shall be bound, as the examination of each witness proceeds, to make a memorandum of the substance of what the witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with his own hand, and shall be annexed to the record.

Memorandum where evidence not taken down in writing.

If the Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so.

188. The Local Government may direct that, in any District or part of a District to which this Act extends, the evidence of witnesses shall be taken down by the Magistrate with his own hand in the vernacular language of the Magistrate, unless the Magistrate be prevented by any sufficient reason from taking down the evidence of any witness, in which case he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

Local Government may direct evidence to be recorded in vernacular language of Magistrate.

The evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate, and form part of the record:

Provided that, if the vernacular language of the Magistrate be not English or the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, the Local Government may direct him to take down the evidence in the English language or in the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, instead of his own vernacular.

Proviso.

189. Any question arising as to what is the language in ordinary use in any District in which a Court is held, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be determined by the Local Government.

Local Government to decide language in ordinary use.

190. The evidence shall not ordinarily be taken down in the form of question and answer, but in the form of a narrative.

Evidence how recorded.

It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate to take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer, if there appear any special reason for so doing, or any person who is a prosecutor, or a person accused, or his counsel or agent, requires it.

When the evidence is completed, it shall be read over to the witness in the presence of the accused person if in attendance, or of his agent when his personal attendance is dispensed with and he appears by agent, and shall, if necessary, be corrected.

Evidence to be read to witness.

of the objection made to it by the witness, and shall add such remarks as he may think necessary.

If the evidence be taken down in a different language from that in which it has been given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, the witness may require his evidence as taken down to be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given, or in a language which he understands.

Memorandum to be attached to evidence.

191. A memorandum to be signed by the Magistrate shall be attached to the evidence of each witness, and shall state that the evidence was read over to the witness in a language which he understood (naming the language), and, if the fact is so, that the witness acknowledged such evidence to be correct.

When the evidence is not taken down by the Magistrate with his own hand, the memorandum shall further state that the evidence was taken down in his presence and hearing, and under his personal direction and superintendence.

Interpretation of evidence to accused or his agent.

192. If the evidence is given in a language not understood by the accused person, it shall be interpreted to him in open Court in a language understood by him, in all cases where he is present in person.

If he appears by agent, and the evidence is given in a language other than the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, it shall be interpreted to such agent in that language.

Power of Magistrate to summon and examine any person.

193. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate, at any stage of the proceedings, to examine any person whose evidence he may consider essential to the enquiry.

Examination of accused.

194. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate from time to time, at any stage of the enquiry, to examine the accused person, and to put such questions to him as he may consider necessary.

It shall be in the option of the accused person to answer such questions.

No influence to be used to induce disclosures.

195. Except as provided in section 201, no influence, by means of any promise or threat or otherwise, shall be used to the accused person to induce him to disclose or withhold any matter within his knowledge.

Accused not to be sworn.

196. No oath shall be administered to the accused person.

Examination of accused how recorded.

197. The examination of the accused person including every question put to him and every answer given by him, shall be recorded in full, and shall be shown or read to him, and he shall be at liberty to explain or add to his answers.

When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the examination shall be attested by the signature of the Magistrate, who shall certify under his own hand that it was taken in his presence and in his hearing, and contains accurately the whole of the statement made by the accused person.

Detention of offenders attending Court.

198. Any person attending the Court of the Magistrate, although not upon an arrest or summons on a charge made, may be detained by the Magistrate for the purpose of examination, for any offence which from the evidence he may appear to have committed, and may be proceeded against as though he had been arrested or summoned on a charge made.

Discretionary power to summon witnesses for defence.

199. It shall be at the discretion of the Magistrate to summon any witness who may be offered in behalf of the accused person to answer or disprove the evidence against him.

Sections 179 to 183 to apply to witnesses for defence.

200. The provisions of sections 179 to 183 (both inclusive) shall be applicable to witnesses named in support of the defence.

Magistrate may tender pardon to accomplice.

201. The Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, and any subordinate Magistrate duly empowered under section 26, recording his reason for so doing, may tender a pardon to any one or more of the persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in or privy to any offence specified in column 7 of the second schedule hereto annexed as triable by the Court of Session, on condition of his or their making a full, true and fair disclosure of the whole of the circumstances within his or their knowledge relative to the crime committed, and every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

If any person accepts a tender of pardon under this section, he shall be examined as a witness in the case under the rules applicable to the examination of witnesses.

Such person, if not on bail, may, if the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid thinks proper, be detained in custody pending the termination of the trial.

High Court or Court of Session may direct tender of pardon.

202. A Court of Session at the time of trial, and also the High Court as a Court of reference, in cases tried with the aid of assessors, may instruct the Magistrate in like manner to tender a pardon to one or more persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in or privy to any such offence, with the view of obtaining his or their evidence on the trial.

When High Court or Court of Session may direct commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

203. If it appears to a Court of Session at the time of trial, or to the High Court as a Court of reference, that any person who has accepted an offer of pardon, has not conformed to the conditions under which the pardon was tendered, either by wilfully concealing anything essential, or by giving false evidence or information, such Court may direct the commitment of such person for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was tendered.

Bail.

Bail not to be taken for certain offences.

204. When any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate accused of any offence entered as not bailable in column 5 of the second schedule hereto annexed, such person shall not be admitted to bail, if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that he has been guilty of the crime imputed to him.

When bail may be taken.

If the evidence given in support of the accusation is, in the opinion of the Magistrate, not such as to raise a strong presumption of the guilt of the accused person and to require his committal, or if such evidence is adduced on behalf of the accused person as shall, in the opinion of the Magistrate, weaken the presumption of his guilt, but there appears to the Magistrate in either of such cases to be sufficient ground for further enquiry into his guilt, the accused person may be admitted to bail pending such enquiry.

When bail shall be taken.

205. When any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate accused of any of the offences specified in column 5 of the second schedule hereto annexed as bailable, he shall be admitted to bail.

Recognizance of accused and sureties.

206. When a Magistrate admits to bail any person accused or suspected of any offence, a recognizance in such sum of money as the Magistrate may think sufficient, shall be entered into by the person so accused and one or more sureties, conditioned that such person shall attend during the preliminary enquiry, and if required, shall appear when called upon at the Court of Session to answer the charge.

Insufficient bail.

207. If through mistake or fraud insufficient bail has been taken, or if the sureties become afterwards insufficient, the accused person may be ordered by the Magistrate to find sufficient sureties, and in default, may be committed to prison.

Bail may be taken at any time before conviction.

208. If the accused person cannot find sureties when called upon, he shall be admitted to bail upon finding the same at any time afterwards before conviction.

Discharge on bail.

209. After the recognizances have been duly entered into, the Magistrate, in case the accused person has appeared voluntarily or is in the custody of some officer, shall thereupon discharge him; and in case he is in some prison or other place of confinement, shall issue a warrant of discharge to the jailor or other person having him in his custody, and such jailor or other person shall thereupon liberate him.

Discharge of sureties.

210. The sureties for an accused person may at any time apply to the Magistrate to be discharged from their engagements.

On such an application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his warrant of arrest, directing that such person be brought before him.

On the appearance of such person pursuant to the warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the recognizances of the sureties to be discharged, and shall call upon such person to find other sureties, and in default, may order him to be committed to prison.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by accused.

211. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance of the person executing the personal recognizance, the Magistrate is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance, he shall proceed to enforce the penalty by the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person, which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by sureties.

212. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance by the person bailed, the Magistrate is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the surety or sureties, he shall give notice to the surety or sureties to pay the same, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

If no sufficient cause be shown, the Magistrate shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety or sureties by the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him or them which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District:

If the penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the surety or sureties shall be liable to confinement, by order of the Magistrate, in the civil jail, during a period not exceeding six months.

In what cases the powers given by sections 211, 212 may be exercised.

213. The powers given by sections 211 and 212 may be exercised by every Criminal Court in every case in which a personal recognizance or bail has been given for the appearance of a party or witness, if default is made, by the non-appearance of such party or witness before such Court according to the conditions of such recognizance or bail.

Remission of part of penalty.

Provided that the Court may at its discretion remit any portion of the penalty mentioned in the personal recognizance, or in the recognizance of the surety or sureties, and enforce payment in part only.

Revision of orders.

All orders passed by any Magistrate under this section shall be subject to revision by the Magistrate of the District.

Form and direction of warrant of commitment.

214. Every warrant for the commitment of a person to custody shall be in writing and signed and sealed by the Judge or Magistrate who issues it, and shall be

Adjournment of enquiry and remand.

216. If from the absence of a witness or from any other reasonable cause, it becomes necessary or advisable to defer the examination, or further examination, of witnesses, the Magistrate may by a written order from time to time adjourn the enquiry and remand the accused person for such time as is deemed reasonable, not exceeding fifteen days:

Provided that, instead of detaining the accused person in custody during the period for which he is so remanded, the Magistrate may discharge him, upon his entering into a recognizance, with or without a surety or sureties, at the discretion of such Magistrate, conditioned for his appearance before the Magistrate at the time and place appointed for the continuance of such examination.

Discharge of accused.

217. When a Magistrate finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused person to take his trial before the Court of Session or for remanding him, he shall discharge him, unless it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be put on his trial before himself, in which case he shall proceed under chapter XIV.

When accused appears to have been insane.

218. When from evidence given before a Magistrate there appears to be sufficient ground for believing that the accused person committed an act which, if he had been of sound mind, would have been an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, and that the accused person was, at the time when the act was committed, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act charged or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, the accused person shall be sent by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session.

If the Magistrate is a Justice of the Peace and the accused person is a European British subject, he shall be sent for trial before the High Court.

If the Magistrate is a Justice of the Peace and the accused person is a European British subject, he shall be sent for trial before the High Court.

Summoning witnesses.

The Magistrate shall receive the list, and summon the witnesses to appear before the Court before which the accused person is to be tried.

The provisions of sections 179 to 184 (both inclusive) so far as they relate to the attendance of witnesses, shall be applicable to witnesses named by the accused person in the list above-mentioned.

Refusal to summon unnecessary witness, unless deposit made.

222. If the Magistrate thinks that any witness is included in the list for the purpose of vexation or delay or of defeating the ends of justice, he may require the accused person to satisfy him that there are reasonable grounds for believing that such witness is material.

If the Magistrate be not so satisfied, he shall not be bound to summon the witness, unless such a sum is deposited with the Magistrate as he considers necessary to defray the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witness.

Record to be forwarded to the superior Court.

223. When a commitment is made to the Court of Session, the record of the Magistrate shall be forwarded to such Court, together with any weapon or other article of property connected with the case.

Copies of depositions to be furnished to accused.

224. When the preliminary enquiry is concluded, the accused person shall, if he demands them at a reasonable time before the trial, be furnished with copies of the depositions. Such copies shall be made at his expense.

225. When the accused person is committed to take his trial before the Court of Session, the Magistrate shall issue an order to the Government pleader or other officer appointed by the Government to conduct prosecutions before the Court of Session, notifying such commitment, and stating the offence in the same form as the charge.

When commitment made, Magistrate to give notice to Government prosecutor.

Nothing in this section shall preclude the Magistrate, if he thinks fit, from appointing a person other than such Government pleader or officer to conduct the prosecution.

226. Prosecutors and witnesses for the prosecution, whose attendance may be necessary before the Court of Session or High Court, shall execute before the Magistrate recognizances in the form (E) given in the appendix, or to the like effect, to be in attendance when called upon to prosecute or to give evidence, as the case may be.

Provided that, if the Magistrate is satisfied or has reason to believe that the accused person is about to abscond, he may, instead of issuing a summons, issue his warrant in the first instance for the arrest of such person.

When warrant for arrest may issue.

252. If upon the day appointed, the accused person appears voluntarily in obedience to the summons in that behalf served upon him, or is brought before the Magistrate by virtue of a warrant, it shall be at the discretion of the Magistrate to admit him to bail, or allow him to be at large upon his personal recognizance, as the Magistrate may direct.

Defendant may be admitted to bail or allowed to be at large on his personal recognizance.

If the accused person cannot give bail when required to do so, he shall be committed to custody.

253. If upon the day appointed for the appearance of the accused person, or any day subsequent thereto on which the case may be called on, the complainant does not appear, the Magistrate shall dismiss the complaint; unless for some reason he thinks proper to adjourn the hearing of the same to some other day, upon such terms as he thinks fit.

Non-appearance of complainant.

254. If the person served with a summons does not appear before the Magistrate at the time mentioned in such summons, and the Magistrate is satisfied that such summons was duly served in what shall be deemed by the Magistrate to be a reasonable time before the time therein appointed for appearing to the same, or if it appears to the Magistrate that after due diligence the summons could not be served according to the provisions of this Act, the Magistrate may issue his warrant to arrest the accused person.

Warrant to arrest if summons not obeyed.

255. The Magistrate may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of the person complained against, and permit him to appear by an agent duly authorized to act in his behalf:

Personal attendance of accused may be dispensed with.

Provided that it shall be at the discretion of the Magistrate at any stage of the proceedings to direct the personal attendance of such person.

When the personal attendance of the accused person during the trial has been dispensed with, the sentence of the Magistrate, if the sentence be for fine only, may be pronounced in the presence of the agent if the accused person has been permitted to appear by agent, or the accused person may be required to attend to hear such sentence.

256. If it appear to the Magistrate that any person is likely to give material evidence on behalf of the complainant or the accused, and that such person will not voluntarily appear for the purpose of being examined as a witness at the time and place appointed for the hearing of such complaint, the Magistrate shall issue his summons to such person under his signature and seal, requiring him to appear at a time and place mentioned in the summons, to testify what he knows concerning the matter of the complaint.

If the accused person admit the truth of the complaint, and show no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, the Magistrate may convict him accordingly.

Conviction on admission of truth of complaint.

260. If the accused person do not admit the truth of the complaint, the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant and such witnesses as he may produce in support of his complaint, and also to hear the accused person and such witnesses as he shall produce in his defence.

261. If any of the witnesses for the prosecution or defence reside at a distance, the Magistrate may, with or without the consent of the parties, forward to any other Magistrate within whose jurisdiction the witness resides a list of questions in writing upon any matter as to which his evidence may be required. Such other Magistrate shall procure the attendance of the witness and take his evidence as if the case were being tried before him, and shall return the list with the answers of the witness in writing signed by such other Magistrate to the Magistrate who forwarded it, and such answers may be admitted as evidence. Provided that the Magistrate last-mentioned may at any time, if he sees necessary, summon the witness to appear and give evidence before himself.

The memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If the Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause such memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court, and shall sign the same, and such memorandum shall form part of the record.

The Magistrate shall record such remarks as he thinks material respecting the demeanour of any witness whilst under examination.

264. In any case in which the Magistrate considers it necessary, he may, instead of taking down merely the substance of the evidence of any witness, take down his evidence in the manner provided in section 187, or in the manner provided in section 188, if within the jurisdiction of such Magistrate the Local Government shall have made an order as provided in that section.

Evidence may be recorded in manner provided in section 187 or 188.

The sum so awarded shall be recoverable by distress and sale of the moveable property belonging to the complainant, which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District, and in default of such distress, by imprisonment of the complainant in the civil jail, for any time not exceeding thirty days, unless such amends shall be sooner paid.

Of Enquiries and Trials before the Subordinate Magistrates.

Reference of cases to Subordinate Magistrate.

270. Criminal cases brought before the Magistrate of the District or a Magistrate in charge of a Division of a District, either on complaint preferred directly to such Magistrate or on the report of a Police officer, may be referred by such Magistrate to any Magistrate subordinate to him.

The reference shall be for enquiry or for trial, if the offence be triable by such Subordinate Magistrate, or with a view to commitment to the Court of Session, if such Magistrate is competent to commit to the Court of Session, or with a view to commitment to the High Court, if such Subordinate Magistrate is competent to commit to such Court;

Proviso.

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent any Subordinate Magistrate from entertaining, either on complaint preferred directly to such Magistrate or on the report of a Police officer (in cases in which the Subordinate Magistrate is authorized to receive such report), any case that such Magistrate is by any law for the time being in force, competent to entertain.

Record of order of reference.

271. When a criminal case is referred under this chapter to a Subordinate Magistrate, the order of reference, if the case has been brought forward on the report of a Police officer, shall be recorded on such report.

Process.

and all processes issued for causing the attendance of the accused person or the witnesses, shall direct them to attend before such Court.

Police officers and others shall be bound to obey all orders and processes issued in such cases in the like manner as if such orders or processes had been issued by the Magistrate of the District.

Procedure of Subordinate Magistrate in cases beyond his jurisdiction.

273. If in the course of a trial before a Subordinate Magistrate, the evidence appears to him to warrant a presumption that the accused person has been guilty of an offence which such Magistrate is not competent to try, or for which he is not competent to commit the accused person for trial, he shall stay proceedings and submit the case to a Magistrate having jurisdiction.

The Magistrate to whom the case is submitted shall either try the case himself or refer it to any officer subordinate to him having jurisdiction, or he may commit the accused person for trial.

In any such case, such Magistrate or other officer to whom it is referred shall examine the parties and witnesses, and shall proceed in all respects as if the proceedings had been held in any other Court.

But any statement or confession duly made by the accused person in the course of such a trial shall be admissible as evidence in the superior Court.

Procedure where Subordinate Magistrate cannot pass sentence sufficiently severe.

274. If in any case tried by a Subordinate Magistrate having jurisdiction in which the accused person is found guilty, such Magistrate considers the offence established to call for a punishment more severe than he is competent to adjudge, he shall record the finding and submit his proceedings to a Magistrate having jurisdiction, and such Magistrate shall pass such sentence or order in the case as he deems proper and as is according to law.

Procedure of Magistrate in such cases.

In any such case, the Magistrate to whom the proceedings are submitted may examine the parties, and recall and examine any witness who has already given evidence in the case, and he may call for or take any further evidence.

Subordinate Magistrate may commit accused for trial before Court of Session.

275. Nothing in section 274 shall prevent the Subordinate Magistrate in any such case as is therein described, if he is empowered to hold the preliminary enquiry into cases triable by the Court of Session and to commit persons to take their trial before such Court, from committing the accused person for trial before the Court of Session instead of finding him guilty.

His procedure in such cases.

If the Subordinate Magistrate is of opinion that the accused person should be committed for trial before the Court of Session, he shall proceed in accordance with chapter XII, for conducting the preliminary enquiry in cases triable by the Court of Session.

CHAPTER XVII.

Of the Place where Trials and Preliminary Investigations are held.

Magistrate's Court to be open.

276. The place in which the Court of a Magistrate is held for the trial of any complaint or for the purpose of conducting any preliminary investigation into any case triable by a Court of Session or the High Court, or any superior Court, shall be deemed an open and public Court, to which the public generally may have access, so far as the same can conveniently contain them.

But any such Court may, if it think fit, order that, during the investigation into any particular case triable by a Court of Session or by the High Court, no person shall have access to or be or remain in such place without the consent or permission of the Court.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Of Recognizance and Security to keep the Peace.

Personal recognizance to keep the peace in cases of conviction.

277. Whenever a person charged with rioting, assault, or other breach of the peace, or with abetting the same, or with assembling armed men or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, is convicted of such charge before any Court of Session or the Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, and the Court or Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid by which the accused person is convicted, or the Court or Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid by which the final sentence or order in the case is passed, is of opinion that it is just and necessary to require a personal recognizance for keeping the peace from the person so convicted, the Court or Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid so convicting the accused person, or so passing the final sentence or order as aforesaid, may, in addition, direct that the person so convicted be required on the expiration of his sentence to execute a formal engagement, in a sum proportionate to his condition in life and the circumstances of the case, for keeping the peace during such period as it may appear proper to fix in each instance, not exceeding one year if the sentence or order be passed by the Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, or three years if the sentence or final order be passed by a Court of Session.

Where the convicting officer has not the powers of a Magistrate.

When any accused person is convicted of any offence specified in this section by an officer not exercising the powers of a Magistrate, such officer, if he consider it just and necessary to require a personal recognizance for keeping the peace from the person so convicted, shall report the case to the Magistrate of the District, or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate to whom such officer may be subordinate, who shall deal with the case as if the conviction had been before himself.

Security to keep the peace.

278. Whenever it appears necessary to require security for keeping the peace, in addition to the personal recognizance of the party so convicted, the Court or Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid, empowered to require a personal recognizance under section 277, may require security in addition thereto and fix the amount of the security-bond to be executed by the surety or sureties; with a provision that, if the same be not given, the person required to find the security shall be kept in custody for any time not exceeding one year if the order be passed by the Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, or three years if the order be passed by the High Court or by a Court of Session.

Time when order requiring recognizance may be made.

279. The order to require personal recognizance, or personal recognizance and security, from the person so convicted, may be passed either when he is convicted and sentenced, or at the expiration of the period of imprisonment to which he may have been sentenced.

Summons to show cause why person should not give bond to keep the peace.

280. The Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, whenever he receives credible information that any person, whether a European British subject or not, is likely to commit a breach of the peace, or to do any act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace, may summon him to attend at a time and place mentioned in the summons, to show cause why he should not be required to enter into a bond to keep the peace with or without sureties as the Magistrate or other officer shall think fit.

Form of summons.

281. The summons shall set forth the substance of the information, the amount of the bond, and the term for which it is to be in force, and if security is called for, the number of sureties required, and the amount in which they are to be bound respectively.

Such summons shall be served in the manner provided by this Act for the service of a summons on an accused person.

Penalty of bond.

282. The penalty of such bond, which shall be in the form (E) given in the appendix, or to the like effect, shall be fixed with a due regard to the circumstances of the case and the means of the party.

The amount in which the sureties shall be bound shall not exceed the said penalty.

Warrant of arrest.

283. If the person summoned does not attend on the day appointed, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid, if satisfied that the summons has been duly served, may issue a warrant for his arrest.

Provided that, whenever it appears to the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid, upon the report of a Police officer or upon other credible information (the substance of which report or information shall be recorded), that there is just reason to fear the commission of a breach of the peace, which may probably be prevented by the immediate arrest of any person, the Magistrate or other officer may at any time issue a warrant for his arrest.

Magistrate may dispense with personal attendance of person informed against.

284. The Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid may, if he see sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of the person informed against and permit him to appear and enter into the required security, or show cause against such requisition, by an agent duly authorized to act in his behalf.

Discharge of person informed against.

285. If on the appearance of the person informed against, or of his agent, if he is permitted to appear by agent, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid is not satisfied that there is occasion to bind him to keep the peace, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall direct his discharge.

Non-compliance with order to give bond.

286. If the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid is satisfied that it is necessary for the preservation of the peace to take a bond from such person with or without security, he shall make an order accordingly; and if the person fail to comply with the order, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid may commit him to jail.

287. The period for which the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid may bind a person to keep the peace with or without security, shall not exceed one year.

Time for which person may be bound to keep the peace.

When a person is committed to jail under section 286, he shall not be detained by authority of the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid beyond the term of one year, and shall be released whenever within that term he complies with the order.

Limit of imprisonment under section 286.

288. Whenever it appears to the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid that it is necessary for the preservation of the peace to bind a person beyond the term of one year, he may, before the expiration of the first year, record his opinion to that effect and the grounds thereof, and may refer the case for the orders of the Court of Session.

Extension of time for which person may be bound.

Such Court, after examining the proceedings of the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid and making such further enquiry as it thinks necessary, may, if it see cause, authorize the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid to extend the term for a further period not exceeding one year.

If the person fail to give a bond, with security if required, for his keeping the peace for such further period as the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid directs under the orders of the Court of Session, he may be kept in confinement for such further period or until he gives such bond within that period.

289. The Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid may, if he sees sufficient cause, discharge any recognizance and surety for keeping the peace taken under the preceding sections, and may order the release of the person confined for default in entering into such recognizance or giving such security.

Discharge of recognizances.

290. A surety for the personal appearance of another person may at any time apply to the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid, to be relieved from his engagement as surety.

Discharge of sureties.

On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his summons or warrant in order that the person for whom such surety is bound may appear or be brought before him.

On the appearance of the person to such warrant or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall direct the engagement of the surety to be cancelled, and shall call upon such person to give fresh security, and in default thereof shall commit him to custody.

291. Whenever it is proved before the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid that any recognizance or other bond taken under this chapter has been forfeited, he shall record the grounds of such proof, and shall call upon the person bound by the bond to pay the penalty thereof or to show cause why it should not be paid.

Recovery of penalty from principal.

If sufficient cause be not shown and the penalty be not paid, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall proceed to recover the same by the attachment and sale of any of the moveable property belonging to the person bound thereby which is found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District.

If the penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the person bound shall be liable to imprisonment by order of the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid in the civil jail for a period not exceeding six months.

292. Whenever it is proved before the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid that any bond with a surety has been forfeited, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid may at his discretion give notice to the surety to pay the penalty to which he has thereby become liable, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

Recovery of penalty from surety.

If no sufficient cause is shown, and the penalty is no paid, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid may proceed to recover the penalty from such surety in the same manner as it might be recovered from the principal.

The Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall record his opinion to that effect, with an order specifying the amount of security which should, in his judgment, be required from such person, as well as the number of sureties and the period, not exceeding three years, for which the sureties should be responsible for his good behaviour.

296. If the person so required to furnish security does not furnish the same, the proceedings shall be laid, as soon as conveniently may be, before the Court of Session.

Court of Session may require security for period not exceeding three years.

297. If the Court of Session does not think it safe to direct the immediate discharge of such person, it shall fix a limited period for his detention, not exceeding three years, in the event of his not giving the security required from him.

Contents of order for security.

298. Whenever security for good behaviour is required by the Court of Session or the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid, the amount of the security, the number of sureties, and the period of time for which the sureties are to be responsible for the good conduct of the person required to furnish security, shall be stated in the order.

The security-bond shall be in the form (G) given in the appendix, or to the like effect.

299. In the event of any person required to give security under the provisions of the foregoing sections failing to furnish the security so required, he shall be committed to jail until he furnishes the same:

Term of imprisonment.

Provided that no such person shall be kept in jail for a period longer than that for which the security has been required from him.

Release of prisoners under requisition of security.

300. The Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate is empowered, at any time, to exercise his discretion in releasing, without reference to any other authority, any prisoner confined under requisition of security for good behaviour, whether by his own order or by the order of any officer subordinate to him, provided he is of opinion that such person can be released without hazard to the community.

Report in case of prisoner under requisition of security by order of Court of Session.

If no sufficient cause be shown, the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety by the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District.

If the penalty be not paid, and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the surety shall be liable to imprisonment by order of the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid in the civil jail, for a period not exceeding six months.

CHAPTER XX.

Of Local Nuisances.

Magistrate may order removal of nuisances.

307. Whenever the Magistrate of a District or of a Division of a District, or any officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, considers that any unlawful obstruction or nuisance should be removed from any thoroughfare or public place, or that any trade or occupation, by reason of its being injurious to the health or comfort of the community, should be suppressed or should be removed to a different place, or that the construction of any building or the disposal of any combustible substance, as likely to occasion conflagration, should be prevented, or that any building is in such a state of weakness that it is likely to fall, and thereby cause injury to persons passing by, and that its removal in consequence is necessary, or that any tank or well adjacent to any public thoroughfare should be fenced in such a manner as to prevent danger arising to the public—

he may issue an order to the person causing such obstruction or nuisance, or carrying on such trade or occupation, or being the owner or in possession of, or having control over, such building, substance, tank, or well as aforesaid, calling on him, within a time to be fixed in the order, to remove such obstruction or nuisance, or to suppress or remove such trade or occupation, or to stop the construction of such building, or to remove it, or to alter the disposal of such substance, or to fence such tank or well

(as the case may be),

or to appear before himself or some other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate or of a Subordinate Magistrate of the first class within the time mentioned in the order, and show cause why such order should not be enforced.

Service or notification of order.

308. Such order shall, if practicable, be served personally on the person to whom it is issued.

But if personal service is found to be impracticable, the order shall be notified by proclamation, and a written notice thereof shall be stuck up at such place or places as may be best adapted for conveying the information to such person.

Person ordered shall obey, or may claim a jury.

309. Suspension of order.

The Magistrate shall suspend the execution of the order pending such enquiry, and be guided by the decision of the jury, which shall be according to the opinion of the majority.

Procedure in case of non-appointment of or neglect by jury.

If the petitioner, by neglect or otherwise, prevents the appointment of a jury, or if from any cause the jury so appointed shall not decide and report within a reasonable time to be fixed in the order for the appointment, their functions shall cease from the date of the expiration of such period, unless they be continued by special order of the Magistrate.

If from any of the above causes no decision be made by the jury, the order of the Magistrate shall be carried into effect as hereinafter provided.

If such latter order is not obeyed, the Magistrate may proceed as in section 310.

312. If the person to whom the order of the Magistrate is issued appears and shows cause against it, and satisfies the Magistrate before whom he was required by the order to appear that it is not reasonable and proper, no further proceedings shall be taken in the case.

Injunction pending enquiry by jury.

313. If, pending the enquiry by a jury, the Magistrate that issued the order considers that immediate measures are necessary to be taken to prevent imminent danger or injury of a serious kind to the public, he may issue such an injunction to the person mentioned in that behalf in section 307 as is required to obviate or prevent such danger or injury.

In default of such person forthwith taking all necessary measures ordered to be taken by such injunction, the Magistrate may himself use or cause to be used such means as may be necessary to obviate such danger or to prevent such injury.

No suit shall lie in respect of anything necessarily or reasonably done for that purpose.

Saving of certain statutory provisions.

314. Nothing in this chapter shall interfere with the provisions of section forty-eight of Act No. XXIV of 1859 (for the better regulation of the Police within the territories subject to the Presidency of Fort St. George), or of section thirty-four of Act No. V of 1861 (for the regulation of Police), or of section sixteen of Act No. VIII of 1867 of the Governor of Bombay in Council.

Provided that the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall not pass any such order if the matter be such that the right of use is capable of being exercised at all times of the year, unless that right has been ordinarily exercised within three months from the date of the institution of the enquiry, or, in cases where the right of use exists at particular seasons, unless such right has been exercised during the last of such seasons before the complaint.

511	Attempting to commit offences punishable with transportation or imprisonment, and in such attempt doing any act towards the commission of the offence.	According as the offence is one in respect of which the Police may arrest without warrant or not.	According as the offence is one in respect of which a summons or warrant shall ordinarily issue.	According as the offence contemplated by the offender is bailable or not.	Transportation or imprisonment not exceeding half of the longest term and of the description provided for the offence, or fine, or both.	By the Court by which the offence attempted is triable.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Code of Criminal Procedure having been in force for upwards of six years, numerous suggestions for its amendment have from time to time been submitted by the courts and officers who have administered it. Some of these have been already taken into consideration, and three amending Acts have been passed. These are incorporated in the present Bill. Other proposed amendments have now been introduced, the chief of which are as follows :—

22. *[5]. The jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District has been increased to three years' imprisonment, instead of two. Power has also been given to the Local Government to invest certain full-power Magistrates with the extended jurisdiction, and the Local Governments have been empowered to delegate the power of appointing Subordinate Magistrates.

[7, 8, 9, and 10]. These sections have been added at the suggestion of the Government of Bombay.

26. [14]. In this and the following sections, the provision by which it was necessary to hold all proceedings in regard to any offence (up to punishment), not only in the district where the offence was committed, but in the division of the district, has been omitted. This provision, when strictly carried out, has been found very inconvenient, and seems quite unnecessary. It will still be requisite that the enquiry into every offence and subsequent proceedings should take place in the district where it occurred.

36. [24]. This section authorized the Magistrate of a District to transfer cases when under trial by his subordinates. It is now altered so as to admit of his transferring cases when under enquiry with a view to committal.

44. [32]. The phrase 'damage of a pecuniary value' has been altered to 'damage of a value that can, in the opinion of the Court, be compensated by a pecuniary award;' and the word 'revision' has been altered to 'appeal.'

49. [38]. The power of ordering the removal of prisoners from one jail to another is extended to the Inspector General of Jails.

61. [50]. An amendment has been made to define what property of the offender is liable to distress and sale.

68. [57]. Power has been given to the Magistrate of the District to direct any other Magistrate under him to take up a case of which the Magistrate of the District may have taken cognizance without any complaint.

70. [60]. Provision has been made that a summons in criminal cases shall be served in the same manner as in civil cases, viz., by showing the original and tendering a copy.

74. [63]. The power given by section 74 to the Magistrate of a District has been extended to any Magistrate.

86. [75]. Provision has been made that warrants for the arrest of persons out of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate who issues them may be directed to any Magistrate within whose jurisdiction the person is, and not to the Magistrate of the District. A similar amendment has been made in section 89 [78] and in section 121 [110].

127. [116]. The power of issuing search-warrants in cases of counterfeit coin, &c., has been extended to all officers vested with the full powers of a Magistrate.

130. [119]. In this and the following sections, amendments have been made with the object of specifying more clearly what is to be done with property seized by the Police, and three sections [122, 123 and 124] have been added with the same object.

140. [132]. An addition has been made which will have the effect of making certain provisions, applicable to warrants of arrest, apply also to orders to arrest issued by a Police officer.

149. [141]. An amendment has been made with the object of defining more exactly the nature of the magisterial sanction requisite to validate a confession made by a person in custody of the Police.

150. [142]. This section has been slightly altered with the object of ensuring greater accuracy.

160. [152]. The report of all arrests required to be made to the Magistrate of the District may be made to any other Magistrate if so directed.

161. [153]. The necessity of some more detailed and effectual rules for holding inquests in cases of unnatural or sudden death has been pointed out from several parts of India. It appears impossible to lay down in a general Code like this any more precise rules than those contained in section 161, but a proviso has been added that the Local Governments may enact any local regulations on the subject that seem requisite, and these regulations will take the place of the provisions of this section.

* The figures given in brackets are the numbers of the sections of the amended Code.

179. [171]. Difficulty has been caused by the use of the words 'a Magistrate' in this section. It is now amended so as to show what Magistrates have power to take action under it. In this and two other sections [242 and 251], an alteration has been made which will make it clear that the procedure of Chapters XII, XIV and XV are applicable to all offences, whether punishable under the Penal Code or any other law; and section 257 [251] has been altered so as to include offences punishable with fine only, as well as those punishable with imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months.

185. [177]. The wording has been amended.

203. [195]. The following words have been omitted from this section:—"But if the accused person shall, of his own accord, propose to confess the commission by him of the offence of which he is accused, the Magistrate shall require him to give an account of the facts and circumstances in detail, and shall examine him thereupon in the same manner as if he were a witness."

It is not clear why these words were added, and the direction that the accused person is to be examined as a witness has led to mistakes of procedure.

[218]. Provision has been made to meet the difficulty pointed out by the High Court of Fort William, arising from the absence of clear instructions whether a Magistrate enquiring into an offence triable only by a Court of Session, and committed by a person who is a lunatic, should commit him for trial or acquit him.

[220]. This new section requires the procedure of this Code to be observed by Justices of the Peace in the mofussil when committing European British subjects to take their trial before the High Courts.

221. [213]. At present, when a recognizance or surety is forfeited, no lower authority than the Local Government has power to remit any portion of it. It is proposed to give the officer or court that orders forfeiture the power of remitting a portion, and to make all orders for forfeiture subject to the control of the Magistrate of the District.

266. [260, 261]. It has been held that the language of this and other sections made it doubtful whether the Code contemplated that all witnesses in petty cases coming under Chapter XV should be examined in the presence of the accused person; and, as at the same time it was considered desirable that some provision should be made for examining absent witnesses by a summary procedure without summoning them to the place where the trial is being held, an amendment is suggested in the Bill.

[262]. This seems to have been accidently omitted from the Code.

[267]. Section 270 of the Code limited the power of giving amends for frivolous and vexatious complaints to cases coming under Chapter XIV, i. e., relating to offences the maximum punishment of which is not more than six months' imprisonment. But it is evident that a frivolous and vexatious complaint may be laid, in which an offence of a more serious nature is charged for the sake of exaggerating the alleged injury, and it seems right that the power of awarding summary amends should be extended to such cases also. Certain offences the limit of whose punishment as defined in the Indian Penal Code is in excess of six months, have therefore been included in this category.

276, 277. [273, 274]. By an alteration in these sections, Subordinate Magistrates will be enabled to refer cases beyond their jurisdiction to the nearest Magistrate having jurisdiction, instead of being compelled, as now, to refer them to the Magistrate of the District, who may be at an inconvenient distance. An addition has been made to section [273] which is in accordance with the rulings of some of the courts.

[279]. This is required to meet the case of dangerous criminals.

307. [305, 306]. An addition has been made to section 307 which is much wanted in extensive districts where it is inconvenient to bring respectable persons a great distance to give evidence before the Magistrate of the District as to the habit and repute of dangerous characters. Section [306] seems required.

Chapter XX. [307–14]. An amendment has been suggested in the procedure laid down by this chapter, by which enquiries into local nuisances will be considerably facilitated. At present the Magistrate of the District has to initiate the enquiry as well as to prosecute it. The amendment will admit of the enquiry, when once initiated, being conducted by a Subordinate Magistrate on the spot.

317. [316]. A person who has been ordered to pay a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or child, may have that allowance reduced on proof of an alteration in his circumstances for the worse. It is now proposed to allow the wife or child to apply for an increase of the allowance, when the circumstances of the husband or father improve.

318. [317]. An alteration has been made which will enable the Magistrates to decide the commonest class of disputes, namely, those of persons in joint possession of shares in land, &c.

[346]. Provision has been made for juries being sworn.

372. [372]. The Court of Session is empowered to record a judgment of acquittal, if there is no case for the prosecution.

373, 374. [373, 374]. An alteration has been suggested in these sections. Under the Code, the Court could put a question to the accused person only at the close of the evidence for the defence (or, if none were offered, at the close of the evidence for the prosecution); but if the accused person or his agent addressed the Court at the close of the case for the prosecution and then omitted to call any evidence, the Court would have apparently lost the power of questioning him. The amendments have been made with the object of defining better the mode of questioning the accused.

[380–382]. These sections have been added according to suggestions received.

[389]. This is a new section.

406. [409]. Wording amended.

Chapter XXX. [410–31]. While the subordination of the Magistrates' Courts to the Sessions Courts in regard to appeal has been preserved, care has been taken to provide that in all other respects the Magistrate of the District shall be really, as he is in name, the head executive officer, and the subordination of all other Magistrates to him is provided for (vide section 440).

415. [418]. The proviso, that appeals may be admitted after the specified period on sufficient cause shown, has been extended to those appeals that lie to the Magistrate of the District.

421, 422, 432. [424, 425, 435]. Additions have been made of no great importance.

435. [438]. This section provides that the Sessions Court may order the commitment of persons who have been discharged by the Magistrate in cases not triable by the Magistrate. There is a large class of offences triable by the Sessions Court and by the Magistrate; and the Bill proposes to extend the power of the Sessions Court to the case of such offences also.

Schedule.—Forgery of currency notes has been made an offence for which the Police may arrest without warrant, and several minor amendments have been made.

NOTIFICATION.

The 9th April 1868.—The following revised Regulations made by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, pursuant to the provisions of Section 6, Act XX. of 1865, for conducting the examination of applicants for admission as Pleaders or Mooktears in the Mofussil Courts, subordinate to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, are published in supersession of those which appeared in the Calcutta Gazette of the 28th November 1866:—

REGULATIONS made by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, pursuant to the provisions of Section 6, Act XX. of 1865, for conducting the examination of applicants for admission as Pleaders or Mooktears in the Mofussil Courts, subordinate to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

For the higher grade of Pleaders.

1. In order to the ascertainment of the qualifications of candidates for admission as Pleaders in the Courts above-mentioned, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal will, from time to time, appoint Examiners, to be called Government Examiners of Pleaders. Such persons are hereinafter referred to as "the Government Examiners."

2. A local examination of candidates for the higher grade of Pleaders shall be held on such dates within the latter half of the month of January in each year, as shall be appointed and duly notified by the Government Examiners.

3. The local examination of candidates for Pleadership of the higher grade shall be held at the Head-Quarters of the Division before a Local Committee, consisting of the Judge who shall preside, the Magistrate, and the Principal Sudder Ameen at that place, together with any other officer of Government whom the Lieutenant-Governor may think fit to appoint.

4. The examination shall be conducted in English.

5. There shall be an examination by written questions, and answers in writing thereto, and also a vivâ voce examination.

6. Previously to each examination the Government Examiners shall prepare written questions, of which there shall be not less than three papers; and one paper shall embrace the subjects of Criminal Law and Procedure.

7. Each paper shall contain twelve questions. The number of marks to which a candidate shall be entitled for a full answer shall be separately fixed for each question by the Government Examiners and shall be specified upon the paper of questions.

8. The aggregate number of marks for full answers to the whole of the twelve questions shall be 160.

9. The full number of marks for the vivâ voce examination, in which candidates shall be asked at least four questions, shall be 50.

10. The written questions, and also the questions, which shall be put at the vivâ voce examination, shall be so framed as to test the knowledge of the candidates in the subjects mentioned in Clause 2, Section 6 of the Rules passed by the High Court, for the qualification, admission, and enrolment of Pleaders and Mooktears in Mofussil Courts, and published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 9th of May 1866; and they shall be so prepared that a candidate may be enabled to pass by studying the Regulations, Enactments, and Text Books set opposite to the respective subjects in the said Clause. Where two or more Text Books are mentioned in the alternative, the questions shall be framed in such a manner that they can be answered by persons who have studied any one of such Text Books.

11. The written questions shall be sent by the Government Examiners to the Registrar of the High Court, who shall forward them to the President of the Local Committee of Examiners.

12. The number of marks, whether full or less than full, to which each candidate shall be entitled for his answers to the written questions, shall be determined by the Government Examiners. The number of marks to which each candidate shall be entitled for his answers at the vivâ voce examination shall be determined by the Local Committee.

13. To be entitled to pass as a Pleader of the higher grade, a candidate must obtain not less than 100 marks in each of the three written papers, and not less than 30 marks in the vivâ voce examination.

14. A candidate who shall obtain not less than 80 marks in each of the written papers and not less than 20 marks in the vivâ voce examination shall become qualified as a Pleader of the lower grade.

15. After the local examination shall have been concluded, the Committee shall forward to the Government Examiners, through the Registrar of the High Court, the answers of the several candidates to the written questions, together with a certificate, signed by the President of the Local Committee, of the number of marks awarded to each candidate in the vivâ voce examination; whereupon the Government Examiners shall proceed to examine the answers to the written questions and determine what number of marks each candidate shall receive for such answers, and they shall declare as to each candidate whether, according to the Rules above laid down, he has or has not passed the examination; provided that the Local Committee shall not be bound to forward to the Government Examiners the written answers of any candidate, who shall fail to obtain 20 marks in the vivâ voce examination.

16. As soon as the examination shall have been concluded, the Government Examiners shall submit a report of their proceedings to the Registrar of the High Court, who shall transmit the same to the Government. Certificates will be granted to the successful candidates. They will be signed by one of the Government Examiners in Calcutta, and will be forwarded by the Registrar of the High Court for distribution by the Presidents of the Local Committees.

17. The names of the successful candidates shall be published in the Government Gazette.

The following Orders issued by the Government of India, in the Financial Department, are re-published for general information :—

No. 2464.

Resolution by the Government of India, Financial Department (Separate Revenue—Assessed Taxes.)

The Governor General of India in Council, in accordance with the authority given him under Section 35 of Act IX of 1868, is pleased to prescribe the following rules for the guidance of Officers in matters connected with the enforcement of the said Act.

1. Owing to the exemption of all persons whose annual profits are less than Rs. 500, the number of persons required to take out certificates under Act IX of 1868 will be about one-fifth the number required to take out licenses under Act XXI and XXIX of 1867. The work performed and the experience gained under the License Tax Act will greatly diminish the labor and difficulty of carrying out the Certificate Act. The Governor General in Council therefore hopes that excepting in the Presidency towns and some few of the larger towns in India, the provisions of the Act will be carried out by the ordinary executive officers of Government and their subordinates without extra assistance or special establishments. Where such extra assistance is necessary it will probably not be required for more than a few months.

2. The powers of Collector under the Act are primarily given to the Collector of land revenue, and the powers of a Commissioner to the Commissioner of land revenue.

The different powers of a Collector are as follows :—

1*st.*—The determination of what persons are liable to take out certificates, and under which class of Schedule A each person is to be assessed, and the preparation of a list in accordance with such determination (Secs. 12 and 13).

2*nd.*—The granting certificates and receiving payment for the same (Sec. 10).

3*rd.*—The hearing and disposing of petitions objecting to the assessment (Secs. 14 and 15).

4*th.*—The serving of notices on defaulters (Secs. 17 and 28).

5*th.*—The prosecution of persons before the Magistrate—

(a) for not taking out a certificate (Sec. 17).

(b) for refusing to produce a certificate on demand (Sec. 18).

6*th.*—The recovery of the tax by process of the revenue law (Sec. 29).

The Collector has also certain powers with respect to the assessment of Joint Stock Companies and their servants.

The powers of a Commissioner are confined to the hearing and deciding appeals from orders passed by the Collector on petitions of objection (Sec. 15).

Under Section 31, the Local Governments can confer any or all of these powers on any person other than the Collector and Commissioner of land revenue.

In determining what persons, if any, should be entrusted with any or all of the powers of a Collector or Commissioner, Local Governments will be guided by considerations of convenience to the tax-payers and the means at the disposal of Government for utilizing its own officers, or, where it may be necessary, non-official persons. It may be convenient, for instance, to confer the powers of a Collector, so far as regards the preparation of the list and the granting certificates, on one person, and to reserve the remaining powers for another. It may also sometimes be proper, while giving an officer power, to determine the classes in which each person is to be assessed to reserve to another officer the preparation of the list so far as regards some of the higher classes.

The Governor General in Council authorises Local Governments to entertain the necessary establishments in anticipation of the formal sanction, application for which should be made without delay.

3. To each person entrusted with any or all of the powers of a Collector or Commissioner there should, ordinarily, be assigned a definite portion of the district, in which he may exercise such powers. So soon as the Local Governments have determined what officers shall exercise any or all of the powers of a Collector and Commissioner in each district, or portion of a district, the preparation of the lists prescribed in Section 13 should be commenced. Although these lists will have no legal force until the 1st day of May, their preparation should not be delayed. Under the terms of Sections 5 and 10, only one certificate is necessary for each person, however many professions or trades such person may exercise, and in how many soever places or districts. This certificate must be granted by the Collector of the district in which the principal place of business of such person is situate. The Collector must therefore, before determining the class in which any person is to be assessed, be careful to ascertain whether that person exercises or intends to exercise any profession or trade in any other place or district, and if so, he must communicate with the Collector of that district in order to form a fair estimate of the annual profits of such person, and to determine which is the principal place of business of such person. Section 33 sufficiently provides for the determination of any difference of opinion as to the district in which payment is to be made and the certificate granted. The Governor General in Council is pleased to declare, as a general rule, that the ordinary place of residence of the person assessed and, in the case of a firm, the ordinary place of residence of the head acting partner shall be held to be the principal place of business of such person or firm.

4. In determining the class in which any person is to be assessed, the Collector, while abstaining from inquisitorial proceedings and interrogations of the person himself, should avail himself of every proper means of arriving at a fair estimate of the truth. Besides his official subordinates, some of the respectable inhabitants of the town, such as the heads of trades and professions, will generally be able and willing to assist the Collector in the process of classification. If any person volunteers information to the Collector either orally or by a written statement regarding his own annual profits, such information should be received and accepted quantum valeat.

5. In making any assessment of annual profits under Schedule A, the following profits must be left out of the account, that is to say: 1. Rents or profits from land or from houses, whether the recipients be proprietors, lessees, or cultivators. 2. Interest of money invested in the funds or any stock or otherwise, except in the case of bankers or money-dealers or where such interest arises in the course of the regular transactions of any profession or trade.

6. The lists will be in the form 1 appended, the classes being kept separate. If any person or firm intends to exercise more than one trade or profession, each such trade or profession should be entered in column 3, and each place where each such trade or profession is intended to be exercised should be entered in column 4. For natives of India, the lists will be in the Vernacular. Separate lists will be made in English for Europeans, Eurasians, &c. If any person is removed from one class to another or entirely exempted, a note to that effect will be made in the column of remarks.

The notification (form 2) should be filed with the list, and a notification to like intent should be made public throughout the district or portion of the district to which the list refers.

7. Certificates will be granted in form 3. As it is necessary that all the places, in which the certificate holder intends to exercise his profession or trade during the year of assessment, should be specified, the necessary information must be obtained at the time of application for the certificate. If it should then appear that the profits gained in any other place or district have been overlooked, the Collector will not grant the certificate, until he has after due inquiry amended if necessary the list in respect of the class in which the applicant should be charged. In case a notice has been served, it may be necessary to serve a fresh notice fifteen days after such amendment if the new assessment has not meanwhile been paid.

8. A register should be kept in form 4 of all certificates granted, the particulars being filled up at the time of granting the certificate to which they refer. Separate registers should be kept for each class of certificate, and different sets of registers for Native and European certificate holders. If subsequently any person is removed from one class to another or entirely exempted, the certificate should be amended or annulled, the fact being noted in the column of remarks in the register, and a new entry being made under the class to which the certificate has been removed.

9. Before passing orders on any petition of objection preferred under Section 15, the Collector must carefully examine the evidence presented by the petitioner, and call for such further evidence as may be necessary to arrive at a proper decision in the case. The ascertained profits of the year of account preceding the year of assessment will be primâ facie the basis of the Collector's decision. Any special circumstances tending to prove that the profits of the year of assessment will materially differ from the profits of the previous year will be allowed due weight.

10. Against the gross receipts no deductions should be allowed on account of disbursements or expenses not wholly and exclusively incurred on account of the profession or trade in respect of the profits of which the assessment has been made, nor on account of the maintenance of the person himself, or his family, or domestic establishment, nor on account of any public or local rates, cesses, or taxes. Deductions from the gross receipts may be allowed on account of the following items of expenditure:—

Sums expended in the repairs of implements, utensils, or articles used solely for the purpose of the profession or trade, calculated on the average expenditure for the past three years.

Sums expended for insurance of the premises, implements, or stock of the profession or trade.

Rent paid for any premises used for such profession or trade, provided that if such premises shall not have been exclusively used for such profession or trade, a fair proportion only of such rent shall be deducted from the gross receipts.

Ten per cent. on the rack rent of such premises, on account of repairs, if such repairs are at the cost of the petitioner.

Sums expended in the payment of persons employed solely in such profession or trade.

The amount of any losses of the stock-in-trade.

The amount of any bad debts for the first time ascertained and written off as such during the year.

Sums paid during the year for insurance of the life of person assessed or his wife, not exceeding one-tenth of the said profits.

Under the present Act, no deductions from the Imperial Tax on account of Municipal Taxes can be authorized.

11. The Collector must write his final order on every petition of objection, and supply the petitioner with a copy of such order on plain paper with its date on his application for the same. A register (form 5) of petitions received and disposed of should be kept by each Collector.

12. If it should appear in the course of the investigation that the petitioner exercises any profession or trade in any other place or district, the Collector must, previous to passing final orders, make due inquiries as to the profits gained in that other place or district.

13. Commissioners will be guided by the above rules, so far as they may be applicable, in determining appeals from the Collector's orders. A register (form 6) of all appeals will be kept by each officer exercising the powers of a Commissioner.

14. In the case of persons commencing any profession or trade in the course of the year of assessment, it will be necessary for the Collector to estimate the annual profits of such persons. For this purpose the assessment should be delayed for a time in order that the Collector may be able to form a fair judgment as to the class in which such persons are to be charged. The Collector will then calculate what would be the probable profits for an entire year, and classify the person accordingly, entering his name in the list. The certificate will be granted on payment of one quarter, one half, three quarters, on the full tax of the class in which the person is so placed, according to the date on which the business was commenced. The decision of this date rests with the Collector under Section 12. It will be entered in the remark columns of the list (form 1) and register of certificates (form 4).

15. It will be observed that no notice can be served on a defaulter under Section 17 until at least fifteen days after the entry of his name in the list prepared under Section 13. Under no circumstances, therefore, can such notice be served before the 16th day of May. Notices will be in form 7. If the notice refer to the second instalment, it will be in form 8. A register of all such notices should be kept in form 9. Particular endeavours should be made to cause personal service of the notice. The mode in which the notice has been served should in all cases be entered in the register of notices. The Collector should be prepared to produce in case of necessity good evidence of the service of the notice. The form of notice (form 9) to be served upon defaulting Joint Stock Companies (form 10) is appended.

16. After the expiry of seven days from service of the notice, the defaulter may be prosecuted before the Magistrate. It will only be necessary for the Collector to prove the legal service of the notice, and it will not be competent to the Magistrate to make any further investigation or to enquire into the propriety of the assessment. It will be his duty, on being satisfied that the notice has been legally served and that the demand has not been paid, to award the full penalty of twice the demand. He has under the Act no power of mitigating this penalty.

17. The tax in this case having become a penalty, the option of paying by instalments or of objecting to the assessment will be lost. A register of prosecutions (form 11) before the Magistrate under Sections 17 and 18 should be kept.

18. The Local Governments will make rules for the recovery of the tax by revenue processes under Section 29, and prescribe the form of register for recording particulars of such processes.

19. The Magistrate will at once make over to the Collector all penalties recovered under Section 17, and the Collector will thereupon grant the necessary certificate. Fines under Section 18 will be dealt with as ordinary fines by a Magistrate under the Criminal Law.

20. Firms are to be assessed as persons, and the partners will not be liable as such to individual assessment. The above rules will therefore apply to firms as if they were persons.

21. Every Joint Stock Company has an option under the Act of paying Rs. 500 on each Branch or Agency in British India, or of paying one per cent. on the dividend declared by such Company during the year ending the 31st March previous to the year of assessment. Should a Joint Stock Company elect to pay on the dividend, it must, through the proper officer, on or before the 30th April, deliver a return to the Collector, stating the amount of the said dividend. Where no such dividend was declared, the Company, by making a return to that effect, will be entitled to complete exemption from the tax. It follows that if any Joint Stock Company commences business during the year of assessment, such Company by electing to pay on its dividend of the previous year may obtain exemption from the tax. The Governor General in Council is pleased to exempt all such Companies whether they make a return or not. Although in strictness no Joint Stock Company will be legally entitled to claim taxation at one per cent. on its dividend in lieu of paying Rs. 500 on each Branch or Agency, unless the return be delivered on or before the 30th April, Collectors are authorized to accept such return and to proceed to assessment thereon, if it be delivered within a reasonable time after that date, on good cause being shown for the delay. Joint Stock Companies have not the option of paying by instalments.

22. The mode of assessment on official salaries having been entirely changed, all orders relating to such assessments under the License Tax Act or relating to refunds of the License Tax are cancelled as being inapplicable and unnecessary in the present state of the Law. Assessments on such salaries will be made in accordance with the provisions of Section 23 of Act IX of 1863 and the following rules.

23. No servant of Government is liable to taxation in that capacity if his pay be less than Rs. 1,000 per annum. Under the term 'pay' is included all pay and allowances of appointments, whether substantive, officiating, or temporary, excepting special sums allowed to meet disbursements on the public service (not being fixed monthly allowances ordinarily paid with the salary of an office or employment, whether the service for which such allowance is nominally granted be performed or not). All sums stopped under the authority of Government in the nature of payments to pension or annuity funds, to regimental mess or band funds, or the like should be deducted from the pay previous to assessment. Every servant of Government, therefore (with the exceptions prescribed in Section 3) whose net pay and allowances thus calculated amount to Rs. 83-5-4 per mensem, is liable to assessment on that net pay at the rate of one per cent. to be deducted at the time of payment by the Examiner of Claims, or other officer exercising the like functions.

24. Every such officer will keep a register in form 12 showing the deductions made on account of the tax under the Act.

25. Any servant of Government who is allowed to exercise any other profession or a trade on his own account will be liable to separate assessment by the Collector under Schedule A, in respect solely of his profits from such profession or trade. In classifying such persons the Collector will entirely leave out of the account their official salaries, whether those salaries be less than Rs. 1,000 per annum, or equal or exceed that amount.

26. The case of persons holding employments under public institutions, such as Municipalities, the Asiatic Society, and the like, has not been specially provided for in the Act. Such persons are liable to assessment by the Collector under Schedule A. Collectors are authorized, however, to give such persons the option of being assessed in the same manner as servants of Government or servants of Companies at one per cent. on their salaries. In many cases this arrangement will be favorable to such persons in lessening the actual amount of tax, while in all cases there will be the advantage of the mode of payment by deductions from time to time, from their salaries, instead of payment in a lump sum or by two instalments.

27. If any servant of Government has insured his life or that of his wife, he may make application to the Examiner of Claims or other officer whose duty it is to deduct the tax from his salary, and on proving to the satisfaction of that officer the amount of any payment made on account of such insurance during the year of assessment, he will be entitled to a refund of the tax on such payment. Provided that such payment, together with the fund subscriptions which may have been deducted from his salary and therefore exempted from assessment, does not exceed ten per cent. of the full salary. If it do so exceed ten per cent., refund will be disallowed on the excess.

28. On or before the 30th April, each Joint Stock Company, through its proper officer, is bound to deliver to the Collector a list of persons in its employ whose salaries on that date are at the rate of Rs. 1,000 or more per annum. This list will serve as a check on subsequent payments to be deducted from the salaries at the rate of one per cent. But it must be observed that if the rate of any such person's salary is altered during the year, the assessment will be made at one per cent. on the actual salary paid. The Collector will take steps to satisfy himself that such is the case. The Collector will make arrangements with the Companies as to the time and method of receiving the amount of deductions from the salaries of persons in their employ. The payments to the Collector should be made at least once a quarter, if monthly payments be found inconvenient.

29. If any person in the employ of a Joint Stock Company exercise some other profession or trade, he will be assessed by the Collector in respect solely of the profits of that profession or trade, under Schedule A, in the same manner or servants of Government exercising a profession as trade as prescribed in Rule 23.

30. If any person in the employ of a Joint Stock Company has insured his life or that of his wife, he may make application to the Collector of the district in which the principal place of business of the said Company is situate, and on proving to the satisfaction of the said Collector the amount of any payment made on account of such insurance during the year of assessment, he will be entitled to a refund of the amount of the tax on such payment. Provided that such refund do not exceed one-tenth of the amount of the tax paid by the said servant of a Company. Collectors will keep registers (form 13) of amounts received on account of assessments on servants of Companies and of refunds under this rule. In this register may be entered the servants of public bodies as Municipalities who have been similarly assessed.

31. In every case where the assessment is made at one per cent. on salaries or dividends, pies of the tax will be neglected. The salaries to be assessed will be those on account of and not those paid during the year of assessment. The first assessment therefore on Government officials and servants of Companies will be made on the salaries for the month of May.

32. All taxes collected under this Act, and all penalties recovered under Section 17, will be credited to the Government of India under the Budget head "Assessed Taxes." When the 2nd instalment is paid in advance, the full tax will be credited, the discount being charged per contra.

33. Each Local Government will submit quarterly to the Government of India in the Financial Department, returns, in the forms 14 to 17. At the end of the year of assessment the annual return, form 18, will be submitted. This return relates only to assessments under Schedule A. Joint Stock Companies assessed under Section 22, Government officials and servants of Companies assessed on their salaries will not be included in it. It should be prepared in two parts, one for Natives, and the other for Europeans, Eurasians, &c. It is essential that no deviation be made in any of these forms of returns to the Government of India, as it is intended to compile from them general returns for all India. With the annual returns the Governor General in Council will be glad to receive from each Local Government a general report on the administration of the Act.

34. The Governor General in Council is pleased to delegate to all Local Governments the power of making further rules subsidiary to these rules under Section 36 of the Act. Such further rules should be reported for sanction to the Governor General in Council.

ORDERED, that the foregoing Resolution be communicated to the other Departments of the Government of India, the several Local Governments and Administrations, the Comptroller General of Accounts, and the several Accountants General, and Deputy Accountants General in independent charge, and with the accompanying forms be published in the Gazette of India.

DRAFT.

The following Draft Rules, having reference [illegible] the undermentioned Navigable Channels, viz. :—

Bhaugiruttee River,
Matabhanga ,,

called collectively the Nuddea Rivers, are publishe[illegible] for information, under the provisions of Secti[illegible] XI. of the "Canals' Act, 1864" (No. V., B. [illegible] C.) :—

DRAFT RULES.

I. Every vessel on entering any of the Nud[illegible] Rivers aforesaid shall be liable to measurement [illegible] the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll [illegible] vessel should pay according to the Schedule of Rates authorized to be charged by Government, and in the case of boats or vessels which may have entered the rivers unladen or partially laden; and paid toll accordingly, and which have received on board any additional freight; or in the case of boats or vessels regarding the maundage of which any reasonable doubt shall arise; the collecting Officer at any Toll Station shall have power to make a fresh measurement and to demand payment of any additional amount of toll which may be leviable on account of the additional maundage.

The tonnage of every laden vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purpose of the "Canals' Act, 1864," and of these Rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

a. The product of half the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

b. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

c. In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any fraction of 100 maunds less than 25 maunds is to be omitted; exceeding 25 and not exceeding 50 maunds is to be charged as 25 maunds only; exceeding 50 and not exceeding 75 maunds is to be charged as 50 maunds only; and exceeding 75 maunds as 75 maunds only. Above one thousand maunds, no fractions of 100 maunds are to be charged.

III. The tonnage of every empty vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals' Act of 1864," and of these Rules, be determined, and tolls shall be levied thereon, under the same rules and by the same system of measurement as above laid down for laden vessels, with the following exception, viz.:—

The measurement of the depth of the vessel shall, in the case of its being unladen, be made from the gunwale to the bottom of the vessel, instead of being taken from the water line, as in the case of a laden vessel.

IV. The measurement of Steamers and Flats shall be taken to be as ascertained by the Master Attendant's Department at Calcutta for the payment by such vessels of the Port dues under the Merchant Seaman's Act, subject to the following deductions:—

a. In the case of Steamers, 35 per cent. of the tonnage of the hull, excluding the cabin accommodation altogether, will be allowed as the tonnage of the engine-room, coal-bunkers, &c., and toll will be levied on the remaining 65 per cent. of the tonnage.

b. In the case of Flats, 10 per cent. of the tonnage will be allowed for accommodation, &c., and tolls will be levied on the remaining 90 per cent. of tonnage.

V. Owners and Agents of Steamers who may desire to avoid the delay consequent on payment of toll on passing Toll Stations, may give notice to the Board of Revenue of their desire and willingness to pay toll in Calcutta on demand, and, on depositing such amount as the Board of Revenue may determine, they shall be furnished with a certificate which shall entitle the Steamer or Flat to pass any Toll Station without detention; the amount of toll due on account thereof being paid in Calcutta on demand, or deducted from the amount deposited with the Board of Revenue.

VI. In such cases the Commanders of the vessels will leave at the Toll Station a certificate of having passed the Station on such a date. These certificates will be attached as vouchers to the bills, which will be presented for payment to the owners or agents of the vessel by the Officer in Calcutta authorized to receive payment thereof.

VII. Every vessel, except Steamers or Flats, which may pay toll under Rule V., on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers, shall, on paying the prescribed toll, be furnished with a ticket. The ticket shall specify the Station at which it has been issued; the date the vesssel entered the river; the person in charge of the vessel; the maundage of the vessel, and the amount of toll paid.

VIII. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorized Officer of Government employed on the rivers and they must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. The manjee or owner of every vessel on the Nuddea Rivers not having a ticket on board producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of Section X. of the Canals' Act.

IX. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the particulars can satisfactorily be established, will be granted by Officers in charge of Toll Stations on payment of a fee of one Rupee.

X. No fleet of vessels or rafts lashed together and exceeding 150 feet in length, carrying or floating timbers exceeding in all twenty in number, shall pass into, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers at one time or abreast.

XI. No single vessel or raft carrying or floating a greater number than twelve timbers shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers; provided also that no single vessel or raft carrying or floating more than six timbers shall pass into, or through, any of the aforesaid rivers between the 1st of December of any year and the 1st of July following.

XII. For every vessel or raft, or fleet of vessels or of rafts, and for every timber which shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers in violation of Rules X. and XI., the owner thereof or the person in charge shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, under Section XVIII. of the "Canals' Act, 1864," be punishable by a fine not exceeding Rupees 10 for each vessel, raft, or timber, in excess of the number authorized, besides being subjected to the payment of the prescribed toll on the same. The payment of the toll shall, if necessary, be enforced in the manner described in Section 9 of the "Canals' Act, 1864."

XIII. Refusal to pay the toll on Steamers or Flats, except on those which are furnished with a certificate under Rule V., or evasion or attempt at evasion of such payment, will be dealt with under Sections 9 and 10 of the "Canals' Act, 1864," except that, instead of the vessel being seized and detained as directed in Section IX., any separate cargo or stores, the sale proceeds of which will be sufficient to defray the amount of toll that should be paid, and which can, without inconvenience or danger to itself or to the rest of the cargo, be taken out of the vessel, shall be so taken out and detained, and subsequent proceedings shall be taken thereon as directed in Section IX.

XIV. No vessels whatever, except such as are employed solely in conveying troops on military duty, or are employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the Nuddea Rivers, shall be exempted from paying toll.

Circular Order by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

No. 2.

(CRIMINAL SIDE.)

To all Criminal Judicial Authorities.—(dated Calcutta, the 6th April 1868.)

IN a recent case certain questions as to sentences of whipping and the maximum of punishment which can be awarded, under Section 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, were referred to a Full Bench of this Court for determination.

The attention of all Officers entrusted with the administration of Criminal Justice is called to two points which have been decided by the majority of the Judges composing the Full Bench Court.

It has been decided—

I.—That when a person who has not been "previously convicted" (using the term in the sense in which it is used in Section 4, Act VI. of 1864) is convicted at one time of two or more offences, it is illegal to sentence him to whipping for one of these offences, in addition to imprisonment or fine for the other or others; but that it is not illegal to sentence him to one whipping in lieu of all other punishment.

II.—That when a person who has been "previously convicted" is convicted at one time of two or more offences, he may be punished with one, but only one whipping, in addition to any other punishment to which, under Section 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he may be liable.

The Court take this opportunity of impressing upon all Officers vested with power to pass sentences of whipping, that such sentences should be passed with the utmost caution and with due deliberation; and that, if any doubt is felt either as to the legality or propriety (in any particular case) of passing a sentence of whipping, such a sentence ought not to be passed.

PORT CANNING LAND INVESTMENT, RECLAMATION, AND DOCK COMPANY, LIMITED.

IN compliance with a requisition made in writing and dated the 31st day of March last, signed by the required number of Shareholders holding the required number of shares as provided for by Section 46 of the Articles of Association of the Company, which has been submitted to the Directors of the Company requesting them to convene an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Shareholders to consider the Acts of the Directors relative to the late Secretaries and Mr. Schiller, and to decide as to the legality of the action at law now being proceeded with against those gentlemen, and also to consider such other matters as may be brought before them and in accordance with the opinion of the Advocate-General taken upon the question, as to the length of time that should be allowed in the notice convening the Meeting and which opinion is as follows:—

"As I read the 48th Section, the word 'convene' must be taken as equivalent to 'give notice of' and consequently a Meeting need not actually be held within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition; the time named in the notice should be reasonable, and considering that the object of fixing that time at three months would be to give every registered Shareholders an opportunity of recording his vote on a matter of vital importance, I think three months would not be an unreasonable time; it would give the opportunity of communicating with absent Shareholders and obtaining their proxies."

An Extraordinary General Meeting of the Shareholders is hereby convened to be held at the Registered Office of the Company, No. 6, Bankshall Street, Calcutta, on Friday, the 17th day of July next, for the purposes stated in the above requisition.

By Order of the Directors,

nclosure to Circular No. 8, Railway.

TAIN R. DEBOURBEL, Superintending Engineer, e, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Works Department,—(dated the 18th October

G my short stay in Australia, I picked up information about the coal and timber of outh Wales, and send you the papers best coals from Newcastle, a Port at the f the River Hunter, seven hours' steam Sydney, are said to equal the average of North Country coals for steam-raising s, but are inferior to Welsh coal.

ustralia, for marine engines, Newcastle preferred; but for locomotive engines, half castle and half of Bellambi coal is used. This latter coal is said to be the better fuel, but cakes, and gives much more trouble to the firemen.

Bellambi is situated in the Illawarra District, another coal-field five hours' steam south from Sydney; this coal is also cheaper than Newcastle coal, 7*s.* as against 9*s.* 3*d.* per ton shipped.

There is, however, no good harbour for large ships along the Illawarra Coast, and the trade is now carried on by small coasters. An harbour is being made at Wollongong, the Capital of this District, but it will not be finished for some time: the entrance, too, hardly seemed to me safe for large vessels in bad weather, and practically Newcastle coal will, for some time to come, be the only Australian coal available for export to India and China.

Newcastle has a fair harbour and large wharf fitted with steam-cranes, along which ten large ships can load or unload at one time, and connected by rail or tramway with the various coal-mines in this neighbourhood. The entrance to this harbour is also difficult in bad weather, as may be seen from the accompanying Circular of Messrs. Charles F. Stokes and Co., the shipping Agents at Newcastle, from whom much of my information regarding price of freight, &c., is derived.

The price of the best Newcastle coal delivered at Bombay would vary from 36*s.* to 46*s.* per ton in ordinary times, all charges included, except cost of landing at Bombay; and if, as I believe, the price at Bombay of English North Country coal exceeds this figure (say from 50*s.* to 60*s.* per ton), the question of importing Australian coal in preference to English and Scotch coals (not Welsh) for marine, stationary, and locomotive engines, is worth considering.

Of the Newcastle coals, those from the Wallsend and Minimi mines gave the most favourable results in the trials made in England; but at Newcastle, the Lambton, Warlah, and Australian agricultural coals are much esteemed, while the Four-Mile Creek coal, further inland, is said to be of superior quality, and as they all come from the same field, there is probably not much difference between them when tried on the spot. As some kinds of coal may, however, deteriorate more than others by a long sea voyage, I should not be inclined to accept the results of the experiments made in England or in Australia as final for India, and would suggest that a cargo of samples from the various mines at work at or near Newcastle be sent to Bombay, and be there tried and compared with English, Scotch, Welsh, and Indian coals.

The present course of trade is for ships to bring out cargo from England to the large Sea-ports of Australia; take ballast, coal, or timber to India or China, and thence take cargo back to England.

The shipping arrangements for coal could be made either in London or at Newcastle; the former would ensure more regularity in the supply from Australia to India.

The Peninsula and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, and the British India Steam Navigation Company, are said to have commenced using Australian coal in the Indian Ocean and China Seas, and some appears to have been sent to the Bombay and Baroda Railway.

Mr. Thomas' report may be relied upon, and should you have it printed, may I ask you to send six copies to him at the Railway Engineer's Office, Sydney, New South Wales.

I shewed these papers to Captain Nasmyth, R. E. from Bombay, whom I met in Sydney, and he has taken copies to send to General Rivers, the Agent for the Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

Should anything like a steady demand for Australian coal set in in any part of India for any purposes, such as Railways, in which the Government is immediately interested, the latter should insist upon the Railway Companies having an experienced and trustworthy Engineer Agent resident at Newcastle, to see in person that the coal shipped was clean and screened, and of the desired quality.

About timber for sleepers, the kinds preferred on the Railways in New South Wales are iron-bark and box, though stringy bark and gum are used, where the former are scarce, or of inferior quality.

The peculiarity of these Australian woods is, that the trees are evergreen, and shed their bark annually; and the wood being close-grained, and of great density and hardness, it takes several years to season properly.

Most of the wood is, therefore, unseasoned when used, and sleepers put down in this state are said to last twelve years if of iron-bark and box; and nine years if of stringy bark and gum. All these four woods are liable to be attacked by whiteants.

There is a remarkable difference in the quanlity of these woods when grown on various soils, and local knowledge is necessary to determine whether the growth of any particular forest is suited for Railway sleepers or not. Speaking generally, iron-bark and box-wood are the best timber available; but in parts of the same district, their quality is inferior and unfit for Railway sleepers. A trustworthy Agent, resident on the spot, would be necessary to examine, test, and select in person the timber offered for sleepers, if a regular supply of the latter be exported annually from Australia to India.

The extract of Colonel W shews the elasticity and strength of the figures in each line are the m three or four trials of the same wo piece tried was 4 feet long between 2 inches square.

Sleepers could at present be expo ships from Sydney, Newcastle, an whence Railways and rivers exten tance into the interior; small C also bring sleepers to these Ports f outlets on the coast where timber is

The present price of sleepers deliv Ports is from 3*s* to 4*s* each for s 10′ × 10″ × 5″, but under the strict sy tion which would be absolutely neces expected to increase to as much as 4

Taking eight sleepers to the to this Australian timber at Bombay, Calcutta, would be from 62*s* to 75*s* pe ing all charges, except cost of landi delivery, and price of each sleeper w from 8*s* to 9*s* 6*d* each.

The Local Government may possib duty on sleepers thus exported, and timber is also liable to further increa large demand for timber and sleeper lian Railways, gold-fields and mines. nia some good woods for Railway slee in the large forests on the Western large ships would hardly go to a place of the regular channel of trade. In N also there are extensive and thick for timber along the Western Coast, wher fields have been recently discovered, no good harbour yet known along this level at a distance of only 700 yards from the river bank where vessels of 200 tons can take in their load. The Company has lately been re-organized, and is preparing for operations on a more extended scale.

This coal is highly bituminous, and remarkable, in common with Borehole and Minimi seam, for its tendency to uniform and orbicular fracture, a peculiarity which seems to belong to the middle seams of the series, the upper and lower seams being more disposed to splinty clearage, and burning to ash with little cinder.

The Four-Mile Creek Company, Messrs. Christian, Nixon & Co., carries on its operations in the East Maitland District, and that worked is 8 feet 6 inches in thickness, 5 feet 6 inches of which is a splint coal of a very superior quality, chiefly used by the two lines of steamers navigating daily between Morpeth and Sydney.

The admirable regularity with which these occean steamers perform their service, their engines of 160 horse-power easily kept to the top of their speed with steam to spare and blowing at the valve, give sufficient and constant evidence of the excellence of the coal; in fact, I have long considered, and often expressed the opinion, that good clean hand-picked New South Wales coal is at least equal, if not preferable, to the best coals of Engand, when these latter have been twice transhipped; that is to say, in the state in which English coal can alone be got in Sydney, and at double the price of the best produce of our own mines. The Four-Mile Creek is a handsplint coal; does not clinker; and burns to a fine dry ash; is very comparable to the coals shipped from Goole in Yorkshire, whilst our bituminous coals may be likened in quality to the "Heartley."

Descending the strata, and below all the seams of these Collieries at West Maitland, about 5 miles north from Four-Mile Creek, two seams of cannel and splinty coal are worked, the property of the Hon'ble Bournie Russell. This cannel coal is most useful, and is chiefly employed for domestic purposes.

Thirty miles further to the northward, at Rix's Creek, near Singleton, a seam of good coal is also worked.

Sixty miles south from Sydney, are the Ports of Bellambi and Wollongong; and though they cannot be compared with accommodation with the Port of Newcastle, the energy of the coal owners of the Districts, and the facility with which coals can be worked by "day levels" from a 7 feet seam which shews itself in section along many miles of the mountain range, assure to this field a progressive development to prove the inexhaustible resources of New South Wales in mineral fuel; and will be a guarantee to commercial interests that no combination of monopoly can long disturb the regularity of the supply.

At Bellambi, vessels load from a jetty the coals brought down the mountain side along a tramway to the ship, and from 100 to 200 tons are thus sent away daily.

At Wollongong there is a like arrangement for the Mount Keira Mine, and like quantities are shipped from that Port.

There is a "day level" worked by a morning party between Mr. Hales' Bellambi Mine and Mount Keira. A drift is also making into the seam 4 miles south of Dapto, and more than 20 miles south from Mr. Hales; whilst 5 miles north from Mr. Hales a tramway is in course of construction to Bellambi for a Company about to be incorporated by Act of the New South Wales Parliament, and named the Bulli and Bellambi Coal Mining Company.

I have examined all these new drifts, both at the extreme north and south points at which the seam has hitherto been opened at heights varying from 500 to 600 feet above the level of the sea at a distance of at least 25 miles from each other, and can say that the coals appear equally good with those from the drifts in work, all upon the same seam, and shewing a great regularity of thickness of about 7 feet.

Besides this, and 15 miles nearer to Sydney, at Coal Cliff, I found a seam at the level of low-water, 6 feet in thickness, very like to the splint coal of Four-Mile Creek, and this seam will probably, from its apparent good quality, soon be worked.

Since the year 1856, the trade of the old Companies has nearly doubled, whilst new Companies have started into existence, and the extraction and sales of these latter are now equal to what the old Companies were doing five years ago.

On the lands of the Agricultural Company a few miles from Strond, a seam more than 30 feet in thickness crops out in the length of a creek, and this thickness has been verified by several trial pits sunk on the dip side. There are many partings of shale and fire clay, and the coal is of various quality in the thickness of the seam, but there is quite sufficient of good coal for profitable working, if its inland position did not render it wholly unavailable in the face of coal so easily accessible from the sea-board as that of Newcastle and Wollongong.

With regard to the relative heating powers of British and Colonial coals; from some very careful experiments conducted on a large scale in the Colony, the ascertained mean value of 16 trials of different Welsh coal, 16 of English, 16 of Scotch, and 6 of Colonial coal, are as follows:—

	Mean.	Highest.	Lowest.
Welsh ...	8·9	10·2	7·4
Colonial ...	7·9	8·4	7·4
English (Newcastle) ...	7·8	9·3	6·7
Scotch ...	7·3	8·4	5·8

By this it will be seen that the Colonial coal is inferior only to that from the most famous Welsh Collieries. The Colonial coal in each of these experiments was 15 cwt., and gave as the average water evaporated 253, 348·3 cubic inches.

Mr. Anderson, Inspector of Mach[illegible] War Department, also made some [illegible] but on a smaller scale, at Woolwhich [illegible] lian and other coals, and the foll[illegible] shews at a glance the relative value [illegible] coals operated upon:—

It will be seen that these experiments [illegible] land bear out those on a larger sca[illegible] Colony, and that, therefore, for steam [illegible] the Australian coal may be considered al[illegible] to the Newcastle coal termed "Whitwo[illegible] that it is slightly inferior to the Ha[illegible] Welsh varieties of English coal. The la[illegible] of the Table shews exactly the relative [illegible] the different experiments, and the true [illegible] the several coals for steam-engine purpos[illegible]

Attached to Mr. Anderson's report [illegible] following analysis made by Mr. Abel, the [illegible] to the War Department:—

"The coal was found to contain a [illegible] siderable admixture of shale. Very thin [illegible] iron pyrites were observed to be inte[illegible] through the massive portions of the coal i[illegible]

"An average sample of the coal, as [illegible] was prepared, and the following poin[illegible] mined with it:—

1.—"The quantity of volatile matter furnished by the coal, amounted to 71 per cent., and 29 per cent. of a light and very porous coke was obtained. The coal is, therefore, of a highly bituminous character, and would probably be found excellently adapted for the manufacture of gas.

2.—"The percentage of ash contained in this average sample of coal amounted to 6·8 per cent. The ash was of a red brown colour, due to the oxide of iron produced from the pyrites in the coal."

A massive piece of the coal was selected for a special determination of the ash, and was found to furnish 4·09 per cent. The coal therefore, yields, even when free from shale, a quantity of ash unusually large for bituminous coal.

3.—"The percentage of sulphur found in the average sample amounted to 1·11, a quantity slightly exceeding that usually found in Newcastle coal, but which cannot be looked upon as considerable when compared with the large amount of ash furnished by this coal."

More recent experiments at the Royal Arsenal have thus been summarised by the Government Examiner of Coal-fields, New South Wales :—

1st.—"The Woolwich boiler, which with average English North Country coal evaporated at the rate of 47 cubic feet of water per hour, with average Australian coal evaporated 46¾ cubic feet.

2nd.—"One pound of English North Country coal evaporated 8·25lbs of water; and 1lb of Australian coal evaporated 8·258lbs.

3rd.—"The average of English coal gives 1 per cent. of clinker; the Australian 2·11 per cent.

4th.—"Of ash, the average of English coal is 4 per cent. against 7·15 per cent. for Australian; and is stated to give 5 per cent., whilst the Australian leaves 9¼ per cent.

5th.—"The average Australian coal excels average English North Country coal in power of evaporation, for 1lb of the former evaporates more water than a lb of the latter, and in time the difference is insignificant.

The quantity of the residue to be thrown away as of little consequence when the evaporation power of the coal is nearly equal.

The English coal used in these experiments may be fairly assumed as having attained its highest average, whilst the coal of Australia is an improving average.

The following Return will give the approximate relative value for locomotive purposes of the coal from the Northern Collieries :—

Description of Coals.	Number of days running.	Average load of waggons, carriages, &c., per day.	Quantity of Coal consumed.		Number of miles run.	Weight in lbs. per mile.	Wood used Lighting Fires.

With regard to the qualities of the northern and southern coal for steam-raising purposes, I may state that both in marine, stationary, and locomotive engines, the latter has been found the best; that is to say, ceteris paribus, a lb of Wollongong coal will raise more steam than that of a like quantity from the Newcastle Collieries.

The following reports which have been published will, I think, fully bear out this assertion, as the trials were not more experiments conducted in a laboratory, but conducted upon a sufficiently large scale to practically test the coal.

CITY ENGINEER'S OFFICE.

Sydney, 4th July 1861.

From—EDWARD BELL, ESQ., City Engineer,

To—The Right Worshipful the Mayor.

In accordance with the instructions of the Water Committee to furnish a three months' comparative return of Newcastle and Bellambi coal at the Botany Water-works, I have the honor to state that I have selected periods at which the coals were weighed into the furnaces, and the sum of which weighing corresponded within a fraction with the weight on the ships' certificate; and the following are the results which I have the honor to return, namely:—

From the 1st April to 30th June 1860, the coal used was Newcastle coal and Copper Company's and Minimi—

Number of gallons pumped 135 feet high ... 72,763,803 „

Number of gallons pumped 226 feet high, with 654,050 lbs. of coal 3,544,680, which is equal to 16,244 gallons of water pumped, 1 foot high with 1lb of coal.

Bellambi Coal,—

"From 1st January to 31st March 1861—

Number of gallons pumped 226 feet high, was ... 4,386,240

With 544,861 lbs. of coal, which is equal to ... 21,838 gallons of water raised one foot with one lb of coal.

From—J. H. Thomas, Esq.,

To—The Right Worshipful the Mayor.

In reply to your enquiry as to which I had found to be the most suitable class of coal for the locomotives on the Railways of this Colony, I have to state that after a series of experiments, the coal from the mines of Bellambi was proved to be far superior to any other as a fuel, both as regards its steam-raising qualities and perfect freedom from clinker.

I may also mention that it is better adapted for the smoke-consuming apparatus we employ.

From—H. Woolley, Senior Engineer,

To—Commander of Her Majesty's Ship "Cordelia."

In accordance with your instructions to report on the qualities of Bellambi coal, I have the honour to inform you of the following trial of this kind of coal made on Her Majesty's ship under your command:—

"Indicated horse-power .. 228·6 horse."

Consumed per indicated horse-power per hour 5·8lbs which is equal to 336,776·7lbs. raised one foot high, or 33,677·6 gallons of water pumped one foot high with 1lb of coal.

"The Bellambi coal makes very little smoke, or soot, in comparison with other kinds of Australian coal, no clinker of any consequence; but compared with English coal, it produces rather a larger quantity of dust and ash.

"Altogether it is superior to any kind of Australian coal yet tried on board Her Majesty Ship Cordelia.

Although Mr. Bell's report exhibits a difference of some 30 per cent. in favor of Bellambi (Southern) coal, yet it is but fair to state that one of the Northern coals used was of an inferior colliery, as will be seen by the return of the trials of Newcastle coal on the Northern Railway given above.

I may add to the foregoing reports a trial made in one of our locomotives on the Great Northern Railway.

Description of Coal.	No. of Engines	No. of days running	No. of Miles run.	Quantity of coals used.	Quantity of billet wood used.	Coal per mile in lbs.
Wollongong ...	9	15	1,788	387	116	24·24
Newcastle ...	9	15	1,740	400	122	25·74

The Wollongong coal is of rather slow combustion, and requires a strong blast; it is not generally liked by the fire-men, as it gives them a little more trouble, whereas the Newcastle burns freely and requires less attendance to the fires. We are at present using an equal quantity of each, the contract just entered upon with the Government being at the following rates to be delivered at the Railway Wharf at Sydney:—

Newcastle ...	15	0	„

At the present time, owing to the keen competition, the price of coal is very low, and at Newcastle is now being put on board at 9*s.* 3*d.* per ton.

State of the Ganges and Darjeeling Road, &c.

Extract from a Note by H. Leonard, Esq., C. E., Officiating Chief Engineer, Bengal, on the result of a recent inspection made by him of the Ganges and Darjeeling Road and of the New Hill Cart Road.

Ganges and Darjeeling Road.

15. The Ganges and Darjeeling Road, that is, the road between Carogolah and Silligoree, is a fine line of communication, well aligned, well made and well metalled throughout: there are only two rivers unbridged on the whole line, the Sowrah and the Mahanuddy, and the former of these is now being done, leaving only the Mahanuddy River to be crossed by a ferry. The whole of the bridges with one or two exceptions are of wood and not of the best materials or workmanship either. They were only intended to stand for seven or eight years: many of them have stood their time already and now shew marked signs of weakness and decay. They may, however, be kept in sufficiently good order until they are replaced by permanent structures; but they will require great attention and thorough good management to keep them from becoming a source of serious inconvenience to the traffic on the road.

16. A good foreman carpenter or an overseer who fully understands carpenter's work should be at once appointed to take charge of them: a central depôt should be formed, a stock of timber laid in, and duplicates of all weak portions and of portions likely to fail should be kept ready in stock, so that repairs may be promptly done without closing the bridges. Fortunately the great mass of the bridges is on the 20 or 30 miles of the road north of Purneah, so that one man can superintend the repairs very well. If this matter is not promptly attended to, there will be very great cause for complaints by the mail authorities, and indeed by the public generally. The present means of superintending the work is decidedly insufficient and defective, and the result is bridges closed for weeks, which under proper superintendence and management need not have been closed at all. The Superintending Engineer is alive to these facts: but with no Executive Engineer nearer than Bhangulpore, and no one on the spot who understands the work to be done he is helpless. With the greatest care, however, that can be given to the work, these bridges cannot last much longer, and steps should be taken at once for their renewal year by year in a permanent manner.

17. As the foundations are bad, building materials extremely difficult to procure, and labor dear, iron will generally be found the best material to use.

18. Sections should be taken of all the present bridges, and these, with such information as will enable this Office to indent on England for a large number of simple cheap spans, should be submitted as soon as possible. These spans can be put up in the sites where the present bridges are in the worst state. The waterway at present provided seems to be ample, and it is now clearly defined, so that no uncertainty remains to make one doubt the propriety of putting up permanent structures.

19. The ferry over the Mahanuddy requires considerable improvement. A moderately good semi-permanent road should be kept formed across the sands as the river falls. The present arrangements are not good.

20. The metalling of the road generally is in excellent order, the only exception worth noticing being about 14 miles between the Ganges and Purneah: some of this is decidedly bad now, and if very great energy is not shewn in providing metalling, I fear there will be great room for complaint before next rains are over. A good deal of the road is now considerably worn, having been in use for six or seven years, it will be quite as much as can be done to provide metal in time to keep it from becoming bad.

21. A new Division has, however, now been made of which this road forms the pricipal portion. The Executive Engineer is an excellent and experienced man. The Superintending Engineer is thoroughly alive to the necessity for immediate activity, so I hope all will go on well.

22. On the large portion of the road, which has been metalled with slag, search is being made for more of the same material, and the Overseer reported that there was fair prospect of getting a sufficient supply for present wants at least.

23. The occurrence of this slag in a perfectly flat country, now without a tree almost, without ore or flux or fuel is a curious and, for the completion of the road, a most fortunate occurrence. The preparation of metal to supply the place of the slag used on the 40 or 50 miles which is covered with it would have been an extremely tedious and difficult work.

24. The bridge over the Mahanuddy on the old line of road is being put in good order, it will be finished before the rains set in, and the old road up to the hills is in very good order. I examined the site of the bridge over the Mahanuddy on the new line of road, and am satisfied that that selected by Major Perkins and Colonel Layard is the best in the vicinity. I discussed the question of the class of bridge which should be built there with these Officers, and feel convinced that, as a permanent arrangement, wood is the proper material to use. It is of the finest quality, about one-fourth of the cost of wood in Calcutta, and there is no destroying worm in the river; while, on the other hand, iron at the site would be extremely costly, the length of inland cartage being very great. A really good wooden bridge should last 18 or 20 years without any great outlay, and it can be built at about one-fifth of the cost of an iron one. The Superintending Engineer has been directed to prepare designs accordingly, and to proceed with the collection of timber without delay.

Hill Cart Road.

25. The first portion of the new line of road is known as the Terai Section. It extends from the Mahanuddy to a place called Panchkeela, about 10 miles from the Bungalow: about 3 miles of it still remains to be metalled.

26. This "Panchkeela" is a curious instance of how easily a name may become fixed. Panchkeela is now the place where the Hill Cart Road, as estimated for, commences, and where the Terai portion ends. I heard it spoken of as frequently as Silligoree or Punkabaree, yet I could see nothing to mark it,—no village, nor stream, nor hut, it is not even the point where the stiff ascent of the hill road commences. On enquiry I found that the origin of it was this,—a Mr. Dixon Derry surveyed the Terai line; when he thought he had got far enough he put down five pegs and ended his work. The natives then called it Panchkeela (five pegs), the estimate for the Terai work ended there, and there the Hill Cart Road commenced.

27. The point where the stiff slope of the road really commences is at a well marked spot called Sookna Haut, three miles lower down, and, if there be separate estimates for the road at all, this is the point which should mark it.

28. The Darjeeling Hill Cart Road extends from Panchkeela to Darjeeling market-place. The "lower section," is south of Kursiong, the "upper section" between Kursiong and the market.

29. The lower section is not yet fit for traffic: there is a little blasting still to be done above Gya Baree. The upper section has been open for traffic for some three or four years past. It takes the traffic of the old road, which joins it at Kursiong.

30. From what I have seen of this cart road, which I examined from end to end, I am persuaded that by far the greater portion of it will require metalling. It is made as an unmetalled road, and there was some ground for thinking that a road, through rocky material, might do without metal; but the rock, generally, is a rotten clay slate or micacious slate, which almost melts by rain and exposure, and which, I am certain, will cut up under rain and traffic. This view is confirmed by what has occurred on the upper section, where the rock is a kind of very soft gneiss, here and there mixed with a reddish clay, but it cuts up freely in the rains. A considerable portion of it has been already improved, virtually metalled, by covering it with the best of the gneiss rock, both in the form of soling and of metal. The Superintending Engineer should submit a separate estimate for metalling such portions of the road as are not likely to stand.

31. There will also be a considerable expenditure for renewing temporary bridges and rebuilding temporary revetment walls. No doubt the best way of dealing with the case is to submit an estimate for all such work as will not be covered by the estimate for the original work. These works are not really repairs in the proper meaning of the word: and charging them to it, and thus making the annual repairs a very heavy item, is calculated to give an unfairly alarming idea of the ultimate expense of the work. If the road be properly finished, the annual repair charges will be comparatively light.

32. The road generally is a fine work. The grades on it are easier than those on Mont Cenis. It has been laid out with great care, under most difficult circumstances, and from the use made of the upper portion there can be little doubt that the traffic on it will be large and important.

33. The whole line cannot, I think, be properly open for traffic before January 1869, and the work up to the present time has cost about Rupees 15,00,000 or 36,000 a mile; metalling and completing the bridges will cost probably Rupees 4,000 a mile more, making a total of Rupees 40,000 a mile.

Where officer in charge sees no sufficient ground for enquiry.

129. If on any complaint or information being preferred to an officer in charge of a Police station, it appears to him that there is no sufficient ground for entering on an enquiry, or that the immediate apprehension of the accused is not necessary for the ends of justice, he shall not proceed in the case, but shall report the substance of the complaint or information for the orders of the Magistrate having jurisdiction.

Search by officer in charge of Police station.

134. Whenever an officer in charge of a Police station considers that the production of anything is essential to the conduct of an enquiry into any offence which he is authorized to investigate, he may search or cause search to be made for the same, in any house or place within the limits of such station.

In such case, the officer in charge of the Police station shall, if practicable, conduct the search in person.

Oral examination of witnesses by Police.

137. An officer in charge of a Police station or other Police officer making an enquiry, may examine orally any person supposed to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case.

So much of statement made by accused as relates to fact thereby discovered, may be received.

143. If the person arrested appears from the information obtained to have committed the offence charged, and the offence is not bailable, the officer in charge of the Police station shall forward him under custody to the Magistrate having jurisdiction in respect of the offence, and shall bind over the prosecutor and witnesses to appear on a fixed day before such Magistrate.

Enquiry by the Police.

When any subordinate Police officer has made any enquiry under this chapter, he shall, if so required by the officer in charge of the Police station, submit a report of such enquiry to him; or he may do so without such requisition, and the officer in charge of the Police station shall then proceed as if he had made the enquiry himself.

144. No Police officer shall, without the special order of a Magistrate, detain an accused person in custody for a longer period than, under all the circumstances of the case, is reasonable, and such period shall in no case exceed twenty-four hours.

156. When any Court has adjudged an offender to punishment or forwarded him to a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace for trial, under section 155, for refusing or omitting to do anything which he was lawfully required to do, or for any intentional insult or interruption, the Court may discharge the offender, or remit the punishment, on his submission to the order or requisition of such Court, or on apology being made to its satisfaction.

If the Magistrate considers the offence to require a punishment more severe than a Justice of the Peace is competent to award under the said statute, he may commit the offender to the High Court.

CHAPTER XI.

Prosecution for contempts of the lawful authority of public servants.

160. A charge of any offence described in chapter X of the Indian Penal Code, not falling within section 155, shall not be entertained in any Criminal Court, except with the sanction or on the complaint of the public servant concerned, or of his official superior.

The prohibition contained in this section does not apply to the offences described in sections 189 and 190 of the Indian Penal Code.

Prosecution for certain offences against public justice.

161. A charge of an offence against public justice, described in section 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211 or 228 of the Indian Penal Code, when such offence is committed before or against any Court of Justice, shall not be entertained except with the sanction of the Court before or against which the offence was committed, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

Such sanction may be given at any time.

Prosecution for certain offences relating to documents given in evidence.

162. A charge of an offence relating to documents described in section 463, 471, 475 or 476 of the Indian Penal Code, when the document has been given in evidence in any proceedings in any Court of Justice, shall not be entertained against a party to such proceedings, except with the sanction of the Court in which the document was given in evidence, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

Such sanction may be given at any time.

163. When any Court of Justice is of opinion that there is sufficient ground for investigating any charge mentioned in section 160, 161 or 162, the Court, after making such preliminary enquiry as may be necessary, may send the case for investigation to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused person for the offence charged.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law, and the Court may send the accused person in custody or take sufficient bail for his appearance before such Magistrate, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such investigation.

Power of Court of Session as to such offences committed before it.

164. A Court of Session may charge a person for any such offence committed before it or under its own cognizance if the offence be triable by the Court of Session exclusively, and may commit or hold to bail and try him upon its own charge.

In such case the Court of Session shall have the same power of summoning and causing the attendance at the trial of any witnesses for the prosecution or for the defence as is vested in a Magistrate by this Act.

Such Court may direct the Magistrate to cause the attendance of such witnesses on the trial.

Power of Civil Courts to complete investigation and commit to Court of Session.

165. In any case triable by the Court of Session exclusively, any Civil Court before which any such offence was committed may, instead of sending the case for investigation to a Magistrate, complete the investigation itself, and commit or hold to bail the accused person to take his trial before the Court of Session.

Procedure of Civil Court in such cases.

166. When any such commitment is made by order of a Civil Court, the Court shall frame a charge in the manner hereinafter provided, and shall send the same with the order of commitment and the record of the case to the Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate; and such Magistrate or other officer shall bring the case before the Court of Session, together with the witnesses for the prosecution and defence.

Court may exercise all powers of a Magistrate as to binding over persons to give evidence.

167. Whenever any Court of Justice commits or holds to bail any person for trial under sections 164, 165 and 166, it may also bind over any person to give evidence, and for that purpose may exercise all the powers of a Magistrate.

Procedure where offence triable only by Court of Session is committed before Magistrate not empowered to commit to such Court.

168. If any such offence, triable by the Court of Session exclusively, be committed before a Magistrate not empowered to commit for trial before a Court of Session, he shall send the case to a Magistrate competent to make such commitment, who shall proceed to pass such order in the case as he may think proper.

CHAPTER XII.

Of Preliminary Enquiry by the Magistrate in cases triable by the Court of Session.

Magistrate may issue warrant to arrest.

171. When a complaint is made before the Magistrate of the District or any other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, or before any subordinate Magistrate empowered under section 26 to commit persons for trial before the Court of Session or invested with that power by any law for the time being in force, that any person has committed, or is suspected to have committed, any offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, or which in the opinion of such Magistrate ought to be tried by the Court of Session, such Magistrate may issue his warrant to arrest such person.

Issue of summons instead of warrant.

Provided that, in any such case, the Magistrate to whom such complaint is made may, if he thinks fit, instead of issuing in the first instance his warrant to arrest the accused person, issue his summons requiring him to appear to answer to such complaint.

Postponement of issue of process.

172. If the Magistrate sees cause to distrust the truth of the complaint, he may postpone the issuing of process for causing the attendance of the accused person, and direct a previous enquiry to be made into the truth of the complaint, either by means of any officer subordinate to such Magistrate, or of a local Police officer, or in such other mode as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

If such enquiry is made by means of some person other than an officer exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate or a Police officer, such person shall exercise all the powers vested by this Act in an officer in charge of a Police station, except that he shall have no power to make an arrest.

Dismissal of complaint.

Nothing contained in this section shall prevent the Magistrate from at once dismissing the complaint, if in his judgment there be no sufficient ground for proceeding with it.

Magistrate may direct bail to be taken.

173. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate, in issuing his warrant for the arrest of any person against whom a complaint has been made, to direct by endorsement on the warrant that, if he be willing and ready to give bail in a sum to be fixed by the Magistrate, for his appearance before the Magistrate to be named in the warrant on a specified day to answer the complaint, the officer to whom the warrant is directed shall accept such bail, and shall release the accused person from custody.

Bail-bond to be forwarded.

In the event of bail being given, the officer shall forward the bail-bond to the Magistrate.

174. The Magistrate may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused person, and permit him to appear by an agent duly authorized to act in his behalf.

Magistrate may dispense with personal attendance of accused.

But it shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate, at any stage of the proceedings, to direct the personal attendance of the accused person.

175. If any person accused of an offence absconds or conceals himself, so that upon a warrant issued against him he cannot be found, the Magistrate shall, if satisfied that he absconds or conceals himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant, issue a written proclamation, requiring him to appear to answer the complaint within a fixed period not less than thirty days.

Proclamation for person absconding.

The proclamation shall be publicly read in some conspicuous place of the town or village in which the accused person usually resides, and shall be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode, or on some conspicuous place in such town or village.

A copy of the proclamation shall also be affixed on some conspicuous part of the Magistrate's Court-house.

176. The Magistrate may, at the same time, order the attachment of any moveable or immoveable property belonging to the person absconding or concealing himself.

Attachment of property of person absconding.

Such order shall not authorize the attachment of any property out of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate by whom it is made, but it shall authorize the attachment of property in the jurisdiction of any Magistrate by whom the order is endorsed.

The attachment under this section shall, if the property ordered to be attached be land paying revenue to Government, be made through the Collector of the District in which the land is situate, and in all other cases by seizure under the order of the Magistrate, or by the appointment of a manager and receiver, or by an order prohibiting the payment of rent to the absent person, as the Magistrate shall deem proper.

If the absent person does not appear within the time specified in the proclamation, the property under attachment shall be declared to be at the disposal of Government, but shall not be sold until the expiration of six months, unless it is of a perishable nature, or the Magistrate considers that the sale would be for the benefit of the owner.

177. When any person whose property has been declared to be at the disposal of Government under section 176 appears or is found within two years after the attachment of the property, and proves to the satisfaction of the Court trying him for the offence of which he was accused, or, if not tried or committed for trial for that offence, to the satisfaction of the Magistrate of the District, that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of evading justice, such property, or, if the same has been sold, the proceeds thereof, shall be restored to him.

Restoration of forfeited property.

178. The Magistrate shall ascertain from the complainant, or otherwise, the names of any persons who may be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case, and who are likely to give evidence for the prosecution, and shall issue his summons to such persons, requiring them to appear at a time and place mentioned in the summons before such Magistrate to testify what they know concerning the complaint made against the accused person.

Summons to witness to appear and give evidence.

179. Every summons issued by a Magistrate under section 178 shall be served personally on the witness, or, if the witness be not found, may be left for him with some adult male member of his family residing with him.

Service of summons.

180. If the Magistrate see reason to believe that such witness will not attend to give evidence without being compelled to do so, he may, instead of issuing a summons, issue his warrant of arrest in the first instance.

Issue of warrant of arrest in first instance.

181. If the warrant cannot be served, and the Magistrate is satisfied that the witness absconds or conceals himself for the purpose of avoiding the service thereof, he may issue a proclamation, requiring the attendance of such witness to give evidence at a time and place to be named therein, to be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode.

Procedure where warrant cannot be served.

If the witness does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Magistrate may order the attachment of any moveable property belonging to such witness to such amount as he shall deem reasonable, not being in excess of the amount of costs of attachment and of any fine to which the witness may be liable under the provisions of the following section.

Such order shall not authorize the attachment of any property out of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate by whom it is made, but it shall authorize the attachment of property in the jurisdiction of any Magistrate by whom the order is endorsed.

182. If the witness appear and satisfy the Magistrate that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Magistrate shall direct that the property be released from attachment, and shall make such order in regard to the costs of the attachment as he thinks fit.

Release of attached property of witness appearing and satisfying Magistrate.

If such witness does not appear, or appearing, fails to satisfy the Magistrate that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant, and that he had not such notice of the proclamation as aforesaid, the Magistrate may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of any fine which he may impose upon such witness under the provisions of section 172 of the Indian Penal Code.

Sale of property of witness not appearing or satisfying Magistrate.

If the witness pays to the Magistrate the costs and fine as aforesaid, the Magistrate shall order the property to be released from attachment.

183. If any person summoned to give evidence neglects or refuses to appear at the time and place appointed by the summons, and no valid excuse is offered for such neglect or refusal, the Magistrate, upon proof of the summons having been duly served, may issue a warrant of arrest to bring such person before him to testify as aforesaid.

Arrest of person disobeying summons.

184. If any person summoned or brought before a Magistrate refuses to answer such questions as are put to him, without offering any valid excuse for such refusal, the Magistrate may, by warrant of commitment under his hand and seal, commit him to custody for any term not exceeding seven days, unless he shall, in the meantime, consent to be examined and to answer, after which, in the event of his persisting in his refusal, he may be dealt with according to the provisions of section 155.

Committal of person refusing to answer.

185. The Magistrate shall take the evidence of the complainant, and of such persons as are stated to have any knowledge of the facts which form the subject-matter of the accusation and the attendant circumstances.

Examination of complainant and witnesses for prosecution.

186. The complainant and the witnesses for the prosecution shall be examined in the presence of the accused person, or of his agent when his personal attendance is dispensed with and he appears by agent.

Examination to be in presence of accused.

The accused person or his agent shall be permitted to cross-examine the complainant and his witnesses.

Accused may cross-examine.

187. The evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, by or in the presence and hearing and under the personal direction and superintendence of the Magistrate, and shall be signed by him.

Mode and language in which evidence is to be recorded.

When the evidence of a witness is given in English, the Magistrate may take it down in that language with his own hand, and an authenticated translation of the same, in the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, shall form part of the record.

Evidence in English.

In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Magistrate, he shall be bound, as the examination of each witness proceeds, to make a memorandum of the substance of what the witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with his own hand, and shall be annexed to the record.

Memorandum where evidence not taken down in writing.

If the Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so.

188. The Local Government may direct that, in any District or part of a District to which this Act extends, the evidence of witnesses shall be taken down by the Magistrate with his own hand, in the vernacular language of the Magistrate, unless the Magistrate be prevented by any sufficient reason from taking down the evidence of any witness, in which case he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

Local Government may direct evidence to be recorded in vernacular language of Magistrate.

The evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate, and form part of the record:

Provided that, if the vernacular language of the Magistrate be not English or the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, the Local Government may direct him to take down the evidence in the English language or in the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, instead of his own vernacular.

Proviso.

189. Any question arising as to what is the language in ordinary use in any District in which a Court is held, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be determined by the Local Government.

Local Government to decide language in ordinary use.

190. The evidence shall not ordinarily be taken down in the form of question and answer, but in the form of a narrative.

Evidence how recorded.

It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate to take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer, if there appear any special reason for so doing, or any person who is a prosecutor, or a person accused, or his counsel or agent, requires it.

When the evidence is completed, it shall be read over to the witness in the presence of the accused person if in attendance, or of his agent when his personal attendance is dispensed with and he appears by agent, and shall, if necessary, be corrected.

Evidence to be read to witness.

If the witness denies the correctness of any part of the evidence when the same is read over to him, the Magistrate may, instead of correcting the evidence, make a memorandum thereon of the objection made to it by the witness, and shall add such remarks as he may think necessary.

If the evidence be taken down in a different language from that in which it has been given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, the witness may require his evidence as taken down to be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given, or in a language which he understands.

Memorandum to be attached to evidence.

191. A memorandum to be signed by the Magistrate shall be attached to the evidence of each witness, and shall state that the evidence was read over to the witness in a language which he understood (naming the language), and, if the fact is so, that the witness acknowledged such evidence to be correct.

When the evidence is not taken down by the Magistrate with his own hand, the memorandum shall further state that the evidence was taken down in his presence and hearing, and under his personal direction and superintendence.

Interpretation of evidence to accused or his agent.

192. If the evidence is given in a language not understood by the accused person, it shall be interpreted to him in open Court in a language understood by him, in all cases where he is present in person.

If he appears by agent, and the evidence is given in a language other than the language in ordinary use in the District in which the Court is held, it shall be interpreted to such agent in that language.

Power of Magistrate to summon and examine any person.

193. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate, at any stage of the proceedings, to examine any person whose evidence he may consider essential to the enquiry.

Examination of accused.

194. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate from time to time, at any stage of the enquiry, to examine the accused person, and to put such questions to him as he may consider necessary.

It shall be in the option of the accused person to answer such questions.

No influence to be used to induce disclosures.

195. Except as provided in section 201, no influence, by means of any promise or threat or otherwise, shall be used to the accused person to induce him to disclose or withhold any matter within his knowledge.

Accused not to be sworn.

196. No oath shall be administered to the accused person.

Examination of accused how recorded.

197. The examination of the accused person including every question put to him and every answer given by him, shall be recorded in full, and shall be shown or read to him, and he shall be at liberty to explain or add to his answers.

When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the examination shall be attested by the signature of the Magistrate, who shall certify under his own hand that it was taken in his presence and in his hearing, and contains accurately the whole of the statement made by the accused person.

Detention of offenders attending Court.

198. Any person attending the Court of the Magistrate, although not upon an arrest or summons on a charge made, may be detained by the Magistrate for the purpose of examination, for any offence which from the evidence he may appear to have committed, and may be proceeded against as though he had been arrested or summoned on a charge made.

Discretionary power to summon witnesses for defence.

199. It shall be at the discretion of the Magistrate to summon any witness who may be offered in behalf of the accused person to answer or disprove the evidence against him.

Sections 179 to 183 to apply to witnesses for defence.

200. The provisions of sections 179 to 183 (both inclusive) shall be applicable to witnesses named in support of the defence.

Magistrate may tender pardon to accomplice.

201. The Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, and any subordinate Magistrate duly empowered under section 26, recording his reason for so doing, may tender a pardon to any one or more of the persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in or privy to any offence specified in column 7 of the second schedule hereto annexed as triable by the Court of Session, on condition of his or their making a full, true and fair disclosure of the whole of the circumstances within his or their knowledge relative to the crime committed, and every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

If any person accepts a tender of pardon under this section, he shall be examined as a witness in the case under the rules applicable to the examination of witnesses.

Such person, if not on bail, may, if the Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid thinks proper, be detained in custody pending the termination of the trial.

High Court or Court of Session may direct tender of pardon.

202. A Court of Session at the time of trial, and also the High Court as a Court of reference, in cases tried with the aid of assessors, may instruct the Magistrate in like manner to tender a pardon to one or more persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in or privy to any such offence, with the view of obtaining his or their evidence on the trial.

When High Court or Court of Session may direct commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

203. If it appears to a Court of Session at the time of trial, or to the High Court as a Court of reference, that any person who has accepted an offer of pardon, has not conformed to the conditions under which the pardon was tendered, either by wilfully concealing anything essential, or by giving false evidence or information, such Court may direct the commitment of such person for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was tendered.

Bail.

Bail not to be taken for certain offences.

204. When any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate accused of any offence entered as not bailable in column 5 of the second schedule hereto annexed, such person shall not be admitted to bail, if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that he has been guilty of the crime imputed to him.

When bail may be taken.

If the evidence given in support of the accusation is, in the opinion of the Magistrate, not such as to raise a strong presumption of the guilt of the accused person and to require his committal, or if such evidence is adduced on behalf of the accused person as shall, in the opinion of the Magistrate, weaken the presumption of his guilt, but there appears to the Magistrate in either of such cases to be sufficient ground for further enquiry into his guilt, the accused person may be admitted to bail pending such enquiry.

When bail shall be taken.

205. When any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate accused of any of the offences specified in column 5 of the second schedule hereto annexed as bailable, he shall be admitted to bail.

Recognizance of accused and sureties.

206. When a Magistrate admits to bail any person accused or suspected of any offence, a recognizance in such sum of money as the Magistrate may think sufficient, shall be entered into by the person so accused and one or more sureties, conditioned that such person shall attend during the preliminary enquiry, and if required, shall appear when called upon at the Court of Session to answer the charge.

Insufficient bail.

207. If through mistake or fraud insufficient bail has been taken, or if the sureties become afterwards insufficient, the accused person may be ordered by the Magistrate to find sufficient sureties, and in default, may be committed to prison.

Bail may be taken at any time before conviction.

208. If the accused person cannot find sureties when called upon, he shall be admitted to bail upon finding the same at any time afterwards before conviction.

Discharge on bail.

209. After the recognizances have been duly entered into, the Magistrate, in case the accused person has appeared voluntarily or is in the custody of some officer, shall thereupon discharge him; and in case he is in some prison or other place of confinement, shall issue a warrant of discharge to the jailor or other person having him in his custody, and such jailor or other person shall thereupon liberate him.

Discharge of sureties.

210. The sureties for an accused person may at any time apply to the Magistrate to be discharged from their engagements.

On such an application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his warrant of arrest, directing that such person be brought before him.

On the appearance of such person pursuant to the warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the recognizances of the sureties to be discharged, and shall call upon such person to find other sureties, and in default, may order him to be committed to prison.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by accused.

211. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance of the person executing the personal recognizance, the Magistrate is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance, he shall proceed to enforce the penalty by the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person, which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by sureties.

212. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance by the person bailed, the Magistrate is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the surety or sureties, he shall give notice to the surety or sureties to pay the same, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

If no sufficient cause be shown, the Magistrate shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety or sureties by the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him or them which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District:

If the penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the surety or sureties shall be liable to confinement, by order of the Magistrate, in the civil jail, during a period not exceeding six months.

In what cases the powers given by sections 211, 212 may be exercised.

213. The powers given by sections 211 and 212 may be exercised by every Criminal Court in every case in which a personal recognizance or bail has been given for the appearance of a party or witness, if default is made by the non-appearance of such party or witness before such Court according to the conditions of such recognizance or bail.

Remission of part of penalty.

Provided that the Court may at its discretion remit any portion of the penalty mentioned in the personal recognizance, or in the recognizance of the surety or sureties, and enforce payment in part only.

Revision of orders.

All orders passed by any Magistrate under this section shall be subject to revision by the Magistrate of the District.

Form and direction of warrant of commitment.

214. Every warrant for the commitment of a person to custody shall be in writing and signed and sealed by the Judge or Magistrate who issues it, and shall be directed to some jailor, or other officer or person having authority to receive and keep prisoners, and shall be in the form (D) given in the appendix, or to the like effect.

Warrant with whom to be lodged.

215. The warrant of commitment shall be lodged with the jailor, if he be in the jail; and if he be not in the jail, with his deputy.

If the jailor has no deputy, the warrant may be lodged with any officer of the jail then being in the jail.

Adjournment of enquiry and remand.

216. If from the absence of a witness or from any other reasonable cause, it becomes necessary or advisable to defer the examination, or further examination, of witnesses, the Magistrate may by a written order from time to time adjourn the enquiry and remand the accused person for such time as is deemed reasonable, not exceeding fifteen days:

Provided that, instead of detaining the accused person in custody during the period for which he is so remanded, the Magistrate may discharge him, upon his entering into a recognizance, with or without a surety or sureties, at the discretion of such Magistrate, conditioned for his appearance before the Magistrate at the time and place appointed for the continuance of such examination.

Discharge of accused.

217. When a Magistrate finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused person to take his trial before the Court of Session or for remanding him, he shall discharge him, unless it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be put on his trial before himself, in which case he shall proceed under chapter XIV.

When accused appears to have been insane.

218. When from evidence given before a Magistrate there appears to be sufficient ground for believing that the accused person committed an act which, if he had been of sound mind, would have been an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, and that the accused person was, at the time when the act was committed, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act charged or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, the accused person shall be sent by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session.

If the Magistrate is a Justice of the Peace and the accused person is a European British subject, he shall be sent for trial before the High Court.

When defendant to be committed for trial.

219. When evidence has been given before a Magistrate which appears to be sufficient for the conviction of the accused person of an offence which is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, or which, in the opinion of the Magistrate, is one that ought to be tried by the Court of Session, the accused person shall be sent by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session.

If the Magistrate is a Justice of the Peace and the accused person is a European British subject, he shall be sent for trial before the High Court.

Preliminary enquiries by Justices of the Peace in case of Europeans.

220. When any Magistrate who is a Justice of the Peace holds the preliminary enquiry into any offence committed by a European British subject, or commits or holds to bail such European British subject to take his trial before a High Court, he shall be guided in his procedure by the provisions of this chapter.

Copy of charge to be furnished to accused.

221. As soon as the charge on which the accused person is to be tried has been prepared as hereinafter directed, it shall be read to him, and a copy or translation thereof shall be furnished to him, if he so require.

List of witnesses for defence on trial.

The accused person shall be required at once to give in, orally or in writing, a list of witnesses whom he may wish to be summoned to give evidence on his trial before the Court of Session or High Court.

Further list.

It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate to allow the accused person to give in any further list of witnesses at a subsequent time.

Summoning witnesses.

The Magistrate shall receive the list, and summon the witnesses to appear before the Court before which the accused person is to be tried.

The provisions of sections 179 to 184 (both inclusive) so far as they relate to the attendance of witnesses, shall be applicable to witnesses named by the accused person in the list above-mentioned.

Refusal to summon unnecessary witness, unless deposit made.

222. If the Magistrate thinks that any witness is included in the list for the purpose of vexation or delay or of defeating the ends of justice, he may require the accused person to satisfy him that there are reasonable grounds for believing that such witness is material.

If the Magistrate be not so satisfied, he shall not be bound to summon the witness, unless such a sum is deposited with the Magistrate as he considers necessary to defray the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witness.

Record to be forwarded to the superior Court.

223. When a commitment is made to the Court of Session, the record of the Magistrate shall be forwarded to such Court, together with any weapon or other article of property connected with the case.

When a commitment is made to the High Court, such record and such weapon or other article shall be forwarded to the clerk of the Crown, and if any part of such record is not in English, a translation thereof in English shall be forwarded therewith.

Copies of depositions to be furnished to accused.

224. When the preliminary enquiry is concluded, the accused person shall, if he demands them at a reasonable time before the trial, be furnished with copies of the depositions. Such copies shall be made at his expense.

When commitment made, Magistrate to give notice to Government prosecutor.

225. When the accused person is committed to take his trial before the Court of Session, the Magistrate shall issue an order to the Government pleader or other officer appointed by the Government to conduct prosecutions before the Court of Session, notifying such commitment, and stating the offence in the same form as the charge.

Nothing in this section shall preclude the Magistrate, if he thinks fit, from appointing a person other than such Government pleader or officer to conduct the prosecution.

Recognizances of prosecutors and witnesses.

226. Prosecutors and witnesses for the prosecution, whose attendance may be necessary before the Court of Session or High Court, shall execute before the Magistrate recognizances in the form (E) given in the appendix, or to the like effect, to be in attendance when called upon to prosecute or to give evidence, as the case may be.

If any prosecutor or witness refuses to attend before the Court of Session or High Court, or to execute the recognizance above directed, the Magistrate may detain such prosecutor or witness in custody until he executes such recognizance, or until the time when his attendance is required, when the Magistrate shall send him under custody to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be.

CHAPTER XIII.

Of the Charge.

Contents of charge.

227. When the Magistrate has determined to send the accused person before the Court of Session for trial, he shall make a written instrument under his hand and seal, declaring with what offence the accused person is charged, and shall direct the accused person to be tried by such Court on such charge.

Copies of charge.

A copy of this instrument shall be forwarded with the record of the preliminary enquiry to the Court of Session before which the accused person is to be tried, and a copy shall also be sent to the public prosecutor or to the officer appointed to conduct the prosecution.

How the offence is to be described.

228. The charge shall describe the imputed offence as nearly as possible in the language of the Indian Penal Code, and shall refer to the section under which such offence is punishable.

Assumption of absence of General Exceptions under Penal Code.

229. It shall not be necessary to allege in the charge any circumstances for the purpose of showing that the case does not come, nor shall it be necessary to allege that the case does not come, within any of the General Exceptions contained in chapter IV of the Indian Penal Code; but every charge shall be understood to assume the absence of all such circumstances.

Evidence as to General Exceptions.

230. It shall not be necessary at the trial, on the part of the prosecutor, to prove the absence of such circumstances in the first instance; but the accused person shall be entitled to give evidence of the existence of any such circumstances, and evidence in disproof thereof may then be given on the part of the prosecutor.

Special ground of exception from absence of circumstances not to be assumed.

231. When the section referred to in the charge contains an exception not being one of such General Exceptions, the charge shall not be understood to assume the absence of circumstances constituting such exception so contained in the section, without a distinct denial of the existence of such circumstances.

Charge may contain several heads.

232. The charge may contain one or more heads.

The said commission shall make formal enquiry into the state of mind of such person, taking such evidence as shall be necessary; and if they consider that he can be set at liberty without danger to himself or to any other person, he shall be discharged.

Prisoner appearing to be insane may be removed to Asylum.

399. Whenever such person is so delivered over, it shall be upon condition that he shall be subject to the inspection of such officer as the Local Government thinks necessary to appoint, and at such times as such Government directs.

The provisions of section 398 shall apply to persons detained under the provisions of this section, and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall have the same effect as a certificate of an Inspector General of Jails or the visitors of Lunatic Asylums under the same section.
